VICTORIA, BRITISH COLUMBIA, SUNDAY, MARCH 20, 1921

UPPER SILESIAN PLEBISCITE DAY PROMISES BADLY

Poles Threaten to Shoot British Officers if They Appear in Town of Schoppinitz—Fears That Population in Bitter Anti-German District Will Attack Soldiers.

SIGNS OF DISORDER ARE SHOWN AT VARIOUS POINTS ON BORDER

KATTOWITZ, Silesia, March 19.—Threats by the Poles that they will shoot British officers should they appear in Schoppinitz tomorrow, the day of the Upper Silesian plebiscite, have reached Colonel Crichton, British control officer here. He announced that he would watch the Schoppinitz vicinity, where anti-German sentiment is reported to be most bitter.

Two officers had been detailed previously to watch the voting.

Fears are expressed that the population, which is known to be armed, will attack the soldiers in these districts tomorrow. Rifle and machine gun fire was heard along the lower Polish border last night as the Poles celebrated their anticipated victory. Heavy explosions early today reported a continuation of the celebration with dynamite.

There apparently are 30,000 troops, including a French division, four battalions of British, two Italian battalions and many German and Polish police on duty.

RECORD CROWDS ATTENDED RACE

Royal Family Takes Keen Interest in the Turf Classic—Most Picturesque Horse Race Since the War

LIVERPOOL, March 19.—Royalty, the lesser nobility, the aristocracy of sport and the general public combined yesterday to make the Grand National Steeplechase the most picturesque race run in the United Kingdom since the war. Shaun Spadah, T. McAlpine's veteran gelding, 100 to 9 shot in the betting, finished first, one of the four horses to surmount all obstacles of the gruelling four-mile run out of a field of 36 starters. And, as it often happens in a steeplechase, the favorites tumbled out of the scene after the first few hops, leaving A. D. Brown's The Bore to finish second at 9 to 1, and Lord Wavertree's All White taking third at 33 to 1.

There was a record gathering of notable figures during the race. The Prince of Wales, always popular in any gathering, and particularly popular in the sporting crowd, who hope to see him one day occupy the "good fellow" position once held by his grandfather, King Edward, was out on the course at 7 o'clock in the morning, striding along the road, watching the horses exercising, and getting the latest chatter from jockeys and trainers.

At 3 o'clock the 36 starters lined up like a troop of cavalry, two deep. They were off, and the falls were frequent. Five of the horses failed at the first fence, ran wild, threw their riders or refused to take the leap. All but six leaders followed suit before the first circuit was made, among them the Irish favorite, early in the run.

Turkey Buzzard's Fall

Mrs. Hallin's entry, Turkey Buzzard, ridden by the crack military jockey, Capt. Bennett, led the pack most of the distance, but fell when close to home. Bennett remounted, but his effort was futile for three slow but more sure jumpers, remained in front, McAlpine's Irish bred Shaun Spadah easily beating the crack amateur, Harry Brown, on his own horse, The Bore. Brown, however, put up a plucky fight. His mount fell at the next to the last fence, and the rider broke his collarbone. Brown remounted, forged his way ahead and then broke a rein on the last jump, finishing second in a wild flight. He was vociferiously cheered.

Lord Wavertree's horse, Meantime, stumbled badly at the final fence, but succeeded in beating Mrs. Hallin's Turkey Buzzard out of third place. No other horses on the great field finished.

At the conclusion of the race the Prince of Wales was in the paddock, smoking a cigar and joking happily to an escort of charming Irish girls. Close by the King and Queen were enjoying the brilliant scene to the utmost.

His Majesty called to the reporters writing the event and asked them to read their press dispatches to him during the progress of the race.

CONFESSES KILLING OF MAJOR CRONKHITE

PROVIDENCE, R.I., March 19.—Roland R. Pothier, of Central Falls, formerly an army sergeant, today formally admitted that he killed Major Alexander P. Cronkhite, son of Major-General Adelbert Cronkhite, at Camp Lewis, Wash., on October 25, 1918. UNITED STATES BEARS GREAT DEBT BURDEN

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 19.—Something like seventeen billion dollars must be provided by the Federal Government within thirty months to meet its running expenses and refunding operations. Secretary Weeks declared here tonight in an address.

"This," he said, "is a greater task than ever was undertaken by any nation in time of peace, and there is no one who does not view the prospect with more or less alarm. It is the height of folly to undertake new commitments if they can be avoided."

WILL CHANGE METHOD ON WELLAND CANAL

TORONTO, March 19.—The Government "cost plus" system of building the Welland ship canal is to be abolished, according to Hon. Dr. Reid, Minister of Railways, in an interview with a local afternoon paper.

It has just been decided, states the Minister of Railways, that the work might proceed faster and with less friction if the "cost plus" system was abolished and the contractors again given the working out of the various sections.

The awarding of the new contracts has not been discussed thoroughly yet, but Hon. Dr. Reid says the work will be rushed to completion.

SINN FEINERS SCOLD CARDINAL BOURNE

LONDON, March 19.—Irish Catholics adopted resolutions at a mass meeting last evening protesting against the pastoral letter issued in February by Cardinal Bourne, in which the cardinal denounced disorders in Ireland.

The resolutions warned Cardinal Bourne that while dutiful Catholics will obey the church in matters relative to faith and morals, no ecclesiastical dictation or interference in political matters will be tolerated.

Bullet Through Brain

TORONTO, March 19.—"I thought it was pretty well understood that sending a bullet through the brain was likely to hurt a man," remarked Colonel George T. Dennison, police magistrate, when Robert Howland, colored, was remanded in the police court here yesterday to answer a charge of attempting to commit suicide. Howland had sent a bullet crashing through his brain, following a row with a woman, but he recovered.

MAINLAND CHAMPIONS SEND OVER CHALLENGE

The Mount Pleasant Methodist Sunday School basketball teams of Vancouver, have sent over a challenge to play the champions of the local Sunday School leagues, the senior and intermediate. Each of these teams can point to an unbroken series of victories this year, and are consequently anxious to try their mettle against the Victoria leaders. There seems every reason to believe that this series will be arranged, though not for at least three weeks, as the local championships will hardly be decided before that time.

BLIZZARD AFFLICTS PRAIRIE COUNTRY

EDMONTON, March 19.—A howling blizzard swept in upon Edmonton and district from the east on Friday, and has continued practically without abatement for the last 24 hours. A north wind of about 18 miles an hour drove the snow heavily to drifts in places. Street cars and other vehicular traffic are having a hard time.

SAY MINE WAGES ARE TOO HIGH

Washington State Coal Operators Declare Against Reopening Until Schedule Is Lowered

SEATTLE, March 19.—Notwithstanding the announced intention of the United Mine Workers of America to resist reductions in wages of coal miners in the State of Washington, mines in the state, closed down last Wednesday, will not reopen until "such readjustment of wages as is necessary in this district has been made," N. D. Moore, spokesman for the Washington operators, declared today.

"We deny that any wage contract with the miners has been broken," Mr. Moore said, "and believe that if President Lewis, of the miners' union, has any such understanding, he has been misinformed."

Operators of the state have experienced severe losses under the present wage scale, Mr. Moore declared, and added that to continue under the scale would be to continue operation at an actual loss.

Increased demand for wood for fuel has resulted from the shutdown of practically all Washington commercial coal mines due to the deadlock between operators and miners over wage reductions, fuel dealers here said today. Mild weather has operated, however, to reduce fuel consumption, they said, and there has been no indication of a run on available stocks. Coal is coming into Seattle from British Columbia and Utah mines, and the supply from these sources will be ample for domestic needs, dealers said.

VANCOUVER, March 20.—The Vancouver Sun says today that negotiations were closed yesterday whereby the Canadian Robert Dollar Co. will market all the products of the Whalen Pulp & Paper Co., including pulp, lumber and shingles, for a period of three years.

USE OF LIQUOR SHORTENS LIFE

Dominion Superintendent of Insurance Discusses Rates of Mortality Among Abstainers and Non-Abstainers

OTTAWA, March 19.—G. D. Finlayson, superintendent of insurance, in a statement last night referred to evidence given before the Pensions Committee with regard to the relative mortality of abstainers and non-abstainers.

"The statement with reference to the relative mortality experienced by abstainers and non-abstainers as insured lives," Mr. Finlayson said, "was made in connection with a private bill promoted by a particular company, which has a small abstainer section, and the question as to the experience of this section having arisen, it was stated that at present the mortality in this section was higher than in the general section. It was, however, clearly pointed out that owing to the small number of lives involved, this fact had absolutely no significance as indicating the relative mortality of abstainers and non-abstainers generally.

"The experience of companies operating abstainers' sections in a large way, and also investigations made from time to time, both in the United States and in Great Britain, into the mortality of the two classes, go to show that the abstainers' class experiences a lower rate of mortality than the general class."

GERMANS' OFFER IS NOT GENEROUS

Count Sforza Points Out That the Amount of Reparations Mentioned Is Less Than Italy's War Debt to Allies

DEPUTIES APPROVE MINISTER'S SPEECH

Announces Conclusion of Trade Agreement With Soviet Russia—Dr. Da Cunha Speaks on League's Position

ROME, March 19.—Germany's offer at the London reparations conference to pay thirty billion gold marks in thirty years, Count Sforza, Minister of Foreign Affairs, told the Chamber of Deputies today, in a debate on the London conference, did not amount to as much as Italy would have to pay the Allies in 42 years on account of war loans.

The Foreign Minister, who represented Italy at the conference, declared that despite certain differences the Allies did their best to preserve unity. The speech was favorably received.

Discussing help for Austria, the speaker declared the Allies did not intend to renounce or postpone reparations, but only to secure guarantees to enable certain of Austria's resources to be utilized as pledges for financial operations for the benefit of that distressed country.

He announced that the negotiations for a trade agreement with Russia had been completed, and the contract would soon be signed by the Government.

League Cannot Act

GENEVA, March 19.—The League of Nations cannot act on the German protest against the enforcement of penalties unless a member of the League takes the initiative, Dr. Da Cunha, of Brazil, said in a statement today.

The German note to the League on the Allies' penalties was submitted to the council, he declared.

"As president of the council for the time being, I should like to emphasize that the League as an organization has in this case no power of action unless one of its members sees fit to take [illegible] initiative, as provided in the cov[illegible]

The Member for Slocan Sees Chances for Administration to Make Good—Mining and Roads His Theme

The outlook for the mining industry at the present time is not very promising, said Mr. William Hunter, the Veteran Conservative representative of the riding of Slocan, in continuing the debate on the budget in the Legislature on Friday evening. He pointed to the falling prices of all metals below their pre-war level, the while the cost of production remains at the high level of nearly war prices, and to the fact that the market at present is not at all encouraging.

In the case of silver lead ore, the shipper has to wait three months for payment after the ore is delivered at the smelter, and in the case of zinc ores there is no market at all. As a result, there are thousands of tons of this ore piled up around the concentrators throughout the country—or what has been produced in the last two years; and he considered it is up to the Mines Department to do all they possibly can to help remedy this condition of affairs in a practical way.

Mining Industry

Mining was one of the chief industries. It had produced a great deal of wealth in the past and would continue to do so if properly handled, and he urged the Government to give every possible assistance it could to tide over the present depression.

Mr. Hunter urged greater Government attention to the question of irrigation so far as the small farmers are concerned, stating that while there appeared to be an abundance of water the farmers are not in a position to take advantage of the supply. He suggested the Government should send in a competent man to conduct an investigation, more particularly of the Slocan Valley. He stated he had been experimenting for the last twenty years in vegetable and fruit growing in the Slocan, and he had found, in most cases, that it was useless to attempt any kind of farming without an adequate supply of water. It would require no large outlay to make the supply of water available to the farmers.

Good Roads

Mr. Hunter stressed the question of good roads in his riding, declaring the Government, in his opinion, would be justified in completing the road from Vernon to Nelson, a distance of about 210 miles, of which about 160 miles has already been built, leaving about fifty miles to be completed, that section between Vernon and Edgwood, 20 miles; between Nakusp and Roseberry, 17 miles, and between Silverton and Slocan City, 13 miles. Such a road would have the lowest elevation of any road between the Boundary country and Kootenay Lake. Such a road would prove of the ut-

LIVES ARE TAKEN BY MURDER GANGS IN CORK DISTRICT

Several Parties of Military and Police Fall Into Ambuscades—Fifteen Soldiers and Constables Are Reported Killed and Many Wounded—Lorries Wrecked on Bridge

SOME ASSAILANTS ARE ALSO KILLED

Twenty Sinn Feiners Captured, Seven Being Wounded, in Fight Near Kinsale — Much Ammunition Is Taken—Terror in County Cork—Objection to Emigration

CORK, March 19.—Seven soldiers and one policeman were killed and several wounded, while seven members of the attacking party were killed in the ambush of military and police near Kinsale early today, according to the latest reports received here. The casualties to the Crown forces were caused by the blowing up of a bridge while three lorries were crossing it.

Twenty Sinn Feiners were captured, of whom seven were wounded, and the military took a large quantity of ammunition.

A reign of terror prevails in County Cork, and the Crown forces are reported to have burned farm houses and produce in reprisal for the ambush. Search for the members of the ambushing party who escaped is being continued.

DUBLIN, March 19.—A police patrol was ambushed by 150 men last night at Castletown Roche, in County Cork, eight miles northwest of Fermoy. One constable was mortally wounded, and some of the attacking party also were injured.

A police and military patrol was ambushed near Dungarvan, and a fight lasting five hours ensued. One constable was killed and a police sergeant is missing. Several of the attackers are believed to have been killed.

Six Soldiers Killed

BELFAST, March 19.—A desperate ambush occurred at 6 o'clock this morning at Cross Barry, resulting in the death of six soldiers and the wounding of five others.

Thirty soldiers were motoring along the main road when they were attacked by 500 armed Irish republicans concealed in the thick woods. The Crown forces left the lorries and joined battle with the ambushing party, which was continued until military forces arrived, when the Sinn Feiners began to retreat.

Passengers on the Cork railway line witnessed a thrilling pursuit, in which many civilians were seen to fall. The district is in a state of ferment.

Try to Stop Emigration

DUBLIN, March 19.—Resumption of emigration to the United States has become evident, and Sinn Fein leaders are taking steps to prevent it. An emigration agent in Listowel, County Kerry, has been threatened with death if he books any males between the ages of 16 and 45 for passage to the United States.

REGARDS INFLATION AS EXPENSIVE LOAN

PARIS, March 19.—Further inflation of France's currency as a way out of the menacing financial difficulties is condemned in the report of the budget committee which was submitted to the Senate today.

Inflation is discarded by M. Cheron, head of the budget committee, as "easy, but the most expensive of all loans," and he offers, instead, the prospect of higher taxes, which the Government promised not to impose, and greater economy.

TYPHUS RAGES AT SALONICA

Many Cases Have Developed Among the Greek Refugees From Caucasia—Deplorable Conditions Reported

SALONICA, March 19.—Six hundred cases of typhus have developed among Greek colonists from the Caucasus, who have returned here.

The reports of American investigators have disclosed shocking conditions, which prompted the calling of a cabinet council, and the latter has promised immediate action.

Colonel H. A. Sah, of the American medical corps, has arrived here with a staff of doctors and nurses. Half the deaths are those of children.

Six thousand additional refugees arrived today, and 15,000 more are expected from Batum, Georgia, owing to the Bolsheviki advance. There is no shelter for them, and the American relief administration and American Red Cross are establishing a hospital of 1,000 beds. They are rushing relief supplies from Constantinople.

Schooner Attached for Claim

SEATTLE, March 19.—Fully laden and ready to sail for Australia with a cargo of Washington lumber, the five-masted sailing schooner John W. Wells was attached yesterday afternoon at Port Blakeley for the sum of $7,288.88 by the Pacific Steam Navigation Company, of Great Britain, the libellant claiming it had advanced that amount to the master of the vessel for Panama Canal tolls and crew's wages.

Mines Close at Glace Bay

GLACE BAY, N.S., March 19.—All the collieries of the Dominion Coal Company here are idle today, and will be idle until Monday. The mines, machine and foundry sections of the railway of the company are all affected by the stoppage of work. The mines will reopen Tuesday, but it is expected here they will only be worked intermittently for some time.

EUROPE IMPORTING SUPPLIES OF WHEAT

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Great Britain is again on a pre-war wheat importing basis and Germany "surprisingly near it," foreign market specialists of the bureau of markets announced today. Holland and Belgium, they added, are taking half of their pre-war requirements.

Small quantities were imported during the year by Poland and Czecho-Slovakia, whereas before the war that territory comprised some of the richest agricultural lands in Europe.

Wheat supplies in the United States are "not excessive," specialists of the bureau of markets announced, although 820,000,000 bushels are reported on hand. Of this amount 40,000,000 bushels were imported from Canada, the announcement says.

HOLD "FETE DAY" AT ST. JOSEPH'S

About twelve hundred towels and additional donations of cash were received by St. Joseph's Hospital yesterday on the occasion of their annual linen shower and "fete day." Old friends, and new gathered in time-honored fashion to bring their good wishes with their gifts, and the reunion was as successful socially as it was from the material point of view.

The long corridors and the nurses' recreation room were lavishly festooned with ivy and evergreen, daffodils and geraniums, the big teatable in the centre of the main hall holding a big bowl of primroses, while fragrant cherry blossom and tulips filled in the big alcove under the stairs, Mrs. George Fraser and Miss Florence Sehl being responsible for the pretty scheme of decorations. Mrs. Alex McDermott was general convener of the fete, and won many compliments during the afternoon for the successful manner in which the affair was organized. Those in charge of the delicious refreshments which were served during the tea hour were Mrs. J. D. Hallam and Mrs. H. A. Goward, Miss Blomquist and several uniformed nurses constituting a corps of efficient helpers. Mesdames Walter Fraser, H. E. Ridewood, George Fraser and Llewellyn Jones, and Miss E. Saunders welcomed the guests as they arrived, and a splendid musical programme was given while the visitors partook of tea, the artists being Mrs. Harry Pooley, Mrs. Harry Briggs, Miss Mamie Fraser, Miss Dorothy Dorrell, Messrs. James Hunter, D. C. Hughes, Frank Sehl and Thomas Kelway. Mrs. A. J. Gibson played the accompaniments with skill.

Makes Presentation

An old friend of the hospital, Mrs. Angus Campbell, made the formal presentation of the linen gift, speaking on behalf of the many who had been brought back to health and strength by the kindly ministrations of the nurses and the many well-wishers of the institution who wished to give "an affectionate token of their appreciation and their admiration of the noble work being accomplished in the hospital."

The Sister Superior received the gift in the name of the hospital, extending sincere thanks to the many friends who had given so generously. There were, she said, twenty-six sisters in the hospital who were giving their services gratis to the care of the poor and sick. But although able to give their services, they had not money, and the help of their friends was always appreciated. The fact that the hospital was able to do such splendid work was largely due to the generous assistance of the people of Victoria.

During the afternoon the Sister Superior received a telegram from the Mother Superior General of the Order of the Sisters of St. Ann, Lachine, congratulating St. Joseph's Hospital on the occasion of their annual fete day, and sending good wishes for the success of the celebration.

Five Men Are Killed By Chicago Explosion

Armour's Immense Grain Elevator Is Blown Up With Disastrous Results—One Body Recovered and Four Missing — Property Is Damaged for Many Miles Around

CHICAGO, March 19.—One workman was killed, four were injured, and four more are missing, as the result of an explosion which wrecked the Armour grain elevator on the Calumet River early today. Fire followed the explosion.

The elevator was one of the largest in the world, having a capacity of 10,000,000 bushels. The force of the explosion was felt miles away and shattered every window within a radius of eight blocks.

An explosion of grain dust later was established as the cause of the explosion. The elevator cost $10,000,000 to build.

The explosion was due, it was said by officials, to a fire that started in a chute. The blaze set fire to the dust-filled air, and the resulting blast rent asunder the big tower, releasing thousands of bushels of grain.

So great was the force of the explosion that it hurled great concrete blocks hundreds of feet and derailed a freight train standing on a nearby track. The few men in the elevator are thought to have been trapped by the flood of blazing grain. Up to a late hour tonight only one body had been removed. Four others are known to have escaped.

Heavy damage was caused in nearby towns by the explosion. Windows were shattered in Hammond, Whiting and East Chicago. The property loss at Whiting, according to merchants, will approximate $100,000.

Normally about five million bushels of grain are stored in the elevator, but at the time of the blast there was only about 5,000 bushels. This was destroyed by the fire that followed the explosion.

The explosion occurred just after 150 employees had quit for the day. According to one eyewitness, there were three separate explosions, the last being the most severe. The explosions tore the top off the elevator.

Early estimates put the property loss at $6,000,000.

"They must be vigilantly guarded and upheld, and any attempt to tamper with either the letter or the spirit of the British North American Act, particularly with regard to representation in the Senate or Commons, must be viewed with the gravest apprehension and should be resisted to the utmost. The terms of Confederation, being the compact of the union, should never be disregarded and should only be varied with the approval of all the provinces interested."

According to the seating arrangements, the standing of the parties, with a House of 46 members will be: Government, 27; Opposition, including Farmers, 19.

The four members elected from Northumberland as Independents all took seats on the Government side of the House.

Acid in Stomach Sours the Food

Says Excess of Hydrochloric Acid is Cause of Indigestion

A well known authority states that stomach trouble and indigestion are nearly always due to acidity—acid stomach—and not, as most folks believe, from a lack of digestive juices. He states that an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach retards digestion and starts food fermentation, then our meals sour like garbage in a can, forming acrid fluids and gases which inflate the stomach like a toy balloon. We then get that heavy, lumpy feeling in the chest, we eructate sour food, belch gas, or have heartburn, flatulence, waterbrash or nausea.

He tells us to lay aside all digestive aids and instead, get from any pharmacy four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast while it is effervescing, and furthermore to continue this for one week. While relief follows the first dose, it is important to neutralize the acidity, remove the gas-making mass, start the liver, stimulate the kidneys and thus promote a free flow of pure digestive juices.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and sodium phosphate. This harmless salts is used by thousands of people for stomach trouble with excellent results. (Advt.)

The Premier's statement, it is said, will deal, among other questions, with the Anglo-Japanese alliance, naval defence, Dominion participation in foreign affairs of the Empire and German trade.

It is announced that Premier Hughes will give members of Parliament full opportunity to discuss his statement, and the hope is entertained that the discussion will serve to strengthen the Premier's hand when he attends the Imperial conference.

POLISH-RUSSIAN TREATY SIGNED

Document Is Completed After Many Months of Negotiation—Exchange Hopes of Good Relations

RIGA, Letvia, March 19.—After months of negotiations, peace finally was signed last night by representatives of Russia, Ukraine and Poland.

Twenty-six paragraphs and five appendices make up the document. The first four paragraphs establish the Russian-Ukrainian-Polish frontier, covering the present demarkation line, and allowing for alterations under which 3,000 square kilometres are ceded to Poland near Minsk, and the district of Polesia, on the Ukrainian frontier.

All parties agree to abstain from propaganda against each other, to prohibit organizations acting against the interests of the signatories, and to abstain from any attempt to interfere with the government of territory belonging to any of the other parties.

Other paragraphs concern citizenship and repatriation, amnesty for all political crimes, and the turning over to Poland by Russia and Ukraine of all war trophies and other articles of national, historic and cultural value taken from Poland since 1772.

Russia and Ukraine agree to pay Poland 30,000,000 gold roubles during the year following ratification of the treaty. Poland, on the other hand, is released from all debts to the former Russian Empire.

Free transit of goods between the countries involved, until separate commercial treaties are adopted, is guaranteed by the part which provides for the framing of trade agreements within six weeks following the ratification of the present instrument.

Hope for Good Relations

After the signatures had been affixed to the treaty, M. Dombsky, head of the Polish mission, declared, it was the desire of Poland to be the bridge between Europe and Russia. Future relations between the two nations, he said, would depend on the execution of the peace treaty.

The conviction that good relations would be established between Russia and her neighbors, because Russia was first to recognise the right to self-determination of small nationalities, was expressed by Adolph Joffe, chief of the Russian delegation.

"Soviet Russia's enemies," he said, "have endeavored to represent her as an aggressive state, but the signing of this treaty shows her peacefulness."

M. Meirmwitch, the Lettish Foreign Minister, said he hoped, on behalf of his country, for the economic collaboration of Russia and her neighbors.

Announced at Warsaw

WARSAW, March 19.—News that the treaty of peace between Poland and Soviet Russia has been signed in Riga was received here late last night. It was immediately transmitted to President Pilsudski and the cabinet members, who were attending a gala performance in the Opera House held in celebration of the adoption by the Diet of the new constitution of the republic.

PARTIES INTERFERE WITH SILESIA VOTING

OPPELN, Upper Silesia, March 19.—Captain Lenche, who was an adherent of Dr. Wolfgang Kapp during the short-lived revolution in Berlin last March, and who was head of the press section of the Foreign Office during Dr. Kapp's regime, was arrested yesterday by Italian occupation troops. It was alleged he was at the head of a military organization aiming to uphold German claims in Silesia by force if necessary, should the plebiscite Sunday go in favor of the Poles.

He was released later, however, on offering to procure proof that he was a reporter for a German newspaper. Coincident with the arrest of Captain Lenche came reports from Gleiswitz that two Poles had been shot and killed by plebiscite police while urging interference with the plebiscite in favor of Poland.

NO ADDITIONAL TAX ON ARGENTINE WHEAT

BUENOS AYRES, March 19.—Wheat exported during the present year will not be subjected to an additional export tax, President Irigoyen declared yesterday.

An agreement has been reached, he said, between local exporters and the government to fix weekly minimum prices in Argentina.

The uncertainty regarding the levy of an additional tax, such as was suddenly imposed last year, is said to have been one of the causes of the recent weakness of the wheat market here.

An Old Recipe To Darken Hair

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Grey, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. MR. STEVENS EXPECTS GENERAL ELECTION

TORONTO, March 19. — H. H. Stevens, M.P. for Centre Vancouver, addressing the Ward Six Conservative Association here last night, said that the citizens of Canada would soon be called upon to choose in the matter of government. An election was near, he said, and the voters would have to decide whether they wanted a stable government or a vacillating policy such as that of Hon. Mackenzie King, the Liberal leader.

Undoubtedly, he said, the big issue would be free trade as against protection. Speaking on behalf of the Meighen Government, Mr. Stevens said: "We say there must be adequate protection for Canadian industries to maintain them in Canada in a prosperous condition."

Mr. Stevens added that some tariff increases might be expected.

TANGLE ARISES AT COAL INQUIRY

Mr. Cassidy Gets Himself Into Trouble With Commissioner Henderson and Counsel Congdon Over Examination

VANCOUVER, March 19.—Charles Jones, civic weight and measures officer, told the Coal Commission this morning that during the last week in November, and the first two in December, the city had stopped sixty loads of coal on the street and found that only one was short of weight.

During the examination Robert Cassidy, K.C., appearing for the citizens, got himself into difficulties with both Commissioner Henderson and F. T. Congdon. The first trouble arose during the examination of City Purchasing Agent Stuart, when Mr. Cassidy charged Mr. Congdon with trying to "salve over" the whole situation for the dealers.

Mr. Congdon replied: "He is old and doesn't know any better. I don't intend to let my learned friend tell me how to conduct my affairs."

The next time, Mr. Henderson stopped Mr. Cassidy to ask the witness a question when he was interrupted by Mr. Cassidy. The Commissioner said:

"Permit me, Mr. Cassidy, to interject and ask questions, and please don't use that querulous, complaining tone toward the witness."

JAPAN WILL HOLD TO YAP MANDATE

Viscount Uchida, Foreign Minister, Gives Promise to Diet Committee—Anti-Japanese Agitation in United States

TOKIO, March 19.—Japan will stand firmly on her mandate over the Island of Yap, Viscount Uchida, Foreign Minister, declared at a meeting of a Diet committee yesterday.

Representative Uchara asked whether the attitude of the United States, Great Britain and the League of Nations council regarding Yap did not affect Japan's interests, and whether Japan intended to insist on her rights under the mandate. Viscount Uchida replied in the affirmative to the latter questions.

Representative Uchara said that American anti-Japanese agitation was spreading to other States besides California, declaring this probably was due to California agitators communicating with persons similarly disposed in other States.

He charged John E. Stevens, of Chicago, head of the American railway mission in Siberia, with carrying on an anti-Japanese movement.

Viscount Uchida replied that he knew nothing of the allegations against Mr. Stevens, but said the Government was adopting every possible means to prevent the passage of laws similar to those adopted in California.

The Foreign Minister asserted that the trade agreement between Great Britain and Soviet Russia was only a temporary measure. Hitherto, M. Uchida said, Japan had kept in touch with the soviets, but it might be necessary to map out a policy conforming to that of other countries. He believed the Moscow and Chita Soviet Governments should be dealt with separately.

Ten members of the House of Representatives will visit America this Summer, it was announced.

HONOLULU, March 19.—The Japanese House of Representatives defeated overwhelmingly today a motion declaring a want of confidence in the Hara Ministry, based on six charges connected with the alleged South Manchuria railway scandals, a Tokio cable message to The Nippu Jiji, Japanese language newspaper here, says.

WILL ORGANIZE PLAN FOR FINANCIAL AID

LONDON, March 19.—Sir Drummond Fraser, the Manchester banker and financier, has been appointed by the economic and finance committee of the League of Nations as organiser of the scheme of international credits proposed by Dr. Termeulen, the Dutch financial expert, at the Brussels financial conference last October.

Sir Drummond's first task will be to visit impoverished countries for the purpose of making a report on the extent which they can take advantage of the plan.

Briefly, the scheme is to finance essential imports into these countries by the issue of gold bonds secured by assigned assets in the importing country.

Spanish Radicals Deported

NEW YORK, March 18.—Sixty-five Spanish Radicals were deported today on the steamship Mongolia, bound for Vigo, Spain. They were brought to this port by Department of Justice officials from Seattle, Norfolk, Va., and other cities.

YUKON EXPECTS ACTIVE SEASON

Preparations for Gold and Silver Mining Are Made on Large Scale—Many Men Returning From Outside

DAWSON, March 19—The Yukon is planning Spring operations on a large scale. The season is expected to be one of the busiest in many years. There will be extensive gold dredging and hydraulics, and rich new silver properties are to be opened.

Two or three new companies, in addition to the Yukon Gold, have been looking into silver properties in the Mayo district, including Keno Hill, Rambler Hill, Mount Cameron and Lookout Mountain.

Work will begin in about ten days on a machine shop, which will engage fifty men preparing dredges for Upper Dominion Creek, Gold Run Creek and the Klondike Valley. After the first week in May the dredge fleet will be able to secure hydro-electric power. Hydraulics will start a little later.

The gold and silver yield will aggregate several millions this year in the Territory.

Many old-timers who were able to secure work outside during the unemployment period are returning to Dawson. Regular mail stages are coming through every week, drawn by from four to six horses, and they bring many passengers. New arrivals also are coming on foot. It is expected that the snow will begin to leave the trails within two weeks. Auto trucks are to be put into service on the southern half of the trail when the roads are sufficiently clear of snow.

HUMORIST AUTHOR IS DEAD IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, March 19.—Bert Loston Taylor, noted humorist, familiarly known as "B.L.T.," the initials with which he signed his daily column, "A Line o' Type or Two," on the editorial page of The Chicago Tribune, died of pneumonia at his home here today.

He was born in Goshen, Mass., in 1866, entered newspaper work in Plainfield, N.H., editing The Duluth News-Tribune for three years before coming to Chicago. He founded his Tribune column in 1901, but two years later went to New York to contribute to Puck, The Sun, and other publications. He returned here in 1909 to resume the conduct of his column.

Among his better known writings were "The Well in the Woods," "The Pipe Smoke Carry," "The Charlatans," "Motley Treasures," and "A Line o' Verse or Two."

SINN FEIN TRICKERY USED IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL, March 19.—A sensational incident connected with the campaign for the Irish relief fund in Montreal came to light today, when it was learned that a number of relief circulars have been sent out in envelopes enclosing also literature of the Self-Determination for Ireland League, obviously Sinn Fein propaganda.

An attempt is being made to secure the names of all those who received the communications, with the object of sending a letter of explanation to each one.

AUSTRIAN JOURNALS DISLIKE AID PLANS

VIENNA, March 19.—The plan of the Allies to assist Austria, as outlined in dispatches from London today, was greeted without enthusiasm by this afternoon's newspapers. In general the journals express disapproval of the stipulation that the League of Nations shall administer her internal resources of revenue.

Under the Austrian plan of relief the revenues from the customs and the tobacco monopoly would be administered by the financial committee of the League of Nations as security for payment of sums advanced to Austria and due from her under the peace treaty.

Toledo Postoffice Robbery

TOLEDO, O., March 19.—Eighteen individuals, two of them women, were named in indictments returned by the federal grand jury here late yesterday in connection with the robbery of the central postoffice last February 17, when five armed men held up three railway mail clerks and escaped with mail sacks containing more than $1,000,000 in cash and negotiable papers.

Disease in Jamaica

Don't Use Drugs for Constipation

Bathe Internally—The One Natural Way

Did you ever know of any person who was permanently cured of constipation by taking drugs of any kind? Drugs simply force Nature, and larger doses are required from time to time until the trouble becomes chronic.

Internal Bathing with the J.B.L. Cascade is the only permanent relief from Constipation. It keeps the Colon, or large lower intestine, free from all accumulation. Soon the system performs its regular functions, and there is no further trouble.

Mr. F. Babin, Proprietor Alexandria Hotel, Ottawa, writes: "The J.B.L. Cascade has made a new man of me. I would not sell it for all the money in this world if I could not get another. Through my recommendation I know of a number of my friends who have been using it with the same satisfaction. For people troubled with Constipation, I say it is a godsend, and can heartily recommend it."

The J.B.L. Cascade is the only perfect appliance for Internal Bathing ever devised. It is endorsed by over half a million enthusiastic users. Ask to have it explained to you at D. E. Campbell's, Druggist, Victoria, B.C., or write for booklet to Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute, 163 College St., Toronto. (Advt.)

SOLDIERS' INSURANCE ACT IS CONSIDERED

OTTAWA, March 18.—Amendments to the Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act were under review today before the special committee of Parliament. Most of the amendments proposed were administrative in nature, and were explained by G. D. Finlayson, superintendent of insurance.

Extension of the Act to cover accident and sickness benefits to returned men was urged by the Great War Veterans' Association, but the proposal was opposed on the ground that it would add enormously to costs of administration and would present immense difficulties.

The committee adjourned at 1 o'clock until Monday morning next, when the Great War Veterans' Association pension proposals will be taken up.

Kehoe's Sentence Deferred

VANCOUVER, March 18.—As the result of an application made in County Court today to Judge Howay by counsel for Joseph Kehoe, who was convicted and sentenced to five years and twenty-four lashes, after pleading guilty to eight charges of robbery with violence, and the storm of protest raised by returned soldiers' organizations, the sentence may be reduced and the lashes remitted. Judge Howay adjourned the application until Tuesday, when further evidence as to Kehoe's mental and physical condition will be given.

COMMONS DEALS WITH ESTIMATES

Votes for Department of Justice Are Passed—Minister Reports Increase in Eastern Penitentiary Inmates

OTTAWA, March 19.—In the Commons last night the salaries of the Justice Department, totalling $190,832, an increase of $5,153 over the preceding period, were passed, with contingencies of $250,000, also an increase of $10,000.

Two items, miscellaneous expenditure, $13,200, and Supreme Court, $20,000, were also carried.

The estimate of $42,300 for the administration of justice in the Yukon territory, a decrease of $3,000 compared with last year, was approved.

After several minor items from the Department of Justice, the House went into the estimates for penitentiaries, which shows an increase of $275,000 compared with last year.

Replying to many questions, Hon. Mr. Doherty said there was an increase in the number of penitentiary inmates in the Eastern provinces, but not in the West. Most of the convictions in the last few months had been for crimes of violence. Last year penitentiaries cost the country $1,096,600; this year the estimate is $1,371,600. The cost per inmate was $1.61 a day.

MANY APPLICANTS FOR BOARD OF CONTROL

Strong Effort Being Made to Have One Returned Soldier on Liquor Governing Body—Many Applications

The sparring for place as members of the Board of Control to be named under the new Moderation Liquor Act has become acute, and within the past week or two members have been canvassed in the interests of various parties who, and whose friends, believe they have claims upon the Government.

In addition to Mr. J. H. Falconer, of Vancouver, and Mr. P. Dougherty, the latter of whom was a defeated Liberal candidate in Vancouver at the recent general election campaign, there are other names coming into prominence.

In all some 400 applications for appointments under the new act have been received by the Government. Of course, the Board of Control, the members of which will draw down a substantial remuneration, is the chief plum, but there are other subordinate jobs which will be what may be termed substantial ones.

Colonel Leckie, brother of Brig.-Gen. Leckie, and whose war record is an exceptional one from the point of work done and honors secured, is in the running and is declared to be a strong favorite. Then there is Col. Tobin, who also made good overseas. Undoubtedly the claims of the veterans will be considered in making appointments to the board, and whatever may be the general political complexion of the governing body by which the new Moderation Act will be administered there will be found one veteran thereon. Mr. J. Axon, former head of the G.W.V.A. branch in Victoria, is also in the running.

BRING SUIT AGAINST ATTORNEY-GENERAL

DUNNVILLE, March 19.—It was announced this morning that Walter Robb, solicitor, had been instructed to bring an action for libel against Hon. W. E. Raney, Attorney-General for Ontario, on behalf of Frank Lalor, M.P. for Haldimand, and David Hastings, the local magistrate, who has been under suspension since last December.

The writs will be issued in the Supreme Court on Monday, and the sum of $50,000 will be asked for.

The actions are the result of statements alleged to have been made to the delegation which waited on the Attorney-General some months ago, asking that Mr. Hastings be reinstated, and a copy of which is alleged to have been issued to the Toronto press at the time.

NO DAYLIGHT SAVING ADOPTED BY RAILWAYS

MONTREAL, March 19.—Daylight saving time has not been adopted and will not be adopted by the railways of Canada this year, as far as is known at present. A special Federal enactment would be necessary before the railways could make this change in time, and such an enactment has not been asked.

This statement was issued this morning by the Railway Association of Canada to clear up a misunderstanding which arose out of an appeal issued by the railways to various municipalities asking, if they did adopt daylight saving time, to make it effective all at one time. The railways suggested that this should be May 1 and October 2, as these are the dates on which the railways make their usual Spring and Autumn timetable changes.

ACCUSED OF PLOTTING AGAINST SAVINKOFF

WARSAW, March 19. — General Nicola Peremkin, commander of the Third Russian anti-Bolshevik army, two members of his staff, and a woman giving her name as Countess Janae Zammojska, have been arrested by Polish army intelligence operatives. They are accused of complicity in a plot against the life of Boris Savinkoff, minister of war in the Kerensky cabinet established in Petrograd in 1917, and leader of the Russian Social Revolutionaries in Poland.

SENATOR BORAH WANTS TRADE WITH RUSSIA

WASHINGTON, March 19. — The trade agreement recently signed between Great Britain and Soviet Russia is to all intents and purposes a recognition by the British Government of the Russian soviet government, said Senator Borah, one of the peace treaty irreconcilables, yesterday.

He said the United States should follow the example of Great Britain, and without delay resume trade relations with Russia, as he regarded the action of Great Britain as of vast benefit to the people of that country.

VETERANS QUESTION EMPLOYMENT METHODS

Say Men Taken on at Drydock Not Employed in Manner Stipulated — Communicate With Federal Member

The Esquimalt Veterans of France, who have taken up with the Federal member for Nanaimo the whole question of an equitable arrangement regarding employment at the new drydock, have received a wire from Mr. McIntosh, reading:

"Minister has instructed Bulger, fair wage officer, to inform Lyall's representative that all sub-contracts must carry fair wage clause and that payment thereof would be strictly enforced. Have no information re concerning inspectors."

This was in reply to a communication from the Veterans of Esquimalt, supported by the parent body in Victoria, with reference to the methods said to be used in engaging men, and the guarantee that returned men should be given preference in employment. The explanatory letter from the Veterans to Mr. McIntosh follows:

"As you are aware, operations have now commenced upon the Esquimalt drydock, but it is very hard to get any definite information re the methods to be adopted in employing labor. At present there are about fourteen men on the job clearing land. The men were employed direct and not through the labor bureau, as promised by the Dominion Minister of Labor. They are paid at the rate of 40c per hour for nine hours, viz., $3.60, which is certainly not the current rate of pay for laborers. There is no guarantee that ex-service men have been given the preference of this employment, and it is the common opinion, both in Esquimalt and Victoria, that political influence will carry the day in the majority of jobs unless the Government insists on the positions being filled through the labor bureau in the proper way.

"Could you kindly take up this matter immediately with Mr. Robertson, the Minister of Labor, and ask him to insist that positions be filled through the labor bureau at Victoria?

"Regarding Government inspectors, could you also inform me of the names of the two appointed, if appointed, to represent the Government on this drydock, as I understand that of the two names already mentioned in this respect, none are returned soldiers?

"Yours very truly,
"W. DAWSON,
"President, Esquimalt Chapter, Veterans of France."

By Monday, it is expected, the investigation into the matter of the disposition of the $1,300 paid by the Government to Mrs. Archambault in connection with the death of her son, killed in the Okhalla prison while undergoing sentence, will be proceeded with by the Public Accounts Committee of the Legislature. The committee wants to know why Mr. W. W. B. McInnes secured $500 of that amount as fees. Mr. McInnes will be called before the committee on Tuesday.

The name of the undertaker who charged Mrs. Archambault $432 for burying her son is in the possession of the committee, and a representative of the firm, Messrs. T. Edwards & Company, of Vancouver, will come to Victoria if by Monday some satisfactory explanation is not forthcoming for this charge.

In the course of the discussion Mr. Bowser suggested that the Government would have buried the son if the mother had not desired to make the arrangements herself, and Mr. A. M. Johnston, Deputy Attorney-General, stated that was the case. In fact, the Government was keenly desirous of knowing all the details.

As for the arrangement with Mr. McInnes, members of the committee felt that whatever the excessive charge might have been, there was doubt as to whether it could do anything in connection therewith.

The case of David McCallum, former technical officer of the Department of Labor, was inquired into by the committee. This was the case where the official was sent to Nelson and Silverton districts to investigate on behalf of the Government the activities of the O.B.U.

Mr. Johnson stated that McCallum was met by "a big buck," formerly a policeman, who enticed the official to get drunk. When McCallum woke up at Silverton he was accused of theft, jewelry having been found in his pockets. It was a "plant," claimed Mr. Johnson, and Mr. Bowser stated a paper had charged it was a Bowser plant.

SCHOOL TAXATION.

An amendment to the Public Schools Act gives School Boards the right to create a reserve fund for future building operations by the levy of a mill rate per annum. There is no secret made of the reason which has inspired this amendment, for the Minister of Education explains that the fund to be created is to cover extraordinary expenditures which are now often refused to School Boards. Thus the little power now exercised over school expenditures by municipal councils, and through them by the people themselves, is to be abrogated still further and a mill rate levy, over and above existing taxation on property owners, is to be imposed, seemingly without the municipal authorities or the ratepayers having any say in the matter.

We are fully in accord with Mr. Thomas Pearson (Richmond) that the power proposed to be given to school trustees, is a dangerous one. It means additional taxation of property owners. A one mill levy in Victoria would bring in to the School Board a sum of $45,000 per annum over and above what the City Council sanctions in the ordinary school estimates, and the addition of this taxation, which no doubt would be imposed if the authority existed, would bring the cost of education to an arbitrary figure. Those who pay for education should have an absolute right to say what are the financial limits that should be imposed. The amendment to the Public Schools Act is simply designed so that municipal councils will have no jurisdiction whatever in the future over the extraordinary expenditures proposed by School Boards.

We are perfectly aware of the angle from which pressure was brought to bear on the Minister of Education to introduce the amendment of which we complain. It is surprising, however, that the breadth of vision which should characterise his office should have been blurred, for it is obvious that Dr. MacLean had failed to appreciate the dangerous precedent involved. The mill rate levy means that municipal councils are to be shorn of their last vestige of power over School Board expenditures and the ratepayers are no longer to have any opportunity of expressing their will on money by-laws for educational purposes. This is an autocratic policy which will be deeply resented. The time has come when a much more rigid supervision than any of the past must be exercised over school expenditures, because there are sound reasons to believe that some of the money now spent is not being used to the best advantage of the children. The people of municipalities are not prepared for heavier taxation of an arbitrary character which takes away from them the right to express the majority will on extraordinary school expenditures.

IN THE LEGISLATURE.

The Provincial Legislature deserves commendation for the comparatively little time which is being wasted this session in political recriminations. There is some excuse for this practice prevailing in a session immediately prior to a general election: there is none during the first session of a newly elected Legislature. The chief contentious measure now being considered is the Liquor Control Bill, and in this the great majority of the members have shown a restraint which is praiseworthy. No doubt time has been wasted in beating about the bush, and some of the members appear afraid to disclose their views on the liquor issue, but this fear is an inheritance from the years during which Prohibition has been in force. In previous sessions, with perhaps one or two exceptions, it would have been impossible to get an opinion from a member, because they were all sitting on the fence, not being sure of the trend of popular sentiment. The plebiscite result served to clear the atmosphere and infuse courage into the elected representatives of the people, but that courage, in the case of some individuals, is of the wavering variety.

No doubt the air of indecision which pervades the Legislature as a whole on certain aspects of the Liquor Control Bill is to be explained by the terms of the reference put to the people and the difficulty in interpreting their desire. That indecision we can to some extent share, for there were many reasons which led to the defeat of Prohibition. On this account the viewpoint that the Liquor Control Act during its first year of operation will be entirely experimental is a justifiable one, but the Legislature has a duty in keeping that experiment within reasonable bounds. So far as we can note, and as we predicted, the Bill has not been changed in any radical sense, though the Legislature has had it within its privilege to make any amendments desired, without being bound down by governmental pressure. There are some clauses passed which we do not think will make for the smooth operation of the law, but the people are prepared to give the Act, as finally framed, an honest and sincere trial, and there is also a widespread desire to help the Government in the matter of enforcement. There will, accordingly, be a feeling of relief when it passes beyond the debatable stage, and is within a reasonable time of becoming law.

The practice of transacting business with the minimum waste of time might well be extended to the debate on the Budget. Since there is little further legislation contemplated during the present session the viewpoints of the members on affairs in general are not of particular value in advancing Provincial development. It was hoped that the session would end before Easter, but that is unlikely. So long as it continues there is a feeling of uncertainty about the putting into effect of the policies under consideration. In his Budget speech Mr. Hart confined himself to financial matters, and the members who speak in the debate might take their cue from the Minister of Finance who has set an excellent example.

A LAND CLEARING POLICY.

One of the recommendations made by the United Farmers of British Columbia to the Provincial Government, namely, that dealing with a land clearing policy, deserves earnest consideration. Whether or not the plan actually proposed would be the best we are not in a position to say, but there is hardly a doubt that in a Province like this there should be some governmental assistance in land clearing. The Land Settlement Board is spending large sums of money yearly though the results are hardly noticeable in the increased agricultural production of the Province. That organization, however, if given the power, would be in a fair way to justify its existence if a land clearing scheme were devised, and there is no reason why the moneys expended on such a policy should not be recoverable.

The Government could engage in land clearing on a scale which would reduce the present cost. The enterprise could be confined to areas within easy reach of markets, which would mean that the land thus thrown open for settlement could be developed on a paying scale without delay. Land clearing, in many areas of the Province, is now a veritable nightmare, and is an overwhelming reason why settlements are sparse. We would not advocate for a moment a policy which would pledge the Government to carry out land clearing in any and every district where a farmer is located, for the transportation of machinery and labor would prove too costly. There should be a limited plan as a commencement which could be extended as results justified increased expenditures, and the initial efforts should be confined to districts containing populous communities, or else to those where the farmers have easy access to railways.

The Government, no doubt, can advance a cogent argument that it should not engage in a policy of this character without ascertaining the cost. In that case, some experimental work should be done first. Among both farmers and intending settlers there is a well defined idea that a policy of governmental assistance towards land clearing would be a development asset of very great value. Premier Oliver, who is a farmer, knows the obstacles there are which prevent people settling on the land. One of the greatest of these is the cost and labor involved in clearing the land. If the Government can ameliorate this condition it will have achieved something well worth while.

SUMMER TIME.

Advocates of daylight saving have the experience of Great Britain on their side in urging that the clocks should be advanced at an early date in the Spring. In Britain the innovation was first introduced in 1916, and in that year daylight saving came into effect on May 21, and ceased on September 30. An inquiry instituted by the Government led to an earlier day being selected for the change in 1917, when the clocks were put forward on April 8, the arrangement coming to an end on September 17. In 1918 Summer time, as it is called in Britain, began on March 24, in 1919 on March 30, and in 1920 on March 28. In the latter year the Summer time ended on October 25. An arrangement somewhat similar is to prevail this year. There is still no intimation locally of when the change is to go into effect.

EAST SAANICH ROAD.

On a couple of occasions we have urged the Saanich municipality to pave the crossings of the old V. & S. Railway and of a disused track of the B.C. Electric Railway a short distance beyond Saanichton. The municipality is quite aware of the handicap these crossings, in their present state, are to traffic on the road, but is unable to act without permission from the liquidator of the Victoria and Sidney line. Permission to lay the pavement on the B.C. Electric crossing was available a year ago, and maintains today, so that, as far as this company is concerned, the repairs can be effected. Some steps should be taken to secure the same permission from the liquidator of the V. & S. Railway, in which case we are informed that Saanich will make the needed repairs within a week.

The travelling public will be grateful to Mr. F. M. Preston, the City Engineer, for seeing to the cutting down of shrubbery and trees which obstructed the view on the East Saanich Road at Little's corner on the way from Royal Oak to Elk Lake. The trees were on the city's Elk Lake property. The growth had made it impossible for motorists to see ahead on the roadway, and while this obstruction to vision prevailed there was always the danger of accident. The City Engineer was prompt to realize the justice of the complaint made, and has had the necesary work done.

Liquor Control Bill

Sir,—I am glad to see that the Liberty League has woke up and has begun to rub its eyes. It is about time. May I address the voters who voted for Government control, through your columns?

Fellow Citizens: We seem to be very quiescent and trusting. I suppose the idea is that we may trust the Government and the members of the House to protect our rights, and to give effect to our will. I want to tell you that we must take an interest now, while the bill is in the making, or we will wake up and find that we have been betrayed. When we voted against prohibition, we thought we were fighting for our liberty, and for a sane law without any of the irksome clauses which we submitted to under the prohibition law, merely as a war measure. We voted for the restoration of our rights. It seems to me that we cannot trust the Government or the members; there are too many cross-currents, and if we want to preserve our rights we will have to make our voice strongly heard right now, either by holding demonstrations or otherwise. So little does the Government think of our rights or liberty that I want to call your attention to the remarks of the Attorney-General who, on Wednesday, was reported by The Times as stating that in order to enforce this law, he must "ride roughshod over the people." Then we have Premier Oliver, when answering a deputation of returned soldiers, and in answer to the soldiers, remarking about British liberty, stating, that he did not want any mealy-mouthed sentimentality, or words to that effect. Now I am going to show you the sort of "Liberty" you are going to have in this bill, unless we support Canon Hinchliffe and show the Government that we do not intend to be ridden roughshod over by the Attorney-General, or anyone else.

Under Section 31, which refers to sealing of liquor, we have in Subsection 3, this clause: "Any inspector or constable who finds liquor which, in his opinion, is had or kept by any person in violation of the provisions of this section may, without laying any information or obtaining any warrant, forthwith seize," etc. Remember that the inspectors will be entering your houses to seal your liquors; he will know what you have, and are we to understand that if, upon coming, he "finds" liquor which "in his opinion" is intended for unlawful purposes, he may seize it?

Section 62 gives the police power to enter and search your house with a warrant, so his powers are already ample, but we have in Section 63 the following: "Any inspector appointed under this act, or any constable, if he believes that liquor is unlawfully kept, or kept for unlawful purposes, on the lands or person or persons, shall have power, without warrant, to search for such liquor wherever he may suspect it to be, and if need be by force," etc. This clause gives them the right to enter your lands without warrant. Now look at Section 64: "Where the inspector or constable in making, or attempting to make, any search under the authority conferred by Sections 62 or 63 of this act, finds in any building or place any liquor which in his opinion is unlawfully kept or kept for unlawful purposes . . . he may forthwith seize," etc. If the word "land" is not intended to cover buildings, why include Section 63 in this section, and what is meant by "finds in any building"? As if that is not bad enough, we have this confirmed in Section 66, Subsection 2, which reads: "When liquor is found on any premises or in any place in such quantities as to satisfy the inspector or constable that such liquor is being kept contrary to any of the provisions of this act, it shall be lawful for the inspector or constable, without laying any information or obtaining any warrant, to seize and remove, by force, if necessary," etc. Now look at Section 78. This reads: "If, on the prosecution of any person charged with committing an offence against this act, in selling or keeping for sale, giving or keeping or having or purchasing or receiving of liquor, prima facie proof is given that such person had in his possession or charge or control any liquor in respect of or concerning which he is being prosecuted, then unless such person proves that he did not commit the offence with which he is charged, he may be convicted of the offence."

Under Section 79 (1) we have this: "The burden of proving right to have or keep or sell or give or purchase or consume liquor shall be on the person accused of improperly or unlawfully having, keeping or selling or giving or purchasing or consuming such liquor. This clause is contrary to all the fundamental principles of British justice.

Citizens: I want specially to call your attention to the above clauses. The police under Section 63 may enter, without warrant, your land; under Section 64 Subsection 2, he may enter your premises, also without warrant, if looking through your window he sees or "finds" any liquor, he has only got to say that "he believes that you are keeping it for unlawful purposes, or that the quantity is too "large," and when you are prosecuted the fact that you have liquor under your "control" is proof that you have it for unlawful purposes unless you can prove yourself innocent. Remember that the police have to prove nothing, you will be hauled up to court, will be put to legal expenses for your defence, and you have to prove yourself innocent. If this is not damnable, what is? Verily they are trying to ride roughshod over us.

I have often heard it said by Supreme Court judges when charging juries, that it is a fundamental principle of British justice that it is better that ten guilty men should escape the penalty of the law than that one innocent man shall be unjustly convicted. But the present Provincial Government would seem to have no such "mealy sentimentality." Now, citizens, think over it, and I think you will agree with me that it is time we make our voice heard in unmistakable terms.

Don't run away with the idea that the inspectors, referred to there, are ordinary police inspectors, for under Section 97 we have: "If he deems it advisable for the purpose of due enforcement of this act, the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council (that is the Attorney-General) may appoint one or more inspectors or prosecuting officers." Now if these inspectors or prosecuting officers should be some of the fanatical prohibitionists, I can just imagine what would happen, and we may have murder done, as in Ontario.

The police have ample powers under Section 62, and all these other sections should be deleted, and we must utter strong protests.

It will have to be done right now; if we wait until the bill becomes law, and the House dissolves, it will be too late.

Citizens, if you value your rights, you must think over the above and decide whether you intend that the Attorney-General shall ride roughshod over us or not.

Entertainment Centre

Sir,—As the ultimate success of such an undertaking will depend largely on the regular patronage of Victoria citizens, the site chosen should be one easily accessible to the majority of residents. It will make but little difference to tourists and visitors, with ample leisure to spare, where the centre is located. They will be sure to patronize it anyhow.

I cannot agree with the view expressed by one of your correspondents that suggestions for sites should be left to competitors if designs are invited in competition. Let a site be decided on first (by giving the public an opportunity of voting on alternative locations, if thought desirable); then when architects are invited to submit designs they will be working on intelligent lines, viz., to plan the best possible arrangement of the various buildings on a given site.

As to possible sites, the northwest corner of Beacon Hill Park appears to have many points of advantage compared with others that have been proposed. It is conveniently near town, being but three-quarters of a mile from the City Hall; in fact, about as central a site as could be found. Situated at the south end of Douglas Street, the main artery of the city, it could be well served by the B.C. Electric if a short extension of lines was put in and a loop made with Government Street carline by way of Superior Street. The centre would be within easy walking distance of the C.P.R. boats, Empress Hotel, etc., a consideration from the tourist point of view.

At present this corner of the park has rather a neglected appearance, and it would undoubtedly add to the beauty of the park as a whole if utilized for the Winter Garden centre.

The site in rear of the Empress Hotel is too small. Even if it should be considered large enough for a start, there is no telling what the scheme might eventually develop into, and it is well to allow room for expansion.

The Dallas Road would seem to be the least satisfactory of the three sites usually spoken of in connection with the scheme. Apart from the view (and no one can deny it is a grand one) there seems nothing in its favor. The position is very exposed —even on Summer evenings the cold breezes off the Straits make a stroll in that direction uncomfortable for some people. Bearing in mind that the Entertainment Centre is intended for all-the-year-round use, is it advisable to risk its success for the sake of a view? Views can be had on all sides round Victoria.

Answers to Last Week's Questions

A. to question 1—Some remarkable discoveries of minerals have been made accidentally in Canada; just as the diamond mines of South Africa were. Silver was discovered in the Cobalt district by a prospector stumbling on a piece of rock containing silver which when assayed showed exceptional richness, and that was followed by the further discovery of rich deposits from which millions worth of silver has been taken. Nickel was discovered near Sudbury in building the C.P.R.—a rock cutting revealing the white metal and the richest nickel mine in the world, while gold was first discovered on Klondyke Creek, Yukon, by accident.

A. to question 2—Canada's oldest existing chartered bank is the Bank of Montreal, dating from 1817.

A. to question 3—The battle of Lundy's Lane has been called the Gettysburg of the war of 1812-14 because it was the last serious struggle. It was fought on July 25, 1814, near Niagara Falls, with Drummond in charge of the British and Canadian forces and Brown of the Americans. The conflict raged for hours and well into the night, the knoll of land held by the British being frequently charged, but finally the American army withdrew and Drummond held the position. While some historians claim it was a drawn battle, the fact that the enemy retired is held to the contrary.

A. to question 4—Canada now has four women members of Legislatures —in Manitoba, Alberta and British Columbia.

A. to question 5—Montgomery's attack on Quebec took place in the early hours of the New Year of 1776, after a month's bombardment of the stronghold. Carleton held the city with a garrison of 160 and 150 pieces of artillery. The attack on the first barricade resulted in the death of Montgomery and the repulse of the enemy.

A. to question 6—Canada's population growth by decades is as follows: 1871—17.23 per cent; 1881—11.76 per cent; 1891—14.13 per cent; 1911—34 per cent, the highest rate of increase of any country in the world during that time.

A. to question 7—The Neutral Tribe of Indians occupied the territory now known as the Niagara Peninsula, when the Iroquois and Hurons were battling for supremacy. They were swept out of existence by the two opposing forces with not a single trace of them remaining.

A. to question 8—The treaty of Paris in 1763 ended the reign of France in Canada following the Battle of the Plains of Abraham in 1759, and the capture of Montreal by Amherst in 1760. All France now owns in the Western world are the two small islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

A. to question 9—The Clergy Reserves mentioned in Canadian histories were based upon an Imperial Act of Parliament passed in 1791, in which power was given the rulers to reserve out of all future grants of land in Upper and Lower Canada as well in respect of all past grants, an allotment for the support of a Protestant clergy equal in value to the seventh part of the lands so granted. This was for the benefit of the Established Church of England and was one of the causes that led to the uprisings of 1837-8 and divided the population into two hostile camps.

A. to question 10—"Big Thunder" and "Little Thunder" were two public men in Canada—Hon. E. B. Wood, the former, and Hon. Arthur S. Hardy the latter, both of whom came from the County of Brant and represented it in Parliament and Legislature. Both were famous as speakers and had voices that enabled them to speak in trumpet tones.

The body lay in state at the Masonic Hall until two o'clock in the afternoon and was viewed by many friends of the departed gentleman, including Sir James Douglas, first governor of the Colony under whom deceased was Crown Solicitor. The pallbearers were His Worship Mayor Robertson, T. C. Nuttall, Esq., High Sheriff Elliott, Robert Beaven, Esq., J. C. Nicholson, Esq., Edwin Johnson, Esq., J. F. McCreight, Esq., and Lumley Franklin, Esq. The cortege marched to Christ Church, where the burial service of the Church of England was read by Very Rev. Dean Cridge. The choir of the church assisted in the service.

Revolution in France—Paris dispatch: Three thousand men have blockaded Montmartre. Several officers have been taken prisoners. A large force of National Guards hold the hill. Grande Prairie Store Burned

EDMONTON, March 18.—The departmental store, stock and building of Crummy Brothers, Ltd., Grande Prairie, was entirely destroyed by fire this morning. The loss is estimated at $100,000. The wholesale warehouse, furniture store and implement warehouse of the same concern were not damaged.

HOARDINGS MEASURE SENT TO SCRAP HEAP

Mr. M. B. Jackson's Effort to Eliminate Advertising Signs at Active Pass Meets End—Property Rights Affected

The advertising hoardings which adorn the beautiful shores of Active Pass and the removal of which was sought by Mr. M. B. Jackson, Liberal member for the Islands, will remain where they are for some further time.

When the bill introduced by Mr. Jackson to accomplish his object, was under fire in the Legislature Friday afternoon, Mr. Bowser's motion that the committee rise without a report was approved, and this procedure kills the measure.

When the bill came up for consideration in the committee stage, Mr. M. A. Macdnald, Vancouver, suggested there was much more in it than appeared on the surface, that interests other than those apparent might be affected. Often owners of land leased sites for such hoardings, and lessors had valuable rights, he said.

Mr. W. J. Bowser had understood that Major Burde had moved the adjournment of the debate on the second reading of the bill, but that when it came up he had not been in his place, and the debate was stood over.

Major Burde said he had arranged that the bill should pass second reading without his speaking.

Mr. Bowser: "My friend is passing bills? He has more power then, than any other member in this House."

Continuing, Mr. Bowser said it was all very well to be as aesthetic as the member for the Islands, but property rights were being affected, and he was surprised that Mr. Jackson, who was so strong on constitutional matters, should so casually wipe out those rights. Tourists and others who objected to those signs at the Pass could go to the other side of the boat. Such a precedent adopted in the unorganized districts would perhaps lead to its being extended to the cities, in which the hoarding industry involves large sums. How, too, was it proposed to compensate the owners whose rights were thus to be taken away?

Mr. Jackson declared he had no intention of interfering with property rights. His bill was not reactionary. It was impossible to go from one side of the boat to the other, as suggested by the Opposition leader.

Major Burde: "Why not look at the sky?"

Mr. Jackson referred to the fact that Ontario had adopted such legislation, as has New Zealand and a number of States in the United States. His bill was designed to prevent future erection of such hoardings and he was prepared to submit an amendment which would amply protect those present interested parties.

Mr. F. A. Pauline saw merit in the bill, in that it sought to prevent the desecration of the beauty spots of the Province.

Mr. Jackson held the municipalities now have power to pass upon the design and construction of buildings or to order removal of public nuisances.

Mr. Bowser held a hoarding could not be termed a public nuisance. There was enough beautiful scenery along the route from Vancouver to Victoria to satisfy any ordinary tourist. He moved the committee rise without report, a motion which was approved, and the bill was thereby sent to the scrap heap.

PROVOKES DISCUSSION

Amendments to Dentistry Act Bring Forth Objections—Members Want Information

When the Dentistry Act was before the House two sessions ago it provoked keen discussion, and the amending bill tabled this session, while not so provocative of discussion, is still contentious. These amendments, introduced by Mr. M. A. Macdonald, Vancouver, were under fire in the House on Friday afternoon and evening. Mr. Macdonald disclaimed any particular interest in the bill, one which he was introducing merely to relieve other Government members from the task of seeing the measure through.

In that event, suggested Mr. Bowser, it was unfair for the Premier to be found more or less obstructing the measure. The Premier had declared himself as regarding the amendments with some suspicion. He did not object to dentists pulling teeth, but he did object to them delving too deeply into the pocketbooks of the public.

Mr. Ian Mackenzie suggested it was but proper to adopt the course taken in connection with other "professional" bills, and suggested the next bill that would appear would be one for professional pallbearers.

Mr. W. A. Mackenzie had visions of the dentists' council making the qualifications too high, and thereby working a hardship upon applicants seeking to qualify. He pointed to the fact that the same restrictions should apply to those from the United States, "foreigners," he called them, as imposed in the case of applicants from other parts of Canada or from the Old Country.

Mr. Ian Mackenzie objected to qualified men from the Old Country being forced to undergo examination in preliminary work before being enabled to practise in British Columbia.

The question of the proposed increase in fees to be paid by applicants also aroused considerable discussion, and as some members wanted information, Mr. Macdonald consented, leaving the bill in the committee stage.

CITY ENTERTAINS NAVAL PERSONNEL

Officers and Men Spend Evening Teeming With Best of Cheer and Song and Music as City's Guests

Victoria City tendered a convivial welcome to the officers and men of the Naval squadron last night at the old Drill Hall, when the rafters rang with the cheerful hubbub of a gathering overflowing in good spirits and fellowship. Civic hospitality was lavish in the care of which the details of the smoker had been arranged and throughout the evening not a dull moment marred the enjoyment of the guests, not a hitch the equanimity of the committee.

The ships' companies were there almost to a man when Acting Mayor Todd, on behalf of the city, rose to welcome the personnel of the ships to Victoria, expressing a hearty wish that their stay here might be a lengthy and a pleasant one, and that the time might come when Pacific waters would be their permanent base.

Captain Adams, commander of the Aurora, responded briefly, thanking Acting Mayor Todd for the wishes so kindly expressed.

The big hall was well filled, not only with the men of the squadron but with a large number of returned soldiers, representatives of the various ex-service organizations of the city, who entered eagerly into the spirit of the evening and chatted and smoked with the utmost of good fellowship with the members of the senior service. A haze of smoke filled the large hall to the roof, while attendants hurried about anticipating the wishes of the guests, who smoked and sipped at random. The tables, well supplied with refreshments and smoking material, placed thorough enjoyment within the reach of all present.

Fine Programme

The programme was of a varied nature, leading off with a succession of musical turns, many of them of a comic nature that pleased all. Boxing bouts followed, and in these also the men of the ships were greatly interested, more so perhaps as several of them were between favorites of their own, there being plenty of talent among the complements of the war vessels. Between times Bob Webb mounted the platform and led the way in rousing choruses of the kind that became the soldiers' and sailors' own during the war years. The orchestra, under Bandmaster A. L. Rumsby, played intermittently.

The programme, under the direction of Bob Webb, included

Orchestra	Popular Selections Leader, A. L. Rumsby.
Bass Solo	L. Brunell
Harry Lauder Selections	S. B. A. McAllister
Coster Songs	Tom Obee
Scotch Song	Neil Black
Comic Duet	Arnold and Hart with Mrs. Brown's Dog
Lancashire Dances	First Class Stoker Hope
"I Know Where the Birds Go"	R. R. Webb
Lightning Sketches	The Can. Navy's Parisian Artist

Plenty of Boxing

The boxing bouts aroused lively interest. The Davies Twins were favorites as ever, and each maintained his right to the duetweight championship of the world. The Burnett Bros. of the V.I.A.A., passed through three fast rounds, and George Corkie, of the V.I.A.A., exchanged blows with Ted Beales of the same club, for a similar period. A contest that aroused comment was that in which Sergt. Art. Prudhomme, of the Princess Pats, ex-Canadian champion and runner-up for the world's championship at Antwerp, battled with Harry Wichelo, of the same regiment. Naval fighters appeared in A. B. Mason and C. S. Stewart, lightweights, and O. S. McManus and O. S. Burden, bantams. The contests were all exhibitions, no decisions being given. During the latter rounds enthusiasm was high and the crowds surged around the floor of the ring.

Acting Mayor Todd was chairman, and many men prominent in the affairs of the city and Province were present, among them: Hon. J. H. King, Minister of Public Works; Canon Hinchliffe, M.P.P.; Mr. J. B. Clearihue, M.P.P.; Alderman W. F. Fullerton, Reeve Lockley, Mr. F. A. Pauline, M.P.P.; Mr. C. Denham, president of Rotary Club; Mr. J. H. Beatty, president of the Chamber of Commerce; Mr. A. Gordon Scott, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce; Mr. H. J. Davis, president of the British Columbia Navy League Division; Mr. W. A. Jameson, Mr. G. I. Warren, of the Chamber of Commerce; Mr. H. T. Ravenhill, of the Navy League, and many others.

The smoker was financed by the city, with the arrangements in the hands of a committee headed by Mr. E. J. Down, and composed in addition of Commander Greaves, Mrs. Weston, Commander Holme, R.C.N.; Colonel Lorne Ross, Messrs. P. A. Raynor, J. H. Beatty, A. Gordon Scott, R. R. Webb and W. H. Davies.

Long Series of Questions Put to Government on Wide Variety of Subjects

It cost the Province $376.30 to entertain the officers and men of the Canadian Navy on the occasion of the recent banquet given at the Empress Hotel, according to answers made by Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance, to questions asked in the Legislature by Mr. Samuel Guthrie, Socialist member for Newcastle.

A total of $17,000 has been granted to the Golden Hospital on account of buildings, grounds, etc., covering the period from 1910 to 1919, Hon. J. D. MacLean informed Mr. R. H. Pooley.

The Coast Steel Range, Limited, with which the Government has entered into an agreement to pay bounties under the Iron Bounties Act, 1918, is not the only concern to which the Government bounties may be paid, stated Hon. William Sloan, Minister of Mines, to Mr. Esling, Conservative member for Rossland.

Hon. E. D. Barrow, Minister of Agriculture, informed Mr. J. W. Jones, South Okanagan, that it is the intention of the Government to appoint a Provincial horticulturist at the beginning of the fiscal year at a salary of $2,400. The office has been vacant since November, 1915.

The tax sale held by the Government on October 12, 1920, of lands in arrears of Provincial taxes to the extent of $8,880 brought in $4,999, Hon. John Hart stated in reply to questions put by Mr. J. W. Jones.

To Colonel Lister the Premier stated that the Government has granted a loan of $25,000 to the Douglas Fir and Turpentine Company, Limited, for ten years, at six per cent per annum, conditioned upon the applicants expending $15,000 prior to receiving the Government loan; that Mr. J. S. Cowper, former Liberal member for Vancouver, is connected with the company through his arrangement with the company to utilize its patent electric still on a royalty basis in the treatment of molasses to recover variousby-products.

Major Burde is asking questions as to when the report on health insurance made last year by a commission, of which Mrs. Spofford, of Victoria, was a member, will be made, and what was paid for her services.

Mr. Samuel Guthrie will ask if the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council has declared any lands in the Province to be company towns within the meaning of the Company Towns Regulation Act and, if so, how many such towns were so declared with particulars in each case.

Mr. Bowser, on Tuesday, will ask for a return showing a copy of the contract entered into between the Land Settlement Board and the Marsh-Bourne Construction Company, Limited, for the reclamation of Sumas Lake.

Dr. W. O. Rose, Nelson, seeks information as to what roads are still under consideration by the Department at Ottawa, for which assistance is asked by the Province.

YARROWS EMPLOYEES GIVE FOURTH DANCE

Athletic Association Holds Pleasant Function With Numerous Couples in Attendance

The fourth of the series of dances being held throughout the season by the Yarrows Athletic Association was given at the Knights of Pythias Hall on Friday night, some 200 guests being present. The floor was in splendid condition, and the smooth strains of Perry's orchestra furnished the inducement to take full advantage of the polished surface. Refreshments, supplied by the ladies, marked an interval in the dancing, which continued until the early hours of the morning.

All arrangements for the function were in the hands of a capable committee, consisting of Messrs. Barclay, Baker, Spence and Palliser. The dance was a great success, and finishes with a flourish the social activities of the Yarrows organization during the dancing season.

France's harvests were so good last year that imports of foodstuffs have virtually ceased.

This lecture is the one which has crowded halls and theatres wherever delivered.

Publicity for Island—In the latest issue of The Last West, a publication issued by the Industrial and Resources branch of the Canadian National Railways, are some excellent scenes of the Gordon Head strawberry growing section. A. Blow, an old-time newspaper man of Winnipeg, who has a host of friends throughout the West.

Remanded for Vagrancy—Norman Bradley, pleading not guilty, in the City Police Court yesterday, to the charge of vagrancy, was remanded until next Monday on his own recognizance, and told that he would be permitted to leave town in the meantime. The police evidence was to the effect that the accused was a drug addict; and Magistrate Jay again remarked that he regretted the lack of some institution, other than prison, to which such cases might be committed for treatment.

Veterans of France—The dance promoted by the Sidney Chapter of this association on Thursday evening was well attended, about one hundred couples dancing to the excellent music of the orchestra. This being a masquerade dance, in conjunction with being the festival day of Erin's National Saint, brought a large and representative company from Sidney and Victoria. The executive desire to thank the dance committee for the very excellent arrangements made in this connection. The balance of the funds available will be devoted to the building fund of the Sidney Chapter.

Full Satisfaction—Guddah Singh stood up in the Saanich Police Court yesterday to answer to the charge that he had assaulted one, Bunker, by hitting the said Bunker with a broken wagon pole. The said Bunker, also an East Indian, said that he had forgiven Guddah Singh; that Guddah Singh had made pecuniary compensation for Bunker's sufferings; and that he (Bunker) now desired to withdraw the charge. Magistrate Jay thought this course might be permitted, but Guddah Singh must pay $5 costs, and $1 each to two schoolboys, who had come an unnecessary journey of some miles to give evidence. The boys received their witness fee with smiles indicative of high regard for the excellence of British justice.

LIQUOR DEBATE UP AGAIN ON MONDAY

Beer Clause Will Be the Chief Topic of Discussion in Legislature — Amendments Presented by Member

All thought of ending the present session of the Provincial Legislature by Easter has been abandoned by the Government and now the guessing has it that the session will not finish until Saturday, April 2.

There is not much work before the House, the debate on the new Moderation bill and that on the budget being the two principal features. But as the House must adjourn for the Easter recess, which means that adjournment will be taken on Thursday next, and the sessions not be resumed until the following Tuesday, there remain but four working days next week, and it is a certainty that the business cannot be cleaned up within that time.

As usual, chief interest centres in the "beer clause" introduced last Thursday by Capt. Ian Mackenzie, second Liberal member for Vancouver, to raise the percentage on non-intoxicating liquor under the definition of the term "liquor," from one per cent alcohol by weight to two per cent, or, in other words, provide for the general sale of beer containing about five per cent proof spirits, compared with the near-beer ingredient of two and one-half per cent proof spirits.

It will be remembered that when he introduced his amendment, which created keen discussion in the House, Captain Mackenzie stated that should it be passed he would bring down amendments providing for the stringent regulation of the sale of his increased alcoholic beverage. Members held that they would prefer to see these amendments first, and he has filed them on the order paper. These will be dealt with by the House tomorrow, when, it is expected, the question will be put to the vote.

These amendments provide that no person shall be permitted to sell "light beer" within the limits of a municipality or in clubs unless first approved by the board, and such shall be subject to cancellation by the board. Every association which distributes beer shall be deemed to be a "person" under those provisions; and no application for a permit to sell shall be approved by a municipality until passed by the board. Sale shall be only by male persons and to none under the age of twenty-one years. Upon conviction of anyone holding a licence to sell light beer, that conviction shall, ipso facto, cancel the licence, and no licence shall thereafter be issued to him by the board or any municipality.

"Light beer" shall mean any beverage not containing more than two per cent by weight of alcohol, whether it is made from malt or hops, or without the use of the same. The treating system is prevented, and no intoxicating liquors shall be kept upon the premises where "light beer" is sold.

Mr. Bert Kergin, Liberal member for Atlin, had put in an amendment designed to make prices of Government-vended liquor the same at all Government stores, whether spiritous or malt. The present bill applies this principle to spiritous liquors, but not to malt liquors, on which latter the Government does not propose to pay overhead charges of transportation from the central store to outside points.

Mr. Kenneth Duncan, Independent member for Cowichan, would amend the definition of "liquor" to strike out the present standard of one per cent alcohol by weight and make it read "proof spirits."

Mr. M. B. Jackson will submit an amendment providing that no one other than a Government vendor shall sell or deal in any liquid known as near-beer, or by any name commonly used to describe malt or brewed liquor.

HEADACHES
Make Life Miserable

Headaches are one of the most aggravating troubles one can have, and it is hard to struggle along with a head that aches and pains all the time.

Headaches seem to be habitual with many people; some are seldom, if ever, free from them, suffering continually from the dull throbbings, the intense pains; sometimes in one part, sometimes in another, and then again over the whole head.

There is only one way to get relief from these persistent headaches, and that is by going direct to the seat of the trouble, for unless the cause is removed, the headaches will still continue to exist.

The fact that Burdock Blood Bitters keep the stomach, liver and bowels toned up is proof enough to show that it will eliminate the cause of the headaches.

Mrs. Harold Lanain, Owen Sound, Ont., writes:—"My system was run down and my blood out of order. I suffered a great deal from severe pains in my head, which made me feel very miserable. After having tried other remedies I purchased a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and was very glad to notice a decided improvement in my health, so I took another and am glad to say that it has done me an enormous amount of good. I have recommended it to my friends who were in a similar condition, and they all say it is a wonderful remedy."

SEES DISSOLUTION OF FARMERS' INSTITUTES

Head of United Farmers Argues New Rules for Distribution of Cheap Powder Sounds Death Knell of Organization

Something of the old-time differences between the Farmers' Institutes of British Columbia and the United Farmers of British Columbia cropped out in the discussion which a delegation representative of the latter body had with the Agricultural Committee of the House yesterday morning.

Mr. W. F. Laidman, head of the delegation and chairman of the executive of the United Farmers of British Columbia, and the Independent candidate in the North Okanagan riding at the recent Provincial general elections, held that under the proposed plan by the Government to distribute cheaper stumping powder through incorporated bodies rather than solely through the Institutes, the latter will ultimately go out of business.

In fact, he alleged, the Women's Institutes could do all that the Farmers' Institutes are now doing. He alleged the Advisory Board of Farmers' Institutes today does not represent the body of farmers on the powder question, and he averred that one of the chief reasons why many farmers still remain with the Institutes was because of the fact that heretofore it was through the Institutes that the distribution of powder was effected. But in view of the plans of the Department of Agriculture to utilize other means of distribution the real usefulness of the Institutes in this respect has been lost.

He pointed to the $4,000 which is annually being spent upon the Institutes, and declared all the work now being done by those bodies might well be done by the Women's Institutes.

Mr. Laidman regretted that fewer farmers are in the British Columbia House than in any other provincial legislature in the Dominion, though Chairman Manson asserted few provinces had a more enthusiastic committee in the interests of the farmers.

The resolutions outlined in The Colonist of yesterday were then presented to the committee by Mr. Laidman and Mr. J. Y. Copeman, and the committee promised consideration there.

BODY OF OFFICER FOUND IN GARAGE

Circumstances Surrounding Death of Captain George K. Smith, Newport Avenue, Point to Suicide

Lying in the garage of his home at 1672 Newport Avenue, with a revolver alongside, the body of Captain George Kennedy Smith, a veteran of the Great War with a distinguished record of service, was found shortly after 8 o'clock yesterday morning. Apparently he had taken his own life by shooting himself through the mouth, the bullet penetrating the head. Death must have been instantaneous.

The discovery of the body was made by Miss Moore, a nurse, who has been attending Mrs. Smith for the past month. She had gone down to the basement and saw the holster of the revolver lying on the floor. She looked for Captain Smith, who, of late, had made references to his ill-health and to his despondency, and on entering the garage at the rear of the house she discovered the body lying in a pool of blood.

Letters which Captain Smith had written to his wife and his lawyer, Captain Carew Martin, and to Nurse Moore, made it clear that for some time he had planned to do away with himself, and that his act had been premeditated. The Oak Bay police were notified, and Chief Syme took charge of the body and notified the coroner, Dr. E. C. Hart, who ordered an inquest to be held tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. The body was removed to the undertaking rooms of the B.C. Funeral Furnishing Company.

In the letters he left behind, Capt. Smith set forth that he was despondent and without hope, fearing he would become insane.

The late Captain Smith was an Englishman by birth and had served in the Great War with distinction with the Strathcona Horse. He saw much service and was shell-shocked, and since his return from the front had suffered much from the experiences through which he went while overseas. His physical condition, together with straitened business circumstances are believed to have so preyed upon his mind as to have led him to take his own life. The revolver with which he committed the deed was a heavy Colt weapon of .45 calibre.

PRESENTED WITH CHAIR

Mr. G. W. Deaville Is Given Token of Esteem by Choir of Centennial

On Wednesday evening last, as a mark of respect and appreciation of their leader, Mr. Geo. W. Deaville, the choir of Centennial Methodist Church, Gorge Road, presented him with a handsome upholstered chair. When the presentation was made, the choir assembled in the Sunday School, where a social evening was spent, and many kind things were said, both by the Pastor, Rev. J. L. Batty, and several members of the choir. A suitable reply was made by the recipient of the present, which, to him, was a complete surprise.

During the evening the following officers of the choir were appointed: Secretary, Mr. Wm. Petterson; treasurer, Mr. W. Roberts; librarian, Mr. Norman Redman; assistant librarian, Mr. Berry. A musical and social committee were also appointed, after which an enjoyable buffet supper was served. The meeting was presided over by Mr. T. Hammond.

Saanich Water By-Law—The meeting between the Saanich Central Ratepayers' Association and the Water and Sewers Committee of the Saanich Council last night at Royal Oak concluded with the decision that the Association formulate a scheme for a water by-law and lay it before the Council. Three hours were spent in discussion. Delegates from every ward were present.

10 Years of Eczema

Are you reading the weekly Canadian letters, telling stories of suffering from skin diseases and how relief was obtained?

Here is part of a letter from Mrs. Henry Harvey, Black Lake, Que. Write her if you desire.

"Ten years of eczema on the face. Treated unavailingly by doctors. A sample alone of D.D.D. relieved me, etc."

The proof of the pudding is in the eating. When a prescription for skin disease has letters of endorsement from nearly every city and town in the Dominion, surely it is enough to convince the most skeptical.

VICTORIA GIRL TOPS CLASS IN NURSING

Miss Marian Harman Takes Honors for Province in Public Health Nursing Course and Wins $100 Prize

Graduates of the Nurses' Training Class of the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital have always been much in demand for responsible positions which from time to time present themselves in nursing institutions, and it will hardly be any surprise, therefore, to learn that the four graduates who went to Vancouver last October to take the Public Health course at the Provincial University were appropriated at once for service where their experience is of the utmost value. Of the four, Miss Marian Harman, a Victoria girl, headed the list for the whole of the Province, and was awarded the prize of $100 offered to the student taking the highest honors. She was appointed, almost before she had concluded her course, as head of the Burnaby Health Centre, one of the most important in the Province.

Miss Harman is a Victoria girl, daughter of Mr. A. H. Harman, of 108 Menzies Street. She was born at Oak Bay, and after attending the Central School and the High School, went on to the Provincial Normal School and completed her training as a teacher, coming back to Vancouver Island and teaching for a short time in the Gordon Head district before she commenced her training as a nurse.

The other three nurses who went to Vancouver at the same time as Miss Harman to take the course in Public Health Nursing have also completed their training in this subject, and are all now occupying good positions. Miss Griffiths is on the staff at a Winnipeg institution; Miss Buckley holds a position as a school nurse, and Miss Ehlers is at one of the Health Centres of the Province also.

MESSAGE FROM MARS TO BE REPEATED

Victoria Dramatic and Operatic Society Will Again Produce Popular Play Easter Monday and Tuesday, 29th

Those people who were unable to attend the performances of "A Message From Mars" when presented by the Victoria Dramatic and Operatic Society two weeks ago, will be glad to hear that there is to be another opportunity to see it. Owing to the large number of requests for a repetition of the play, the society has decided to again present it at the Pantages Theatre on Easter Monday afternoon and evening, and on Tuesday evening, March 28 and 29.

This play was perhaps the most popular that the society has yet produced, and many of those who attended the last performances will be glad to avail themselves of the opportunity of again seeing it. In response to a number of requests received from Vancouver, the play is also to be presented in that city. On Friday and Saturday of next week "A Message From Mars" will be presented by the same caste in the Avenue Theatre, Vancouver, and judging from reports already received, it will prove a great success.

"A Message From Mars" is a play that should be seen by everyone. It is really a sermon on selfishness, in which the hero of the play is first shown as a prosperous but very egotistic and selfish individual. After passing through a gruelling ordeal brought about by a messenger from the planet Mars, he is reduced to a pauper and forced to beg on the streets. In this way he is shown the value of service to and thought for his fellows, and he is converted, and on finding that the whole thing has been a dream, he becomes the most philanthropic of men.

Throughout the whole play the audience is held in a spell. It is one of the finest examples of the dramatic art, interspersed with pathos and real good humor.

"A Message From Mars" will be presented for three performances at the Pantages Theatre, Easter Monday matinee and evening, and Tuesday evening, March 28 and 29. The box office will be open Thursday morning at 10 o'clock.

KATHLEEN PARLOW PLAYS HERE SHORTLY

Gifted Young Canadian Genius of the Violin Will Give a Performance in Victoria on April Fourth

The impression made by Miss Kathleen Parlow when, in 1910, she made her first New York appearance is one that will long be remembered. The following day the metropolitan papers hailed a new-found genius of the violin—a genius who is looked upon today as the foremost woman exponent of her instrument. During the past ten years Miss Parlow has been the sensation of two continents, and her extraordinary talent has impressed itself on the public to a degree that makes an appearance by her an event of exceptional interest.

Miss Parlow was born in Calgary, Alberta, in 1890, but much of her childhood was passed in California, her first instruction being received in San Francisco, where she made a public appearance when six years old. In 1905 she went to London, and in November of that year played with the London Symphony Orchestra.

So warmly was the young artist—she was then barely fourteen years of age—received, and so unstinted was the critical praise, that it was decided that she should go to St. Petersburg for further study under Prof. Leopold Auer, the master of many famous violinists, among them Heifetz, Zimbalist, Seidl and Elan.

Richard Aldrich, of the N.Y. Times, has the following to say of Miss Parlow:

"Miss Parlow has a tone of purity, roundness and mellowness, of a quality both searching and sympathetic. In the most brilliant passages it never loses this musical quality both searching and sympathetic, and in cantalina it is moving and expressive. She plays with a remarkable accuracy of intonation, and with a fluency and precision that do not fail her in the most exacting and difficult passages. Her bowing is masterly in its elasticity and freedom; and slender as this young woman is to look at, she shows an astonishing endurance and unflagging power."

The event is all the more interesting as Miss Parlow's accompanist is a well known piano virtuoso, Mr. Fred M. Gee, of Winnipeg, who has many friends throughout the Dominion.

MRS. McCONNAN WILL GIVE RECITAL

Well-Known Artist Will Appear at Empress Hotel on March 31

Everyone is looking forward with pleasure to hearing Mrs. McConnan in recital on March 31, at the Empress Hotel. Mrs. McConnan has spent two and a half years with Madame Bennett-Brock studying the art of singing, and a great many music lovers are very much interested in following this serious student in her work. Knowing the talent of the lady, Victorians may expect to spend an enjoyable evening hearing a programme which will comprise English, French and Italian songs and arias. As is well known, Mrs. McConnan scored many a triumph in the past with her clever acting and singing, and her work in the "Caliph of Bagdad" will long be remembered by those who were privileged to see it. During the war Mrs. McConnan devoted her time to Red Cross and patriotic work, taking leads in most of the successful musical plays and revues. She is a great favorite with Victoria audiences, who will look forward with great pleasure to her appearance in the new role of recitalist.

THE HOPE DIAMOND MYSTERY IN STORY

May Yohe (Lady Francis Hope) Will Appear in Person Daily During This Week at the Variety Theatre

The history of this fascinating stone, the curse that has followed its owners for centuries, and the story of the ruined life of May Yohe, who once owned it and wore it, is a startling story. To find herself mistress of a palace, with jewels outrivaling the jewels of many a crowned head, with a London town house as well as a country estate, would probably fulfil the happiest dreams of millions of women. And yet May Yohe, the daughter of a Pennsylvania country dressmaker, had all this in her grasp, and threw it all away. May Yohe, the beloved and pretty wife of Lord Francis Hope, was also to share with her husband the added title and still greater estates of the Duke of Newcastle—was it the malevolent power of the unlucky Hope diamond that then intervened and blighted her life.

Up and up the staircase of social progress and fortune May Yohe had climbed rapidly until she stood in the circle of the British titled aristocracy. It would seem as if her fondest ambitions had been realized, and were well worth holding securely. But almost in a moment all was swept away.

Every man wants to be a leader in his own line of work or sphere in life.

Unless a man is a genius or superman he can only attain his objective when he has strength—to have strength he must have health—to have health he must be full blooded, his heart strong and his nerves steady.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have assisted many a man who was facing a crucial test and was not at the moment just feeling his best.

How about yourself? Are you facing some task requiring all your strength and "Your Nerve"?

Do as hundreds of others have done, have a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills at hand and take them according to directions.

They have helped other men past the trying or testing time and may enable you to carry on and win and keep the position you so much desire.

Mr. Stephen Crouse, East Clifford, N.S., writes:—"I suffered for five years with heart trouble. I could hardly walk from the house to the barn without resting, as I used to get so short of breath. Doctors could not help me. My wife told me to get a box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and I felt better after taking them; three boxes made me quite well. I am now helping my son to work the farm and can truthfully say I feel like a different man."

Jimmy Buckett Wins Five-Mile Road Race

Runner Wearing Crusaders Colors Captures J. B. A. A. Senior Distance Event—Burnett Woodward, Y. M. C. A., Was Good Second—G. Allan Takes First Place in Junior Contest

Jimmy Buckett, of the Crusaders, won the J.B.A.A. five-mile race and the Two Jacks cup yesterday afternoon, leading B. Woodward, Y. M. C. A., by thirty yards. E. Harwood, G. W. V. A., was third, a block in the rear, two yards ahead of MacLachlan, J. B. A. A. The time was 29 min. 57 1-5 secs.

The two-mile event, which carried with it the McPherson Cup, went to G. Allan, J. B. A. A., Heatherbell, J. B. A. A., being second, and Sid Hole, Crusaders, third. Little Hartley, Jr., J. B. A. A., was fourth. The time was 11 min. 29 2-5 secs. The weather conditions were ideal, and both events proved to be well contested, although Allan had things rather his own way in the junior race. Dan O'Sullivan sent away the youngsters first from Quebec and Menzies Streets, the entries being three J. B. A. A. runners, and one from the Crusaders. Allan jumped off at a hundred yards clip, and when turning into Montreal Street from Quebec, he had a lead of fully that distance, which he increased at his ease. The other three lads kept well together until Dallas Road was reached, when Hartley gradually dropped behind, and Heatherbell drew away from Hole. Allan was keeping up his fast gait, and leading by two hundred yards. When he turned into Menzies for the final stretch to Quebec Street, he had the race well in hand. Heatherbell made a gallant attempt to catch him, and ran down Menzies Street in fine style, but Allan's lead was too great for him to overcome. Allan broke the tape, the winner by a block. This youngster should develop into a very fine runner, as he ran practically untrained, and showed a good stride and pretty style.

Five Mile Race

Nine runners faced the starter for the five-mile event: J. Buckett, Crusaders; A. Muir, Yarrows; Sewell, V. I. A. A.; Burnett Woodward, Y. M. C. A.; E. Harwood, Smith and Halton, G. W. V. A.; MacLachlan and Riddell, J. B. A. A. They started cautiously, and bunched together along Quebec Street to Montreal Street, and remained in about the same positions out to Dallas Road, when Smith and Halton dropped to the rear. The others kept in about the same order, but Muir gradually took the lead, with Buckett and Harwood right behind him. Beacon Hill had to be circled twice, and when the runners had nearly gone around once, misfortune overtook Harwood, who broke one of his shoes. While tying it up he lost fifty yards. Riddell dropped out at this stage, and Harwood, when dashing after the remaining five contestants, smashed his shoe again, and lost another fifty yards. He tied it up with a handkerchief, and made a very game effort to overcome the lead gained by his rivals. Woodward began to force things a little, but he could not get away from Buckett, and although Sewell dropped behind, Muir and MacLachan hung on doggedly.

When the runners turned into Niagara Street for the homeward dash, Buckett had a slight lead, with Woodward second, MacLachlan third, and Harwood coming up fast. Woodward tried to get away from Buckett, and took the lead for a few yards, but on turning into Menzies Street for the final effort, Buckett was leading by two yards, and MacLachlan and Harwood were fighting for third place. Woodward again dashed ahead, and was leading by a yard at Simcoe Street, but when Michigan Street was reached, Buckett showed his mettle and raced away with a pretty sprint, dashing over the line with thirty yards in hand. Woodward made a strong finish, and Harwood and MacLachlan made a duel of it all the way from Niagara Street, the Y. M. C. A. man finally managing to nose out the J. B. A. A. youngster.

Buckett ran a clever race, as he refused to be hustled, but kept up enough to be in striking distance of the lead at any time. Burnett Woodward proved to be a surprise, and with more experience he will make anyone hustle to beat him. MacLachlan ran gamely, but was not in such good condition as the leaders. Muir made a good showing, but he runs with a short stride, which is a big handicap. Sewell, a long, lanky youngster, was a likely looking runner, but he spoiled his chances by running flatfooted, which jarred him to pieces.

The officials were: Starter, Dan O'Sullivan; judges, Dan O'Sullivan and J. A. Wickson; timekeepers, W. H. Wilkerson and George Watson; clerks of the course, R. D. Travis and J. A. Wickson; referee, George I. Warren. The races were followed in an automobile by Dan O'Sullivan, J. A. Wickson and George I. Warren.

COMRADES WIN FROM WHOLESALE GROCERS

Losers Were Handicapped by Lack of Practice Together, But Made Very Good Losing Fight—Score 6 to 1

The Wholesale Grocers football team went down to defeat at the hands of the Comrades yesterday at Central Park.

Lack of team play proved the downfall of the Wholesalers, the team having never played together before, whereas the Comrades' combination work proved far superior to that of their opponents throughout the game.

Considering that the Wholesalers' team was only picked the night before the match, no opportunity being given for practice together, the showing against the Comrades in the first period was very good.

No score took place until near the end of the first period, when Bloom ran the ball up into the right corner of the field, crossed it over in the goal mouth, and Brewster headed it into the net.

The Wholesalers resorted a deal too much to long kicking, failing to work the ball up the field together, whereas the Comrades' attack was much more dangerous.

The second period proved disastrous to the hopes of the Grocers. Bloom, Grimes, Brewster and Harper going through with several fine rushes, which ended up with the ball finding its way into the net.

Patterson, of the Wholesalers, was very aggressive, Hymers playing well on the defence.

The line-up:

Comrades—Hetherington; Phillips and Allen; Green, Hardwick and Falchen; Bloom, Grimes, Brewster, Essler and Harper.

Wholesalers—Hughes; Hymers and Lumsden; Patterson, Hedden and Main; Kier, Gray, Austin, Marshall and Erickson.

VICTORIA WINS FROM SALTSPRING ISLAND

Mixed Grass Hockey Match Results in Victory for the Locals—Score Was Four Goals to Nil

The Victoria Grass Hockey mixed team defeated the Saltspring Island players at Oak Bay yesterday afternoon after a very interesting match by four goals to nil. The visitors played a pretty game, but lacked experience. The struggle proved particularly interesting, for each side was composed of four ladies and seven men. Mr. Price played a fine game at centre forward for Saltspring Island, and their lady goalkeeper was exceptionally good.

Muncy, the Victoria centre forward, played in dashing style, and scored all the goals. Idiens, at centre half, was very reliable, while the two wing forwards, Miss Eastman and Miss Wright, were excellent. The outstanding player on the Victoria side, however, was Hudson, at full back, who gives promise of developing into a star. Although only a youngster, he is remarkably steady, and puts up a great defence.

The Victoria players will visit Saltspring Island on April 9 for the return match. On April 14 the monthly invitation dance of the Victoria Grass Hockey Club will be held in the Orange Hall, and a number of the Saltspring Island players are coming over for the occasion.

Yesterday's game was umpired by Mr C. V. Milton.

BRANDON TAKES LEAD IN ALLAN CUP FINAL

Defeat Toronto University Team in First of Play-Off Games by Two to Nothing at Winnipeg

WINNIPEG, March 19.—Playing a brand of hockey that was hard to beat, Brandon tonight took a two-goal lead in the first game of a two-game series to decide holders of the Allan Cup, emblematic of the Amateur Championship of Canada, when they defeated the University of Toronto, 2-0. Both teams traveled at a fast clip, and end-to-end rushes predominated in the opening period. Six minutes later Amby Moran, Brandon defence man, traveled the length of the ice and scored a beautiful goal.

With water on the ice and the going very hard, Brandon carried the puck up the ice time and time again, only to find a stumbling block in Langtry, the 'Varsity goalie. Nineteen minutes after the second period commenced, Moran shot the puck from behind the 'Varsity nets to Arbour, who gave Langtry no chance to save.

In the final session both teams worked hard, with the 'Varsity boys struggling hard to score. Ten minutes before time 'Varsity missed an open net, and their only chance of the night to score.

Langtry and Carson were the pick of the visitors, while it was hard to name a star for Brandon, the whole team playing wonderful hockey.

ST. MICHAEL'S WIN WILSON SOCCER CUP

Final Was Played Yesterday Against Shawnigan Preparatory School—Final Score Two to One

The final for the H. G. Wilson Soccer Cup was played at Oak Bay yesterday morning between St. Michael's School and Shawnigan Lake Preparatory School, and was won by the former by two goals to one. The game was played before a large number of keen supporters of the two schools, and produced some really first-class soccer, very few mistakes being made by either side. After some very even play, the first goal went to St. Michael's, as the result of a melee in front of the Shawnigan goal. This put the Shawnigan boys on their mettle, and not long after half-time Mellin scored a very neat goal for the visitors.

The last fifteen minutes provided all the thrills of a keen, even and entirely clean game. Undoubtedly the finest feature of the match was the winning goal, scored by John Woods, the St. Michael's captain, who took possession of the ball near the half-way line, and beating all opposition, scored a perfect goal.

Mr. P. C. Payne kindly acted as referee, and at the conclusion of the game Mrs. Muskett, of the Collegiate School, presented the cup to the winners, amid cheers.

METROPOLIS SENIORS HAVE EASY VICTORY

Sons of England Lose Jackson Cup Match at Beacon Hill—Winners Display Good Combination—Score Was 4-0

The Metropolis Senior soccer team knocked the Sons of England out of the Jackson Cup series at the lower ground, Beacon Hill, yesterday afternoon, when they won a one-sided contest by four goals to nil. The Mets had the upper hand all through the game, their speed and clever combination being too much for the Sons, who, however, kept up a game struggle until the final whistle blew.

There was a big crowd present, and as the ground was in fine condition, play was fast, and Carmichael and Greig, the Sons' fullbacks, were kept busy from the start. The first goal came when Wale drove in a hard shot for the Mets, and the ball glanced off Greig into the net. Some more good combination followed, and A. McInnes scored from the right wing. At half time the Mets were leading by two goals to nil.

In the second period the Mets pressed continually, and Totty on the left wing, and McInnes on the right, were in fine form. After a nice run down the wing, Totty sent in a beautiful centre, and "Toots" Plump snapped the ball into the net. From then until the end of the game the Mets made rush after rush, but as they had things all their own way, they became careless, and missed many promising chances, the ball being sent sky-high over the goal on several occasions. The Sons broke away a couple of times, but could not penetrate their opponents' defence, and a bit of neat work gave the Mets another goal. Wale passed to McInnes, and he centred neatly, enabling "Smiler" Pettigrew to score with a swift shot. No more goals were scored, and the Mets left the field easy winners of a somewhat disappointing match.

All the forwards played well for the Mets, and the halves were very steady, Wale being particularly good. Menzies also put up a fine game. Church and Taylor, the fullbacks, and Leeming in goal, had very little to do.

Carmichael and Greig made a good pair of fullbacks for the Sons, while Finnegan made a number of splendid saves in goal. Tupman worked very hard at halfback, but the forwards could not get through the Mets' defence.

The teams were:

Metropolis Seniors — Leeming; Church and Taylor; Wale, Brynjolfson and Menzies; A. McInnes, Plump, Pettigrew, J. Cummings and Totty.

Sons of England—Finnegan; Carmichael and Greig; Tupman, Spiers, Morgan; Gardler, Sharcott, Hall, Davis, Cosler.

Referee—Langton.

INCREASED REVENUE FROM GAME LICENCES

Sportsmen Will Benefit From Efforts of Provincial Game Conservation Board to Protect Game of Province

A revenue of $137,587 was received by the Province last year from game and hunting licence fees and the tax on furs, an increase over the preceding year of $31,452, and, in addition, fines aggregated $6,073, and nearly $3,000 from the sale of confiscated skins, says the annual report of the Provincial Game Conservation Board, tabled in the Legislature by Attorney-General Farris. The report points out that grouse are becoming scarce in the Province, while pheasants are fairly plentiful, and moose, caribou, elk, mountain sheep and deer are holding their own. Black bear are increasing, and cougars are rapidly increasing despite the efforts to keep down their numbers.

At the Wilkinson Road pheasant farm in Saanich, 1,000 birds were bred, and these will be liberated for the benefit of sportsmen.

The following fur-bearing animals were trapped during the year: Weasel, 43,489; muskrat, 46,108; marten, 11,446; fox, 105; fisher, 586; lynx, 1,242; mink, 5,387; otter 245; raccoon, 1,398; skunk, 185; wild-cat, 149; wolverine, 247. Trappers' licences were issued to the number of 1,842.

In addition to reporting the number of fur-bearing animals trapped, these licence-holders are required to state what game animals and noxious animals they destroyed. This report shows: Deer, 1,023; moose, 242; mountain sheep, 13; mountain goat, 218; caribou, 114; bear, 996. Noxious animals included: Coyotes, 316; cougars, 39; and wolves, 26.

Bounties paid shows that there were destroyed in 1920: Cougars, 311; wolves, 84; coyotes, 176 (more were killed but the skins were preferred to the bounty); owls, 55; and crows, 1,955.

Cassiar was the favorite hunting grounds of non-residents in 1920, when twenty-seven hunters paid $1,895 for the privilege of shooting 26 caribou, 18 sheep, 17 goat, 10 moose, 6 grizzlies, and 9 black bear. Kootenay took second place, and Cariboo third, holders of non-resident licences paying $3,505 for the privilege of hunting game in British Columbia in 1920.

With the birds it is different. Grouse are scarce, due largely, it is stated, to the depredations of animals and predatory birds. Pheasants were fairly plentiful in places, but the high water in the Fraser last Summer is said to have depleted the number of these game birds in that district. On Vancouver Island and among the Gulf Islands the supply is fair. Ducks and geese had a banner season last year. The wet harvest provided an abundance of feed, and the bags taken were large, with the birds in splendid condition.

Few fatalities occurred during the hunting season through the use of firearms. Four persons were killed and six injured, three seriously. One man was mistaken for a deer and killed; another was injured in the same way. Accidental discharge of shotguns killed two and injured two; accidental discharge of rifles injured two persons, while one man was shot while deer hunting and another injured.

MAE MARSH AT VARIETY ALL WEEK

The hundreds of followers of Mae Marsh, that clever and whimsical little emotional star, will have an opportunity tomorrow night to see her first picture after returning to the screen, when "The Little 'Fraid Lady" opens at the Variety Theatre. The picture, a Robertson-Cole super-special, is a screen adaptation of the popular novel, "The Girl Who Lived in the Woods," by Marjorie Benton Cooke. It was directed by John G. Adolfi.

Critics who have seen the picture declare that Miss Marsh is doing the best work of her career, interpreting a difficult and appealing role. When Robertson-Cole chose this vehicle for the little star, the company had in mind the many whimsicalities for which she is so well remembered and decided that "The Little 'Fraid Lady" was just the story to bring out the best in her.

The picture finds Miss Marsh in the role of Cecelia, a young artist who, tiring of the uncharitable views and ways of a big city, has decided to spend the rest of her life in the wilds. She believes she will be able to make her living with her brush. Her only companion is Omar, her dog. Settling in a little cabin in the Rockies, she begins her struggle. In the general course of events she encounters a little chubby youngster who captures her heart, although she tries hard to fight the growing feeling. Because of her desire to remain alone, the little boy names her his "Little 'Fraid Lady."

Among her many disappointments back in civilization was the sorrow caused by one very close to her who was guilty of a grave crime. She did not know that this crime and the criminal was to follow her into the wilderness, but they did.

In the cast with Miss Marsh are: Tully Marshall, Kathleen Kirkham, Charles Meredith, Herbert Prior, Gretchen Hartman, George Bertholom, Jr., and Jacques Hill, the precocious pup.

CABARET IN AID OF GREAT WAR VETERANS

Mrs. Pooley and Mrs. Humphrey Will Direct Event, Which Will Be Held in Empress Hotel April 5

To aid the general funds of the Great War Veterans' Association, it has been arranged to conduct a cabaret in the ballroom of the Empress Hotel on Tuesday evening, April 5. The affair will be conducted under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary of the Assocition, and Mrs. R. H. Pooley, together with Mrs. Seldon Humphrey, has taken in charge the arrangements. The two ladies mentioned will meet on Tuesday to arrange details. It is planned to make the cabaret one of the outstanding social and entertaining events of the season.

A very severe strain has been imposed on the funds of the G.W.V.A. of late months, and an improvement in the finances at an early date is essential to the successful execution of the work of the organization. The main stress has been on the funds for the relief of veterans out of employment, which are well-nigh exhausted.

The general programme of the Association in other respects is manifold in character, and calls for heavy expenditure, and it is hoped that the financial results of the cabaret will be such that the funds of the organization will be greatly improved.

LIKEABLE DRAMA AT ROYAL TOMORROW

Deals in Delightful Manner With the Tremendous Grip Habit Can Forge—Will Be Shown All Week.

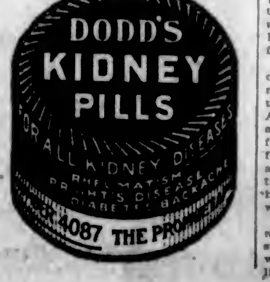
"Habit," a delightful likeable drama dealing with the tremendous grip Habit can forge, at the Royal Victoria Theatre all this week.

The Fletcher mansion, in the heart of the extremely fashionable and highly mortgaged section of Long Island, houses motherless Irene Fletcher, from earliest childhood a victim of the habit of pretty things and her father, who has reached the end of his resources.

She has two suitors. One, John Marshall, a struggling architect, and the other, Charles Munson, a wealthy designer of women's clothes. Her intimate girl friend is Mary Chartres, who has found her world a very nice place to live in, with a rich aunt to settle the bills.

Her father tells her of his impending failure and begs her to stop her charge accounts. Instead of extending sympathy, she reproaches him. Dashing from his presence, she trips on the stairs and while unconscious is carried to her room, where she dreams the following things happened, and they are shown as actually happening.

The audience is not taken into confidence until her awakening. First, she dreams that Marshall has married her and while at the wedding breakfast her father commits suicide in the next room, having been refused promised financial assistance from Munson. Marshall and his bride go to Marshall's old homestead, an unpretentious cottage, where she is forced to do without the luxuries to which she had been accustomed. Marshall goes to Washington on business and is run over and suffers lapse of memory. The authorities are unable to communicate with his wife because they cannot find out who he is. Munson appears at the cottage and promises to find her husband. He goes to Washington and recognizes Marshall, but pretends not to know him. Munson then induces Irene to visit New York and open a charge account, falsely assuring her that there will be sufficient left from her father's estate to pay the bills. Wonderful creations are shown her. Munson invites Irene to a dinner to ply Irene with wine. Clasping her in his arms, she struggles and her dress is torn from her shoulders. At that moment her husband breaks down the door and——But to tell the climax of the picture would only spoil those who witness the performance at the Royal Victoria Theatre, where it will be shown all this week. We can only say, go and see it.



TRIUMPH IN FILM BY EUGENE WALTER

"Love, Honor and Obey," Coming to Dominion This Week, Full of Dramatic Thrills—Fine Supporting Cast.

An intensely thrilling story will be shown at the Dominion Theatre in Eugene Walter's "Love, Honor and Obey," a screen adaptation of Charles Neville Buck's novel, "The Tyranny of Weakness." Mr. Walter, as author of "Paid in Full," "The Easiest Way," and "Fine Feathers," has proved himself the master craftsman of the American stage; now that his theatrical wizardry has been turned in the direction of the screen, he brings a new flavor to the silver sheet, a flavor rich with the warm realities of life, brilliant with its startling activity, and glowing with passionate drama.

The producers, Arthur Sawyer and Herbert Lubin, have given a production worthy of the photodrama. Wilda Bennett, a newcomer to the screen, but one of the most popular comedy stars in New York, has the leading role, that of Conscience Williams, a New England girl, who falls in love with a New York writer, Stuart Emmet (Kenneth Harlan). Her father (Henry Harmon) opposes the match.

A dramatic incident tears the young people apart, and when Conscience learns that Stuart has been named as co-respondent in a divorce suit, her heart is numbed. She consents, to please her father, to become married to a crafty New Englander, and it isn't until after the knot is tied that she learns from the divorcee (Claire Whitney) that she has been tricked by false information. She bolts her door on the bridegroom.

How this situation is worked out makes one of the most engrossing stories that the screen has seen in years. Miss Bennett proves a "find" for the screen, with her fresh, young beauty and her real depth of dramatic emotion. Claire Whitney, long a screen star, gives a notable performance as the divorcee. Kenneth Harlan is again a handsome and debonnaire leading man, and Henry Harmon, remembered for his triumph in "Old Lady 31," makes terribly real the old New England father. E. J. Ratcliffe, one of the most popular leading men of a generation ago, scores heavily as the New York society man who divorces his wife, and George Cowl gives a singularly vivid impersonation of the New Englander who won a bride by lying to her.

The production was directed by Leander de Cordova with fine taste. The cameraman was Andrew Martinelli, and M. P. Staulcup was art director. The picture is released by Metro.

MARY MILES MINTER IN "NURSE MARJORIE"

Pretty Star Has Delightful Role in New Play Showing at the Columbia Theatre This Week—Also Comedy.

Scene from "Nurse Marjorie" at the Columbia this week.

A wholly delightful and pleasing play is "Nurse Marjorie," in which Mary Miles Minter appears as the star at the Columbia Theatre this week. The combination of star and story is a particularly fortunate one, and in a dainty nurse's uniform, Miss Minter is more bewitching and prettier than ever.

Miss Minter plays the role of Nurse Marjorie. She is the daughter of a proud and aristocratic family who turns to useful work to the consternation of her family, and of Lord Fitztrevor, her fiance, whom her family has selected for her.

At the hospital she is placed in charge of John Danbury, a leading member of Parliament, who has undergone an operation on his eyes. A love affair swiftly develops, and amusing situations come quick and fast as Nurse Marjorie carries out the fiction that she is the daughter of a fishmonger and leads Lord Fitztrevor and Danbury in hot pursuit of her to the humble neighborhood where she says she lives.

The production is mounted in a most lavish and capable manner. The story is an adaptation of Israel Zangwill's play, and was directed by William Desmond Taylor. The cast, which includes Frank Leigh, Arthur Hoyt, George Periolat, Clyde Fillmore and Frankie Lee, is unusually capable.

In addition to "Nurse Marjorie," will be shown Larry Semon's funniest ever in "The Fly-Cop." This is the story of an amateur sleuth, who gets mixed up in the affairs of an underground restaurent. Part of the action takes place in a subcellar, part on the surface of the earth and part on the roofs of skyscrapers. Larry Semon also illustrates the manner in which he works out all his comedies and introduces some very clever double exposure film. A bevy of beautiful girls adds to the attractiveness of an extremely funny comedy.

ACTRESS' APPEAL AGGRAVATES NURSES

English Organized Societies Take Exception to Lady Harvey's Appeal for Funds

The following is a copy of a letter forwarded to The Winnipeg Free Press by Miss Isabel Macdonald, secretary of the Royal British Nurses' Association, in regard to certain activities of Lady Harvey during her Canadian tour. While here, Lady Harvey made an appeal to the Women's Canadian Club for funds:

To the Editor of the Free Press:

Sir,—The members of the Organized Societies of Nurses in England will be grateful if you will give publicity to their views on a matter on which they feel most strongly.

It has been brought to their notice that Lady Harvey is taking upon herself to beg for our British nurses from the public of Canada. Lady Harvey has disregarded the considered opinion and strongly expressed views of our nurses on the begging campaign which she has carried on in their name in England, and our English nurses feel deeply wounded that, in violation of the self-respecting principle which forms the backbone of any profession, Lady Harvey should now institute a similar campaign in one of the greatest Dominions beyond the seas. The British nurses feel that, by doing so, Lady Harvey is degrading them in the eyes of their Canadian colleagues, and they maintain that she has no justification for promoting appeals for them, not only without their sanction, but in direct opposition to their expressed wishes. Further, the British nurses desire to know under what authority Lady Harvey is taking money from the public in Canada, also who is treasurer of her appeal, and who is responsible for the auditing of its accounts.

ISABEL MACDONALD,
Secretary, Royal British Nurses' Association.

London.

It will be remembered that on the last night of the Martin Harvey company's visit to Victoria, Lady Martin Harvey made a very stirring appeal to the audience for funds to be devoted to the home she has founded on the Isle of Wight for nurses whose health had become impaired during the late war. Lady Harvey received the amount of $433 in response to this appeal, and during her short address she clearly defined the home on the Isle of Wight as owing its formation entirely to her efforts and was undecided when the transcanada tour was first mentioned whether or not she would leave England, in case the home which received her personal attention should in any way suffer through her absence, and it was then that the idea of carrying her campaign throughout Canada for financial aid for her home occurred to her.

"DEVIL TO PAY" IS SHOWN AT PANTAGES

All-Star Cast Apepars in Brunton Production, Mystery Story With Long Series of Thrills

"The Devil to Pay," the screen drama being shown at Pantages Theatre Monday and Tuesday, has a plot lacking neither thrills nor sustained interest. Here is the story:

Brent Warren, banker and influential citizen of Hampton, was indicted for complicity in the murder of a man only a few hours after one man had gone to the gallows for the crime.

Dare Keeling, Warren's fiancee, trusted him and wanted to marry him at once, not only to prove to the world her belief in his innocence, but so that he might have the use of her fortune. Warren, realizing refusal would strengthen faith in his innocence, refused to marry her at such a critical time. Dare, however, asked Cullen Grant, sole trustee of her money, for a large sum of money to aid Warren, and was refused.

Cullen Grant was the district attorney prosecuting Warren. Dare believed Grant had acted out of jealousy. She had once been in love with him, but had broken the engagement after a quarrel over an investment. In a moment of pique she became Warren's fiancee.

Dare's brother, Larry, became Warren's companion in his large home on the outskirts of the city. He observed a peculiar nervousness about Warren. The telephone bell seemed particularly annoying. One time Larry answered its ring, and a weird voice at the other end rasped, "Br—e—nt War—r—en, do men die?"

Larry had not recognized the voice, but Warren had—it was the voice of George Roan, the man who had been hanged for embezzlement and murder in which he was now implicated. Morning, noon and night the voice haunted him over the phone. It was driving him insane.

Warren was also acting peculiarly about a safe in his house. Its combination had been known only to himself and the dead man, but Warren had lost it. Larry found it in a book, opened the safe and discovered letters from Harkness, the murdered man, that completed Cullen Grant's evidence against Warren.

When Warren found the safe opened and papers missing that only a dead man knew about, he planned a getaway with Dare, who still believed his innocence and was ready to prove it. An accident caused them to take refuge in a farmhouse, but they were trailed by Grant, and Warren was taken back to Hampton under arrest for Harkness' murder.

At the trial there was every indication that the case will be decided in favor of Warren when the district attorney introduced his star witness—the living dead man, George Roan—the man pronounced officially dead by the State!

He testified that, when his body had been turned over to his wife he had been resuscitated by a retired surgeon. He said he and Warren stole funds from the bank and were threatened with exposure by Cashier Harkness. Warren planned the murder and promised, with his political pull, to secure a pardon for Roan if he would kill Harkness. Instead, Warren had railroaded Roan to the gallows.

Too cowardly to play the game to the finish, Warren committed suicide in the court room. Roan was promised the clemency of the Governor, and Dare awoke to a realization of her mistake and her real love for the district attorney.

YOUTHFUL STAR IS PRAISED BY CRITIC

Miss Mary Miles Minter Receives High Praise for Work —Comes to Romano in "A Cumberland Romance."

They say the only true criticism is that of a wholly disinterested critic, who has nothing at stake and does not fear to tell the truth. If that is the case, a letter which drifted into the New York office of the Realart Pictures Corporation several weeks ago from a writer in Hollywood, California, contains about the sincerest praise for the work of little Miss Mary Miles Minter which could be imagined. For the writer in question had no axe to grind either with Miss Minter or the Realart Company. He merely is an interested observer of picture people and their work in general, an interested bystander at picture-making, and naturally, from his acquaintance with the work of many stars, somewhat of a critic.

It happened that he saw the first run of the finished film, "A Cumberland Romance," an adaptation from the novel, "A Mountain Europa," by John Fox, Jr. And he thought enough of it to write the following letter to Realart, the very same day:

"'A Cumberland Romance' is in my opinion the greatest picture Mary Miles Minter has ever done—and I think I have seen her in most of her photoplays. No one can accuse her of being a 'doll' in this picture. She is a living, breathing girl who wonderfully expresses the change wrought in the quick-tempered, elemental mountain maid under the spur of her love for the cultured man from the city. The criticism that she is never allowed to 'have a curl out of place' is scotched for all time. She ACTS. She takes the character and sustains it consistently from start to finish. In my humble opinion there is not a single flaw in a very beautiful and gripping piece of work.

"To Director Charles Maigne belongs a great share of the credit for this fine production. He gives the star every possible opportunity, but he does not destroy dramatic values by lessening the scenes belonging to the other characters, all of whom have strong roles which are convincingly played.

"My opinion is that 'A Cumberland Romance' is a 'knock-out.'"

"KICK IN" BILLED AT THE PRINCESS

Thrilly and Mysterious Situations Feature Mildred Page Players' Next Offering on Wednesday Evening

"Kick In" has been chosen as the next play for presentation by the Mildred Page Players, and, being a crook play, is, of course, full of thrilly and mysterious situations. "Kick In" teaches a lesson as well as being a "thrilly" evening's entertainment. It warns those who have not ventured on the perilous sea of misdeeds, and it offers hope to the unfortunate who has never strayed so far but what earnest endeavor and firm determination to keep to the right road will bring him out on top when the last gong sounds and life's last race is run. "Kick In" is by Willard Mack, a name well known in the theatrical world today. At the first performance on Wednesday night, March 23, a large framed portrait of Byron Aldenn will be given the one guessing nearest the correct number of words spoken by Miss Page in "The Country Cousin," last week.

The Mildred Page Players have presented many splendid plays in the past and have listed for future productions a great number of the latest successful stock releases procurable, but feel safe in saying none could please more than "Kick In."

Beginning Wednesday night, March 23, and playing the balance of the week, with the usual Saturday matinee.

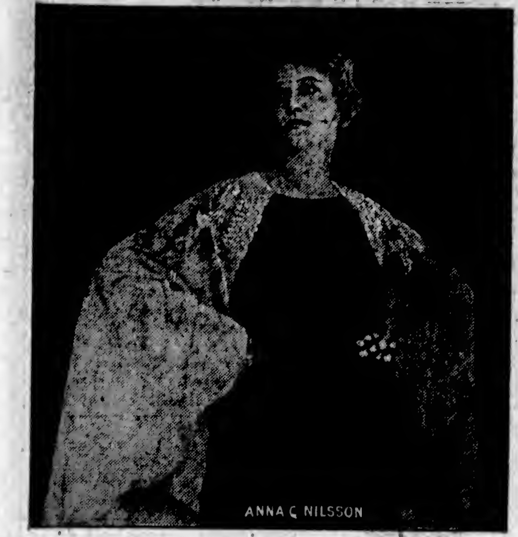
To Instantly Have a Beautifully Rosy-White Skin and Complexion.



New York—"The secret of beauty is the proper care of the skin," says Miss Nilsson, the popular Metro star. "It only requires a few moments' time and anyone is more than paid for the little effort it takes. In the first place the skin should be kept scrupulously clean. Use a good cleansing cream (Liska cold cream I have found to be the best); follow this by bathing the face with warm water, then rinse with cold water and dry thoroughly with a coarse towel. After this process select a beautifier which in addition to being a beautifier has a healing effect on the skin. The very best I have found for this purpose is derwillo, as it instantly beautifies the complexion and its continued use makes the results permanent." Derwillo takes the place of face powder, as it stays on better and is wonderful for a shiny nose, oily, dark, sallow skin, freckles, tan, wrinkles and other facial blemishes. Just make this test: Put Derwillo on one side of your face, then look in your mirror and compare it with the other side—you will need no further argument to convince you that nothing beautifies like derwillo. It imparts a youthful appearance, and if you would keep your complexion at its best all the time make derwillo a part of your toilet as you now do face powder and note the favorable comments of your friends. Short sleeves are now in vogue, use derwillo to beautify your hands and arms and protect them from roughness and ruddiness, which always follows exposure to sun, dust and wind. It is guaranteed absolutely harmless on the most delicate skin and will positively not stimulate or produce a growth of hair. Give it a thorough trial and you will never be without it. Accept no substitutes as there is nothing "better," "just as good" or "just like it."

NOTE—Ask your druggist about derwillo and he will tell you that he has never sold any toilet article which has become so popular in so short a time. This is due to the satisfaction it gives. It is guaranteed by every druggist or department store to give complete satisfaction or they will refund your money. If you don't like it take it back. Could anything be fairer? It is sold at all toilet counters in this city, including Owl Drug Co., Vancouver Drug Co. (Advt.)

SPECIAL MUSIC BY PRESBYTERIAN CHOIR

On Wednesday Evening the Sacred Cantata, "The Seven Words of Christ," Will Be Sung by Choir of Fifty

An especially fine programme of music has been arranged for the evening of Wednesday, March 23, at the First Presbyterian Church, when a choir of fifty voices will give several compositions of interest. The music has been carefully prepared, and will include the "Inflammatus," from Rossini's "Stabat Mater," with Miss L. Christie as soloist; "Blessed Jesu, Fount of Mercy," from Dvorak's "Stabat Mater," a composition which affords splendid opportunity for shading and expression, the subject being announced by the basses and afterwards treated in varied form; and a sacred cantata, "The Seven Words of Christ," composed by Th. Dubois, the eminent French organist-composer.

This last will constitute the feature of the second part of the programme, and will be the first performance of the work in the city. It was first performed in the Church of St. Clothilde, Paris, France, in 1867, since when it has become very popular, although France has chiefly benefited from the work. In that country it has long enjoyed a reputation, and has been finely rendered by the great cathedral organists and choirs. It is thoroughly modern in style, and may be described as typical French music. The soloists will be Mrs. R. G. Morrison, soprano; Mr. Draper, tenor; Mr. F. J. Mitchell, basso; and Mr. Alfred Gurney will be at the organ.

There will be a collection to defray expenses.

The first part of the programme will contain three hymns, in which the audience is asked to join.

TODAY'S CONCERT AT ROYAL VICTORIA

G.W.V.A. Band Will Play for Last Time Tonight—"Request" Numbers to Form Major Part of Programme

The programme for tonight's concert to be given by the G.W.V.A. Band at the Royal Victoria will be the final concert for the season, and will be entirely composed of numbers which are being played at the request of patrons of these concerts. Bandmaster Miller has never arranged a finer programme; it is one that should be pleasing to all. Messrs. T. Kelway (tenor) and E. Butterworth (baritone), both popular artists, will be the only assisting soloists, Mr. Kelway to sing "Celeste Aida," from Verdi's opera, and Mr. Butterworth's number to be a very fine folk-sing by Fred Sanderson, "Up From Somerset." The two vocalists will also be heard by special request in that wonderful duet, "Si Pel Ciel," from Verdi't "Otello." Every seat for this occasion will be free. Between Part 1 and Part 2 of the programme a collection will be taken up by the W.A. to the G.W.V.A., the proceeds to go towards obtaining some much-needed new uniforms and new band parts for the coming Summer season.

The Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Nichol have kindly consented to be present, and it is hoped that a very full house will greet the band in their final concert.

The Big Super-Picture

"HABIT"

A New Dramatic Triumph

All Week—Commencing Tomorrow

☛ The accusation which brands the man with a deadly scar ☚

The story of a girl who left love in a cottage for hate in a mansion.—Three promises of perfect pleasure—a powerful drama—a brilliant romance—and the greatest style-show you ever saw

DON'T TELL A SOUL HOW IT ENDS—IT'S TOO GOOD TO MISS—OR SPOIL BY TELLING

It Mirrors Most of Us!

Watch This Climax

Habit had brought the girl to the apartment of the man to whom she had turned for the things her husband could not afford.

See This Sensation

Two trains rushing to a head-on smash, while the driver of one sleeps at his post. A blare of whistles—a crash—and hissing, blazing, the trains splinter in the impact.

It happens right in front of the camera—right before you, close-up on the screen. It's an indescribable thrill!

And This Novelty

Want to see some of the most beautiful models in America displaying the gorgeous gowns, hats and lingerie from Milady's wardrobe, and the very latest of bathing suits . . . . fur-frilled ones? They're here in the most lavish of all screen-style-shows, specially designed and staged for this big production. An eye-opener for women, and men, too.

Suburb and Country

Agriculture is a first principle: on it rests the life and happiness of mankind.—Julian A. Dimock

Garden Notes for March

"THE most laborious period of the gardener's year is the last half of this month and the first fortnight of April," says an old English gardening book, and in this country, where extra help is to be obtained only by the favored few, this season, when everything is calling out to be attended to at the same time, is indeed a strenuous time. Luckily this Winter has been so open and mild that the "forehanded" gardener has been able to prepare much of his work in advance. This faculty of forethought, by the way, seems to me to be one of the distinguishing marks of the true gardener. He is always looking ahead, and never more so than in the least promising season. Anybody can be said to look ahead in the bright Spring weather as he puts in his seeds for Autumn harvesting, but the born gardener is still looking ahead in the Fall when other people store their tools and never do a hand's turn in the vegetable patch until the Spring urge comes upon them again. The consequence is that the real gardener's land is in the best shape for the Spring work, while the other man's is yet to be done, and probably is scamped in the process as the rush of the season hurries him forward.

An esteemed correspondent has a theory in regard to successful onion growing which may be of interest to others. Formerly, he says, he made the practice of sowing the seed very early in the Spring, but his crop was usually unsuccessful, although he studied the subject closely and gave the bed the treatment onions were said to require. At last he evolved the theory that in very early Spring the land was somewhat soured by the Winter wet, and he resolved to delay the sowing until the earth had become warm and mellow with sunshine, a plan which, last year, resulted in a heavy crop. His particular garden seems to be of heavy soil which retains the moisture. Another wrinkle in onion growing is to thin them only so far apart that they will be slightly crowded as the bulbs approach maturity. By letting them crowd slightly, they are forced upward, and the upper part of the bulb ripens in consequence, which prevents the development of thick necks. Thick necks, of course, will also result from using poor seed. The onion is well known as a heavy feeder, and no pains must be spared to get the soil well settled before sowing the seed.

Celery is another vegetable which is not quite so easy to grow. Its wild relative luxuriates only in wet, mucky places, and these conditions, moisture and richness of soil, must be given to the cultivated celery if it is to succeed. Too heavy supplies of manure, though, will have a tendency to form coarse, ill-flavored stalks, so it is better for this crop to manure moderately well, and then, at the time of planting out, add a small amount of bone flour and nitrate of soda, working it into the loose earth of the trench. Good soakings of water must be given during the dry weather and occasional applications of liquid manure will help the good work along.

The planting of all deciduous trees and shrubs should be over by now, but there is yet time for the transplanting of the evergreens with balled roots. These are expensive, and it is all the more strange that people in planting them usually make the mistake of placing them much too close together. Rhododendrons, for instance, are frequently placed as close as four feet from each other without any regard for the size they will attain after some years. Eight or ten feet apart is the proper distance, and the space between may be used for cheaper shrubs that can be taken out when needed. There is many a south border in Victoria which could be beautified by a regal bush of camellia, which is of such great value for its early Spring flowers. The Daphne Mezereum rubrum, which has been in bloom for the past month, is another shrub that everybody ought to have. We cannot value too highly those shrubs and flowers that at the earliest moment in Spring help to banish the Winter of our discontent and make us believe that Summer is near.

In raising the annuals for the flower garden in the house, great care has to be taken to prevent their becoming weak and spindling, no attempt should be made to hurry them along, and as they become large enough, they should be set in a cold frame to harden off. Where a cold frame is not part of the garden equipment, it can still be constructed by means of a frame of four boards on edge, banked up with earth to prevent draughts at the corners and a covering made of cheese cloth stretched on a frame of laths. The great object of a cold frame is to afford shelter for half tender plants during the cold nights and on inclement days, at all other times the cheese cloth should be removed so that the plants may become sturdy, with abundance of light and air. The impossibility of preventing a proportion of single stocks appearing among the grand doubles is a difficulty to some people. An English gardening authority says that from long experience it has been found that when planting out, preference should always be given those plants having a good share of fine fibrous roots, even if the plants are somewhat weaker than the others, for it is the coarse-forked rooted plant that usually produces the single bloom. As many people know, the case is somewhat similar with petunias, which also give a share of single blossoms even when the double sorts are purchased, the weaker plants being always saved, as these usually are the double-flowering plants.

Blasting for Fruit Trees

THE promise of the Minister of Agriculture, the Hon. E. D. Barrow, regarding cheaper powder, and the expression of his opinion at the Farmers' Institutes' Convention in January that "the powder should be available before the end of March," has aroused everybody's expectations. Blasting powder is coming to be looked upon as one of the indispensable adjuncts in certain operations in farming. Not only is it the only solution to the problem of clearing heavily timbered land of the immense stumps that are left, but it has become a well recognized fact that nothing can equal blasting in preparing land for orchards, particularly where there is a hard impenetrable subsoil. On a subsoil of this sort fertilizing and tilling the top soil is not sufficient for the requirements of trees. Moreover, where the top soil is clayey, it is impossible to dig holes for the new trees without tending to pack the clay around the sides of the hole, thus presenting a stiff wall when the roots of the tree reach it through the well-prepared soil that probably fills the hole itself. Blasting mellows the ground in all directions around the hole; it breaks the hard subsoil underneath and permits the tree to strike its roots downward, and by creating a porous, water-absorbing condition in the subsoil, it stops the danger of drought and prevents the loss of growth so frequently noticeable in trees the first year of planting. In the same way, root growth is made easy, and since immensely more plant food is made available, the growth of the tree is speeded up and the fruit-bearing period is put forward a year or two.

Although these benefits are often referred to in the case of freshly planted orchards, they also apply to old orchards, and are specially applicable to those that have ceased to bear well. In such cases the subsoil is broken up by charges placed from five to fifteen feet from the trees, the distance depending upon the age and size of the tree and deep enough so that the soil will only be slightly heaved up and not blown out. The action in this instance produces the same effect as that desired in the first planting of an orchard, the soil in all directions is shattered and loosened, which causes the trees to be able to send out fresh roots to take up the plant food thus liberated, producing a general rejuvenance, which shows at once in increased fruit bearing.

The Drop in Wool Prices

THE astounding drop in price which affected our wool growers so seriously last Summer certainly gave rise to a thirst for finding out the cause or causes of such a bolt from the blue. A writer in a recent issue of a leading American farm journal has discovered some of the reasons by going to London, the business centre of the world, where every pulse-beat can be felt that relates to any industry whatever in any quarter of the globe.

The sheep man, in trying to find out a reason, probably lumped it all on the shoulders of that convenient scapegoat, the profiteer; yet while he must take his share of the blame, he is, after all, too small to have engineered the whole trouble, which is rather the result of a combination of circumstances. Of course, the war was ultimately responsible for these various circumstances, though in different ways. For instance, the exigencies of the war caused Great Britain to buy up stocks of the coarser wools far in excess of what was eventually needed owing to the abrupt termination of the war. On the other hand, the lavish circulation of money among employers and wage earners, munition manufacturers and workers for example, led to an extravagance in clothing previously unknown. None but the finest grades of cloth were desired, with the consequence that while the highest priced and finest wools were in keen demand, the coarser wools were not bought at all. South Africa, which goes in largely for merinos, profited very much by this state of affairs, while Australia, producing the coarser grades, was very badly hit. The cessation of the manufacture of the lower priced cloths was, of course, a ridiculous mistake, and one that the average English person who desired only a fair suit of clothes at a moderate price resented as much as anybody.

Another circumstance which arose out of these abnormal conditions came about inevitably. People confronted with the settling down of trade which was bound to come after the unnatural excitement caused by war conditions, refused to purchase clothes while they remained at the high figures demanded, and this form of "strike" reacted speedily through the retailers to the manufacturers, for if there was little demand for cloth there could be little demand for wool. Of course, these high prices that were thus being struck against were to a great extent the fault of the profiteers, from the retailer all along the line, and everybody concerned was unwilling to let down such a pleasant and profitable state of affairs.

But greater than all these contributing causes is the fact that wool is not in demand today because millions of people in the world are unable to afford it who previously offered a good market. The central nations of Europe are too utterly ruined to be able to purchase wool, and authorities state that little real improvement can be expected until European conditions are stabilized. Japan also, which previously had been offering an increasingly good market for woolens, is now unable to purchase much in this line, partly owing to her recent silk failures. The British Government still has on its hands an immense surplus of wool, mostly of the coarse grades, and a great deal of which is still in Australia. Naturally it is endeavoring to unload as fast as possible, yet it must not do so fast enough to break what is left of the market.

Thus the case stands which might well make a superior visitor to our planet both laugh and cry at the same moment. That there should be people who will have nothing but the superfine—and let it not be forgotten that average smart youth and the up-to-the-minute damsel, both drawing exceedingly moderate salaries, are as much at fault as the really rich, who are comparatively few in number, and could not by themselves do great harm, and people who are shivering because they cannot afford even the roughest of cloth, and people who are getting out of the wool business because it does not "pay" at present prices, and stocks of wool laid up and clothing no one—all present a tangle that is as pathetic as it is difficult to straighten out. Certain actions can and no doubt will be taken to ameliorate things somewhat, but the reasonable wool-grower will probably recognize that the high prices of the past few years were one of the abnormalities of war-time, and can never be expected again, and he must be content with the automobile and the player-piano he was able to get in those piping days, and the moderate margin of profit that a gradually convalescent state of things will probably be able, with good management, to afford him in the future.

The Canned Milk Industry of the Lower Fraser Valley

THE whole round earth by this time knows that the Lower Fraser Valley is one of those spots where Nature seems to have sat down and considered just how rich a soil and lenient a climate she could possibly make. Hay and roots simply grew by themselves in such a pampered locality, and hay and roots in turn naturally mean cows. Therefore the population of cows to the square mile is probably higher there than anywhere else in the Dominion. A great part of their product, of course, goes to fill the milk bottles every morning in the nearby city of Vancouver, as well as New Westminster and other local centres, but you also see much of it done up in neat red-labelled cans on the shelves of every grocery store in the Province.

The cannery at Ladner is possibly the most convenient to visit from Vancouver, and an early morning run across the level miles of Lulu Island brings one to the ferry, where motor trucks, heavily weighted with big milk cans, rumble down into the open side of the top-heavy looking craft, and, together with smart-looking motors, wagons, cows and farm horses, are conveyed across the wide and swift-flowing Fraser to the Ladner wharf. The big truck rumbles out again at the other side of the boat and sets off for the factory with the three tall, slender chimney stacks half a mile or so beyond the town, to which trucks and milk wagons converge over the hard, level roads from all directions, coming from farms, where a day's plowing would not turn up a stone from the rich, black mould.

After the milk has been unloaded on the platform of the factory, it is weighed and tested for butter fat. It is then turned into a great vat, whence it is pumped into a boiler and then into the evaporator, where 50 per cent of the water is driven off. This is all that is done to the milk that you take out camping with you, and if you add to it an equal quantity of water, you will have exactly the same milk as it was when it came from the Delta milk farms. When the evaporation is complete, the milk is run in a thin stream over cold water pipes and carried into another great storage vat. From this it is pumped to the can-filling machine, which is quite the most fascinating portion to the casual visitor of the whole process. An endless "railway" carries new, empty cans on to a small table which revolves under a tap that permits only a certain quantity of milk to flow into each can. Having received its apportioned share, filling it almost to the brim, the can passes onward off the revolving table along another railway, its precious contents shaking slightly with the vibrations, to a machine, where, with a smack, the lid is clamped on.

Safe now in the container, which you have probably punched this morning for your coffee, the milk goes through the final and essential process of being thoroughly sterilized. In great baskets the cans are taken to the sterilizer, where they are cooked under a steam pressure of 250 degs. The process is now finished, but to make certain of the product, the cans are stacked up for three or four weeks, so that any possible leakage in any one of them may reveal itself before the product is placed on the market. At the end of the testing time, each tin is carefully inspected, and on being passed as perfect, it goes to the machine, where another wizard-like machine takes possession of it, neatly covers the reverse side of a label with paste, wraps it round the tin and drops the tin of evaporated milk exactly as you see it on the grocery shelves into a basket, whence it is taken and placed in the cases ready for shipment. Thus, after the renowned model of the story of the house that Jack built, we may say that Father Fraser long ago laid down the rich alluvial silt that now feeds the grass that feeds the cows that supply the milk to the factory that converts it into a state in which it can, in turn, be supplied to the mining camps and lumber camps and fisheries and to many of the new homes of British Columbia. The rhythm may be decidedly "free" and the rhyming nil, but no one can say there is not something epic in the way one portion of our great Pacific Province supplies the need of another by man's industry and ingenuity.

What About Getting Some Bees?

BEEKEEPERS will tell you that it is not everybody who can keep bees. Since the days of the old straw skeps that stood in the sunshine down in the old kitchen garden, and the whole family was turned out to beat a carnival of noise from dishpans and other cymbal-like instruments, in the days of swarming, and the honey was taken at the expense of a great mortality among poor little gatherers of it, beekeeping has been raised to the position of a highly specialized enterprise in which there is always something new to be learnt. There are many people who are too busy to give sufficient time to this study, but, of, course, if one has a natural liking for bees, one will study them without making a task of it. Generally speaking, a good gardener frequently becomes a good beekeeper, which is not surprising, for, as a gardener, he is already equipped with the qualities of patience and peaceful perseverance and close observation, all of which are necessary in beekeeping. On the other hand, bees will not, contrary to popular fancy, derive much good from the gardener's plot. They will buzz happily into some of its flowers, but at a good many of his most beautiful bedders they will simply turn their noses up. A man who had kept bees with great success in the vicinity of Revelstoke moved to Vancouver, and, being a born beekeeper, he retained one hive, setting it up in the backyard of his town home, but although there were gardens and flowers on every side, the bees all died before the end of the season for want of food.

To a natural liking for bees and their ways, then, must be added a suitability of location, or the beekeeper will find his hobby a loss. White clover, as many know, produces abundance of fine honey, and where much of this is seen to grow, bees may be invested in with security. Extensive orchards also afford a good field, so do maple groves, whose blossoms may be heard, on a Spring day, to be adrone with bees; the blossoms of the arbutus trees are also sought, as are those of the rosy-purple fireweed.

Given food and proper conditions, the beekeeper now, thanks to the many investigations and close study of experts, can do, as it seems to the uninitiated, wonders in controlling his hives in order to obtain the maximum amount of honey. His principal exertions are directed toward the control of the natural tendency to swarm, and in this connection it is interesting to learn that the Dominion Experimental Farm is now carrying out an attempt to breed a non-swarming variety of bee.

Women who have some spare time, and can be free to attend to the hives at the critical moments, frequently succeed well with bees. Stings cause some people to hesitate to keep bees, but it is a matter of general experience that, after the first few stings, subsequent ones cause very little inconvenience, and as it is possible to avoid them to a very great extent, the hindrance lies more in the fear than in what actually happens. Though the world is "so full of a number of things," an apiary is one of the most fascinating things in it, and usually the person who starts with only a moderate amount of interest, and one hive, becomes before long a thorough bee fan, and is never so happy as when studying or talking of the ways of his wonderful insects.

Value of Goat's Milk

By C. H. Unwin, Vice-President British Columbia Goatbreeders' Association.

GOAT'S milk is the very best food for infants in the world, next to mother's milk, which it so closely resembles. That is the verdict of all parents who have used goat's milk for their children.

Many little ones in Victoria owe their lives to goat's milk. Here is the story of one of them which came to my knowledge at the last meeting of the Goatbreeders' Association. A couple resident in Victoria had an infant who did not thrive. It was weakly and losing weight. Its own mother's milk did not suit it. After cow's milk and various patent foods had been tried and found wanting, the attendant physician recommended goat's milk. The father duly procured a goat, which, although a poor milker, gave sufficient milk for the baby, who, having at last found the nourishment that its little stomach could digest, thrived famously. Easy in his mind as to the welfare of his child, the father started on an extended business tour. He was recalled home in haste after a few weeks, as the baby was believed to be dying. He returned to find his child at death's door, and that the goat, never a good specimen, had been neglected and allowed to go dry, so that once again the child had been placed on unsuitable food. Although fearing that it was then too late to save the baby's life, the father hurried to a well-known goatbreeder and returned with the best milking goat he could procure. Small quantities of the diluted milk were fed to the infant, by this time almost too weak to swallow, and gradualy the poor starved mite revived. In a few days the infant was well on the road to health and strength once more, and, thanks to goat's milk, it has never looked back. The parents, with their child, are now in Seattle, where goat's milk is readily procurable. They have, however, left instructions for a first-class milking goat to be awaiting them on their return to Victoria.

This is not an isolated case as every goatbreeder knows. All have had personal experience of sick and weakly children and adults who have been restored to robust health by the aid of the milk of that little friend of all the world, the goat.

Quantities of Goat's Milk

The reason is not far to seek. Milk has always been recognized as one of the most perfect natural foods, but this is milk in its most digestible form. I have yet to hear of a case where goat's milk could not be retained by the most delicate stomach. The fat globules of which cream is composed are in goat's milk one seventh the size of those comprising the butter fat of the cow. The fact that the goat is practically immune from tuberculosis and is the healthiest of all animals, is another powerful argument for feeding the milk to children.

"I am irrevocably convinced that goat's milk is the best substitute for human milk for infant feeding, not only for its close similarity, chemically and physically, but also for the readiness with which the infant's digestive organs receive and digest goat's milk."

But it is as a supplier of milk for general family use that the future of the milk goat lies. No milk is so delicious to the taste or more suitable for culinary purposes. Contrary to general uninformed opinion, it is not richer than full cream cow's milk, though considerably richer than the attenuated liquid usually delivered to the consumer. Nor does it possess the slightest goaty flavor. Prejudiced visitors who taste it in fear and trembling for the first time invariably put down an empty glass, saying it is the best milk they ever drank.

For every purpose for which milk can be used goat's milk has no equal, and remember always that the goat is baby's next best friend.

A Profitable Garden of Small Fruits

LAST year a fruit garden near Victoria yielded its owner the sum of $100 by the sale of its fruit The size of the plot is about fifty by seventy feet, and the soil is a medium loam. No water is supplied to it be the weather ever so dry, but the soil is always kept in a loose and dusty state on the surface. Every Autumn a dressing is applied of a mixture of seaweed and chicken manure, which, in the early Spring, is turned and forked lightly into the soil without touching the roots of the plants.

The fruits grown in the garden include gooseberries, red currants, raspberries, loganberries and Himalaya blackberries, and from the end of May, when the gooseberries begin to be large enough to pick green, until the middle of September, when the best of the blackberries are over, the various fruit keep the owner well occupied in picking them, although the necessity of employing outside assistance, which is usually difficult to get in a small enterprise, is avoided. The loganberries are trained up posts and then along connecting beams, which also cross at intervals to the posts of the next row and form a sort of pergola. The blackberries are trained in much the same way. The raspberry canes are two feet apart and are trained also to a length of board supported upon posts. Both loganberries and raspberries are rigorously cut back each Fall as soon as the leaves begin to drop and are tied up closely to their supports. Some of the currants are trained in bush form and others are spread out fan-shaped and kept in position by supports, and these, as well as the gooseberries, are well pruned at the right season. Nothing is allowed to grow rank or wild, if it did it would soon overpower and injure its neighbor, for the distances are smaller between the plants than is usually the case.

As regards the yield for each variety, though no fixed record was kept, the following figures are approximately correct and are likely to be rather under than over the mark, as small quantities were often picked for household uses and neighborly gifts, of which no account was kept. Gooseberries, 90 pounds; currants, 100 pounds; raspberries, 160 pounds; logans, 130 pounds, and blackberries, 120 pounds, amounting to 600 pounds in all, and as the average selling price was 16c, almost $100 was realized. The cost of crates was not much, a great deal of the fruit being sold in bulk, and was probably covered by the fruit used in the house. The uniformly good yield of this garden, which has been established for some years now, is undoubtedly due to the continual cultural care throughout the year. Not a weed is permitted to appear and rob the soil of its nutriment, the pruning and tying is carried out at the right time and the soil is persistently kept in good condition.

DIESEL DEVELOPMENTS

Unquestionably the Diesel engine possesses many great advantages in principle when considered for the propulsion of war craft. These have been, if anything, overemphasized in the past; yet progress is steadily being made, and the latest news that successful trials on shore have been carried out abroad, with a six-cylinder submarine engine developing some 400 brake horse-power per cylinder on a total weight of 44 pounds per brake horse-power, marks an advance on the best results in the past. The large German engines, it will be remembered, only developed 300 brake horse-power per cylinder as a maximum on a considerably greater weight than that just quoted. The longed-for internal combustion turbine may possibly appear on the horizon. News from Germany shows that this type of machine is being investigated there. The very nature of this problem, however, suggests that its solution will come in two stages, the first by way of the enunciation of some new principle of heat utilization, and the second, by the invention of means and the discovery of materials which will enable the principle to be put into successful operation. There may be much lapse of time between the accomplishment of these two supposititious stages; yet this issue cannot be overlooked. In any case, these reports emphasize the necessity for considering seriously the many problems which arise, bearing in mind the rapidity with which we are moving in these new fields of engineering development.—London Engineering.

As a Deterrent

A new record was set in Men's Night Court recently, when Henry Roberts, fifty, of no address in particular, was convicted for the thirty-fourth time. His finger prints and police records revealed that Roberts had spent 1,610 days in jail in the last eight years,

ALL the little girls who go to school in Victoria are taught brush drawing. Nearly all love the pure, bright colors and like to try to make pictures. Perhaps they will be pleased with a story about a little girl who loved animals and became a great painter. One of her pictures is "The Horse Fair," of which some of you have seen engravings.

It is now nearly a hundred years since, on March 16, 1822, there was born in the city of Bordeaux a brown-eyed baby, who was soon afterwards christened Marie Rosalie. Her father, Raymond Bonheur, was an artist and his wife, Sophie, was a musician. It was perhaps no wonder that the baby loved beautiful things and tried to use her father's crayons as soon as her tiny fingers could hold them.

The child's modest home stood in a sunny garden, and little Salie, as she called herself, was often taken out among the fruitful vineyards and rich farms near the city. Rosalie's grandparents lived with them, and, as the little girl played with her younger brothers, grandpapa often found fault with her tomboy ways.

The painter did not make much money in the busy city of Bordeaux, so he went to Paris to try his fortune. When the young mother wrote to her husband she sent him the pictures the little girl drew for him, telling him she believed she would be a wonderful woman.

Rosa was six before her father could send for his family, and she never forgot the beauty of her childhood's home. At first Paris looked ugly to her, but soon her bright eyes spied beauties. She used to slip into a church near her home and gaze at the pictures of the Madonna and saints.

She was soon sent to a school with her brothers and became a leader in their games and sometimes in their quarrels. When she was eight years old, a little sister was born and named Lucille. There was much work now for the gentle mother to do. It was a time when there were many plans for making the world better, and the father did not always remember in his thoughts for others that the mother had more than her share of care as well as of labor. When Rosa was nearly twelve, the patient, faithful wife and mother went to rest. The home was broken up and friends cared for a time for the motherless children. It was not long, however, before the lonely father, to their great joy, again gathered his little flock around him.

Rosa was sent to learn dressmaking, for her father had found it so hard to support his family by his art that he refused to allow her to learn a business in which employment, even for a man, was so uncertain. But the girl could not, or would not, learn to sew. She was then sent to a boarding school. Here the wilful pupil nearly drove the mistress wild by the pranks in which she was the ringleader.

At last Monsieur Bonheur determined to let his daughter become an art student. He took her into his own studio. She learned rapidly and showed that she possessed the gift of genius as well as great industry. Now and again she and her brothers and little Lucille would have a sham battle in what should have been a quiet studio, but, when they came to their senses, they repaired the damage as well as they could.

It was soon seen that Rosa could paint animals better than anything else. Her father often took her into the country to study them in the fields and woods, and living models were often brought into the studio.

Rosa's first exhibited pictures were "Two Rabbits" and "Goats and Sheep." She was nineteen then, and we must leave her. You will be glad to learn, however, that her father and teacher lived to see the most beautiful of her pictures, and that her brothers and sister also became artists.

Your Garden

HAVE you chosen a garden plot? It is time all boys and girls who have leisure to spare in daylight and who are old enough to be trusted with tools and seed knew where they were going to make their gardens for the season of 1921.

If your house is on a big lot, there may be room for you to work in the home garden. If not, there will be vacant lots for the asking. If in any neighborhood a garden club were formed, vegetables could be raised that would help out family meals.

Big boys and strong girls too often leave the labor of gardening to mothers or fathers who have already so much to do that they cannot attend to the work, or should not be obliged to do so.

Now, don't let this week-end go by without finding a place where you can make a garden. If they don't need its crops at home, you can sell or give them away. People have gone hungry this Winter for want of the potatoes, peas, beans, turnips and other vegetables young folks could have raised last Summer.

LITTLE SKIPPER

Dear little skipper, with your laughing eyes of blue,
Playing on the seashore the whole day through.
Merry peals of laughter on the breezes sown,
Dear little skipper, of the good ship Home.

Picking up the sea shells on the ocean strand,
Building little castles in the fine white sand,
Tired little skipper when the day has flown,
Slinging up your hammock in the good craft Home.

Dear little skipper, when you ride life's raging gale,
The winds tear down your gallant mast and rip away your sail,
I'll set a lamp o' love aburning to guide you o'er the foam,
Aburnin' at the topm'st of the lightship Home.

But skipper, when I'm fast asleep, my gleam lost in the dark,
And the raging tempests swamp your little bark,
May God set His star to guide you through the night where'er you roam,
Guide your little barkentine back to port and Home.

Let Him be your pilot, skipper, all your journey through.
His compasses are certain, His charts read true.
The seas are heavy, high and wild they run.

Careless Mothers Driven Home

VERY wonderful stories are told by observers of birds and animals. Here is one, of which any very patient boy or girl should be able to prove the truth. It is told by Mr. W. H. Hudson in "Adventures Among Birds," who tells us that it is a common fact in natural history that the mates of certain species exhibit a good deal of anxiety about the proper care of the eggs, and exercise supervision and authority over the females, compelling them during the period of incubation to return to the nest when they are inclined to stay out too long. Our swift is a familiar example. But has anyone ever observed an indivdual of any species—one of a colony, presumably a male—exercising that kind of mastership over a number of females in the absence of their mates? Yet that is exactly what I witnessed on one occasion, and if I were to ask a dozen or fifty naturalists to name the species, they would all guess wrong, for the bird was the small, delicate, gentle, moth-like sand martin—the "mountain butterfly," as it is prettily called in Spain.

Near Yeovil I found a breeding place of those birds in a vast old sand pit. It was in May, and no doubt they were incubating. There were about fifty holes in the steepest side of the sandbank, and when I began watching them, about fourteen or fifteen birds were flying round and round within the basin of the pit, hawking after flies and perhaps prolonging their playtime after their morning feed. By and by I noticed one bird acting in a singular manner; I saw him come out of one hole and go quickly into another, then into still another, until he had visited several. He remained about five or six seconds in each one, or as long as it would take him to run to the end of the burrow and return. Finally, having finished inspecting the holes, he began pursuing one of the birds flying aimlessly about in the pit; the chase increased in speed and violence until the hunted bird took refuge in one of the burrows. He then started chasing another of the birds flying about, and in time that bird also was driven into a hole. After a good deal of rushing about, he remained alone. After flying up and down a few times, he finally flew off, probably to some watercourse or moist meadow at a distance from the pit where flies abounded. There he would join the other males of the colony.

I remained for some time on the spot, keeping a close watch on the little black burrows in the orange-colored sandbank; but not a bird flew or even peeped out; nor did any of the absent birds return to the pit.

Is it a habit of the bank swallow, in the breeding time, for one male to remain behind on guard when the others go away to feed and when the females, or some of them, are still off their eggs? The action of the swallow in putting the others back upon their eggs strikes you as a development of some such habit or instinct as that of the swift, and it is possible that in the sand martin the social habit is in a more advanced state, and the communities more close knit than in most species. But there is a good deal to learn yet about the inner life of birds.

He Scared the Tiger

A MAHOUT is a native Indian who manages and drives an elephant. The great brute learns to understand and obey his voice, but it is not often that the tiger pays any attention to it.

In The Wide World Magazine Mr. G. H. Heap tells how the yell of the mahout saved his life. He was hunting in Assam, seated behind the mahout on the back of an elephant. They were moving slowly through the forest when the track of some animal was seen. The writer goes on to relate:

"I was carefully following the track when out of a dense clump of grass walked a beautiful full-grown tiger.

"The tiger had just killed a large deer, and started to feed. On being disturbed, he had strolled out to investigate. He stopped not more than twenty yards in front of the elephant, stood broadside on and assumed an air of contemptuous indifference.

"When the mahout whispered 'Maro! maro!' (Shoot! shoot!) it took me a moment to collect myself. However, I scored a hit just behind the right shoulder. The tiger's air of indifference now disappeared; he gave a great leap into the air to a spot about a hundred yards away, where he again stood broadside on in a patch of half-burnt thatch.

"I had only three cartridges left, and I fired each one without the tiger's moving an inch or even turning his head. The only reason I can offer for such strange conduct is that he was suffering from the shock of the first bullet. The last three shots must all have been misses.

"The situation was now serious, for I was without a single cartridge, and the tiger, turning his head now and then to lick his wound, was still standing there very much alive. While I hurriedly discussed our predicament with the agitated mahout, I took my eye for a moment off the tiger, and on looking again, I found that he had disappeared. Realizing then that it was a case of the hunter's being hunted, I told the mahout to start for home.

"He had no sooner turned the elephant's head than out rushed the tiger. With a great roar, he came straight for the elephant, which promptly took fright and started to bolt. The mahout's attention was divided between striving to get the terrified elephant under control and shouting at the tiger with all the power of his lungs. That proved his value in shikar (hunting) work, for the unearthly noise he made was the means of our salvation.

"The tiger was only a single leap away, and in imagination I could almost feel his huge teeth in my flesh, when the frantic mahout gave a perfectly terrific yell. In a flash the tiger turned, and the mahout, quick to take advantage of the almost unbelievable result of his outcry, continued shouting until the beast disappeared. It seems remarkable that such a ferocious beast should have been scared by the mahout's yells, but it is a fact that many wild animals will bolt on hearing an unusual noise."

The Magic Shoes

IT was midnight, the busiest time in Fairyland, and the air around the palace was thick with fairies and elves flying to carry out the Fairy Queen's orders.

"Where are you going, Humperkin?" one asked another.

"What are you going there for?"

"To take this pair of shoes to Prince Fazan. He has slain the Lion King, and got the magic sword, and now he has only to fly to the Princess Ena and deliver her from the dragon. But he cannot get to the dragon's island till he has these shoes. Are you going my way?"

So they played clap-wings as they flew side by side.

"Oh, my wings and whiskers!" he exclaimed. "I've lost those shoes."

"You must have dropped them on the way."

Now, as it happened, when he dropped the shoes he was flying over a great city, and they came tumbling down into a grubby little side street, right on the head of a boy who was standing shivering in the bitter wind.

"Who's chucking things at me?" he asked crossly. Then he saw the little red leather shoes lying in front of him in the mud.

"Oh, my," he exclaimed, picking them up, and putting them on.

"Whatever's up?" he cried next moment, for he found himself rising and floating through the air. Soon he was drifting over the house-tops, right to the very edge of the great city and out to the open country beyond.

"My! It's hot!" he exclaimed. "Wherever has the Winter gone to? I'd like to go on like this forever, if I only had something to eat. Hullo! There's a castle over there, sticking right out of the sea. It seems to be where I'm going to land, too," he added, as he sank down towards the little island. "All change! Mind the step! And here we are."

The next moment he was standing on the rocky ground just outside the castle. Through the big gateway he could see into the courtyard, where an old woman was sweeping. He walked boldly in.

"So you've come at last!" cried the woman.

"How did you guess I was coming?" he asked in surprise.

"The Fairy Queen promised that you should come and kill the dragon. The princess has been looking for you for days. But where is the Lion King's sword?"

"Sword? I never had one."

"But you are Prince Fazan, aren't you?"

"Not me! My name's George."

"Then how did you get those magic shoes?"

"Oh, what are we to do?" asked the old woman, wringing her hands. "The prince cannot get here without those shoes, and who's going to kill the dragon for us?"

"You leave it to me," said George calmly. "I'll attend to the dragon. Only hurry up and get me some dinner, for I'm that hungry I could eat a horse and cart."

While he was finishing his dinner a most beautiful princess came in.

"Oh, has he come at last? My prince! My hero!" she cried joyfully.

"It's the wrong one," said the old woman. "But he's going to tackle the dragon for us."

"Ah! Save me, and I will be your bride."

"Just as you like," responded George. "Trot out the dragon."

"It is away just now, but it will return at sunset very hungry," said the old woman. "I have to cook a dinner like this for it every day. It is very fond of sweet things."

"Wait a minute!" broke in George. "I've got an idea. Have you any treacle, and sugar, and butter?"

"Lots," said the old woman.

"Come along quick, then," cried George, very excited. "Get your biggest saucepan going, and we'll make the dragon some toffee."

The toffee was just ready when he noticed some sacks in a corner.

"What's in those?" he asked.

"Oh, that's only cement for mending the floor."

"Every little helps," said George, and emptied the cement into the toffee. Then they turned it out into a trough in the courtyard.

They had hardly finished when there came a great hissing noise from the sea.

"Quick! Hide!" cried the princess.

As they slipped behind the door the dragon came writhing and twisting into the courtyard.

As soon as it smelt the toffee it purred like a thunderstorm. Digging its snout into the trough it began to gobble. Soon it was covered with the sweet sticky stuff right up to the eyes. But the cement began to harden, and by and by the dragon could not move its jaws, while the toffee up its nose prevented it breathing out flames. After trying in vain to rub it off with its paws, it suddenly drew back, plunged into the sea and disappeared.

At that moment two figures came flying through the air in a chariot and alighted in the castle. They were Humperkin and Prince Fazan.

"I have come to save you, my beloved!" cried the prince.

"Alas," exclaimed the princess. "I have promised to wed this boy, who has delivered me from the dragon."

"Cheer up," said George. "I don't want the princess."

"I'll carry away the prince and princess in the chariot," said Humperkin. "And you can have the magic shoes to take you home."

"Not much, they don't!" exclaimed George, hastily kicking them off. "I'm going to stay here in this fine castle, with the old woman to cook for me, and live happily ever after."

And he did.

The Birds' Hospital

THE tiniest hospital in the world is probably the bird hospital in New York City. All sorts of feathered patients lie in tiny wicker baskets filled with soft white cotton and supported on tall wicker stands that form the beds. Over in the corner, under a green bough, lies a green-and-gold parrot, screaming hoarsely with the pain of an attack of neuralgia, while just opposite is a convalescent robin, trying stoutly to utter a faint "cheep."

The owner and director of the hospital knows how to take care of birds, and she acts as surgeon, nurse and druggist all in one. There is an operating room, with all kinds of sterilized instruments, fairy-like casts and splints, a sunroom where the birds may flutter back and forth in a bower of green, and a tiny delicatessen store stocked with fat, wriggly worms in small glass bottles, hundreds of brilliantly-lighted dragon flies and just the right kind of seed for each patient's diet.

Every one of the birds loves the "doctor," and when she passes on her morning rounds, rows of little feathered heads bob up over the sides of the baskets and dozens of bird voices—some of them very faint and weak, others loud and shrill—chirp and scream and "cheep" at her. When she picks up a helpless little robin, its small brown head bobs as if in gratitude, and it actually seems to know that something is being done to help the pain of its broken wing. There have been as many as 700 birds in the hospital at one time.—The Youth's Hospital.

Come forth into the light of things;

A CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

It is reported that the house in London to which Charles Dickens went as a little boy, and where he lived for some years, is to be turned into a children's library. No better use, nor one that would have pleased the great author better, could be thought of. The little folk who live in that part of the big city are to be envied. Children's libraries are among the good things we owe to the man who showed the world the hearts of children. He knew how they could suffer, and that it was possible to make the poorest and the worst of them happy if there was only love enough in the hearts of the grown-ups who lived with them.

A LECTURE ON CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

Delivered by CLARENCE W. CHADWICK, C.S.B.

Member of the Board of Lectureship of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

At the Christian Science Edifice, Victoria, B. C., on Friday evening, March 18.

The speaker said:

What the whole world needs today is more religion. But this religion must be made practical if it is to prove remedial or constructive. The gospel of healing must accompany the gospel of preaching, if the Word is to be with power. It is what Christians do, more than what they say, that convinces one that there is salvation in religion.

Because Christian Science has healed its thousands and hundreds of thousands in Jesus' way, it has won its right to recognition as a practical religion. The best way to inspire a man's faith in God, is to heal him morally and physically, thereby proving to him the power of Immanuel, "God with us," and giving him breadth and freedom of thought with which to recognize the great need of a demonstrable religion. His experience of healing soon does away with his innate opposition to spirituality. Those spiritually healed in Christian Science have nothing to say against Christ Jesus, nor against the religion which he lived to establish. Their one desire is to understand God and to make their religion practical. What a happy world this will be when everyone in it can prove the healing power of divine Love!

God Is Love

The story is told of a man, who, when a small child, became separated from his parents and was made to believe that he had a most unkind and cruel father, one who was always severe, unloving, and unlovable; one who was relentless and unforgiving, showing neither mercy nor pity for his own. The child listened to this portrayal of his father's character, which naturally made him very unhappy; and he grew into manhood, actually believing it all to be true.

Finally, a traveller, who was well acquainted with his father, found his way to this man and told him what was really true about his father. The man soon saw that he had been laboring under a woeful misconception of his parent, who was now represented to him as a most loving father, full of goodness and compassion toward his children, never angry nor wrathful, but full of gentleness and tenderness and kindness—just the opposite of what he had been taught to believe.

Many of us have been educated to believe what is just as untrue concerning our heavenly Father; and not until Christian Science entered into our lives did we learn that God is Love, full of goodness, mercy, and compassion; that he sends no evil, sin, disease, nor death upon man; that he is never angry nor wrathful with His children, but unutterably kind and loving.

Who but a God of Love, a tender and compassionate Father, could say to us: "Come now and let us reason together,——though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool" (Isa. 1:18); "I will seek that which was lost, and bring again that which was driven away, and will bind up that which was broken, and will strengthen that which was sick" (Ezk. 34:16)?

Love, Truth, Life, Spirit, and Mind are some of the terms employed by Mrs. Eddy to define Deity to human consciousness. To one trained to believe in a God of wrath and vengeance, these synonyms for God, when studied in the light of Christian Science, reveal a new heaven and a new earth.

Humanity has the right to know that Love demonstrated is not only the greatest thing in the world, but that it is the sum and substance of being. How can there be more than omnipotent, omniscient, and omnipresent Love and its infinite manifestation? All other terms used to define Deity are but different names for divine Love.

Christian Science reveals spiritual man as inseparable from God. To know, then, that God is Love, makes men fearless, unselfish, loving, kind, and compassionate. To know that God is Truth, makes men truthful, trustworthy, upright, and honorable. To know that God is Life, makes men more mentally awake, active, and useful, and, therefore, increases longevity. To know that God is Spirit, increases spirituality and leads thought away from the body. To know that God is one infinite Mind, quickens one's mental faculties of perception and comprehension, and enlarges one's capacity for right thinking.

Love's invitation, given to the world through Christ Jesus twenty centuries ago, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest" (Mat. 11:28), is reiterated today in the Christian Science text book, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy. It comes with healing in its wings, revealing the sacred mission of Christ Jesus, to teach and to demonstrate the lesson of divine Love. If we would become acquainted with the Father, we must learn to love, for what saith the Scripture? "Beloved, let us love one another: for love is of God; and everyone that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God. He that loveth not knoweth not God; for God is love" (1 John 4:7, 8).

The Saviour

Mrs. Eddy's teachings have thrown so much light upon the life and mission of the great Saviour of men, that the whole world rises to call her blessed. She says in substance to her followers: "If you profess to love him, keep his commandments." Then she explains, in unmistakable terms, how we are to prove our obedience.

When once asked whether she believed in the atonement of Christ, she replied: "I do; and this atonement becomes more to me since it includes man's redemption from sickness as well as from sin. I reverence and adore Christ as never before" (Misc. p. 96).

Christian Scientists do not believe that Jesus, the highest executor of God's law, atoned for our sins by annulling the righteous penalty for individual wrong doing; but that, by demonstrating the omnipotence of good, he proved the utter powerlessness of evil, and thereby outlined for us the one and only way to escape the penalty of wrongdoing, viz., by ceasing to do wrong. By proving man's at-one-ment with God, good, he became "the way, the truth, and the life" to all mankind.

Christian Scientists do not attempt to do away with the spiritual origin or divinity of Jesus. They accept, without reservation, Mrs. Eddy's statement that "Mary's conception of him was spiritual" (Science and Health, p. 332). They honor and revere the name of Christ Jesus, and they know only too well that something more than lip service is required to enable them to follow in his mental footsteps. They recognize the necessity for consecrated study and application of the sacred Word as presented in the Bible and in the Christian Science text book, if they would ever make their religion practical.

One of the highest tributes ever paid the Saviour was by our revered Leader when she said: "Jesus beheld in Science the perfect man, who appeared to him where sinning mortal man appears to mortals. In this perfect man the Saviour saw God's own likeness, and this correct view of man healed the sick" (Science and Health, p. 476).

Demonstration

What is demonstration in Christian Science? It is the practical proof of God's power and presence, resulting in moral and physical healing. By way of illustration: Suppose that a Christian Scientist reads in the morning papers that some dreaded disease is about to make its appearance in his community; that it has already claimed its thousands of victims, and that materia medica is unable to cope with it. What does he do? He immediately reverses sense testimony by striving to realize that the one Mind, God, is ever present and all-powerful, and governs the entire universe in perpetual peace and harmony; consequently, that there are no evil minds to believe in disease nor to fear it; that there is no evil power to mesmerize anyone into believing what is untrue. He knows that divine Love is supreme; that it casts out all fear. He persists in abiding in this secret place of the omnipotence and omnipresence of good; and what is the result? He remains fearless and strong; he escapes the devastating scourge himself, and he helps many others to recognize the nothingness of fear and hypnotic suggestion. This is Immanuel, "God with us," or demonstration.

One who knows nothing of Christian Science is confronted with the same glaring headlines, announcing the forthcoming plague. What does he do? The chances are that he will believe what he reads, and that he will pass along the lie to others. It is safe to say that it will not occur to him to think of God as an ever present help. He believes that some awful calamity is about to be experienced; and he thinks of it so much and becomes so fearful of results that, almost before he realizes it, that which he greatly feared has come upon him. Fear and disease are more real to him than what he calls life, and he surrenders to them unconditionally! How true the proverb: "The fear of man bringeth a snare; but whoso putteth his trust in the Lord shall be safe" (Prov. 29:25). Thousands upon thousands of human lives are sacrificed every year, because people insist upon believing and fearing what the senses tell them, instead of acknowledging and trusting in the divine presence, which is "of purer eyes than to behold evil" (Hab. 1:13).

Demonstration is the power of divine Love made practical to humanity. One cannot grasp the meaning of scientific demonstration nor become a successful practitioner until one learns how to feel and to express love for all mankind. The true Christian Scientist strives to abide in a healing consciousness, one characterized by genuine humility and confidence, as well as thankfulness for God's goodness and mercy.

Had Christ Jesus failed to prove that "his word was with power" (Luke 4:32), could he have conferred power upon his disciples "to heal all manner of sickness and all manner of disease" (Mat. 10:1)? Indeed not! No personal gift, no theological nor medical diploma, ever conferred real power upon anyone. The giving of spiritual power to his followers was nothing less than the practical proof to them of healing, accompanied by such audible attestation as the Master felt led to give. And this is demonstration, which fully agrees with Webster's definition of the word: "to show by proof"; "to establish beyond a doubt."

Christians today are given power to heal only when they lose confidence in matter, and turn to God with such implicit faith, trust, and understanding, that healing actually takes place. To illustrate this point: In desperation a business man sought a Christian Scientist for help. He stated his condition as being one of hopelessness. The doctors had placed him on a rigid diet, and had given him only a few months in which to live. His nights were practically sleepless. He had frequently been advised to seek help in Christian Science, but he had ridiculed the mere mention of the subject. At last the still, small voice was heard as one talking aloud to him: "Go to Christian Science; it is your only hope." He obeyed the call. The practitioner lovingly assured him that there was help for him; that divine Love always forgives sin by destroying it in a repentant heart. One treatment destroyed all sense of fear, enabling him to rest peacefully all night for the first time in months. In a few days the man was perfectly well, mentally transformed, able to attend to his regular duties. Materia medica and false theology had manacled him with the fetters of both disease and sin. Christian Science proved to him that the power of God was present to heal him mentally, morally and physically.

Demonstration is not willing nor outlining things to come our way. It is the voluntary surrender of self-will and self-interest for the good of humanity. Christian Scientists do not demonstrate material things. They work mentally to bring their thinking into accord with the will of God. That is, they seek first the leading of divine wisdom, and then, as the result of unselfish obedience and trust, all needful things are added unto them. Demonstration discriminates between human want and spiritual need. Human beings may want a great many things which it is not at all needful nor advisable for them to have. Demonstration enables them to acquire only such things as are useful and needful. In other words, it enables them to be truly economical.

Talking Christian Science, or arguing in the letter, without practicing its precepts, does not make religion practical. Demonstration is the consistent blending of practice and profession, the unceasing prayer of Christian living, the overcoming, or blotting out, of evil with good.

God's Presence

Why are Christians so vitally concerned in the coming of Christ, Truth? Is it not because Christ comes to unmask and to destroy the falsity of evil, thereby revealing the all-presence of God, good? Is it not perfectly clear, then, that until the coming of the true idea or manifestation of God, one does not comprehend the mythical nature of evil? Can one overcome evil before one understands at least in part, the power and presence of good? Christ Jesus plainly said: "If I had not come and spoken unto them, they had not had sin: but now they have no cloke for their sin" (John 15:22). The coming of Christ, then, is the message of a sure salvation for all mankind. But until they receive this message and lovingly obey its demands, the problem of evil for them will remain unsolved.

Where Christ, Truth, is, God is; and where God is, evil is not. Evil, then, in all its varied phases, is but a seeming absence of God. The warning of Scripture is not against the presence of evil, but against believing that evil has presence. Then, why spend one's time thinking and talking about that which has no real presence? Does such practice magnify the name of the Lord, the presence of God?

Is not God's presence something more than an idle theory? Is it not something which cannot be annulled by the dictum of the personal senses? Pray, what is meant by these statements of Holy Writ, "My presence shall go with thee, and I will give thee rest" (Ex. 33:14)? and "Do not I fill heaven and earth? saith the Lord" (Jer. 23:24)? Do such statements suggest to the Christian something purely imaginary? To the Christian Scientist, the all-presence of God is the eternal substance and reality of being. The presence of good is the undeniable absence of sin and disease, else there is no foundation for Christian healing. The heart of man should rejoice to learn that evil is not presence at all, but is simply a supposititious absence of reality. Darkness is not presence, but is only a seeming absence of light, else darkness could never be dispelled by the light. God is light, and, since God is all, spiritual light must be the only real presence. All else is but a seeming. Ignorance of God is not presence; but spiritual knowing or understanding is.

Does Christian Science Heal

Does Christian Science heal the sick? is a question that is answered today in a most practical way. In all parts of the civilized world may be found living witnesses to the healing power of Christian Science. These recipients of God's blessings will tell you that they owe a debt of endless gratitude, not only to the one God and to His Son, Christ Jesus, but to the beloved Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, who, in the year 1866, discovered the science of Christianity, and labored unremittingly and unselfishly to make it available to the whole world.

The great Master thought and wrought above and contrary to the senses, and, by so doing, he demonstrated the truth of his own most profound statement, "I and my Father are one"—one in quality, but not in quantity. He was maligned and crucified for proving the unity and reality of good.

Mary Baker Eddy, because of her spiritual recognition of the Principle supporting Jesus' healing works, which enabled her to annul sense testimony, likewise aroused the malice and hatred of worldlings. Because she trusted omnipotent Love to fill every human need, she lived to love and to bless all mankind. "He is bravely brave," she declares, "who dares at this date refute the evidence of material sense with the facts of Science, and will arrive at the true status of man because of it" (Misc. p. 183). Many thousands of brave, loyal Christian Scientists, in all sections of the world, opposed by both medicine and ecclesiasticism, have achieved such notable success as to place Christian Science healing far beyond the experimental stage.

Physical healing in Christian Science, however, is secondary to the conquering of sin, expressed in the deep-rooted vices and passions of the carnal mind. There is not a single known disease or sin that cannot be healed in Christian Science.

As an essential in Christian development and progress, as a proof of awakening from a material to a spiritual sense, the importance of physical healing cannot be overestimated. Regardless of race or creed, one must experience and understand the Christ-healing before one is really started on the road to heaven. As Jesus plainly stated, "If I with the finger of God cast out devils, no doubt the kingdom of God is come upon you." (Luke 11:20.) Christ could not come to one without making known his healing presence. His coming in Christian Science is not figurative, not a mere theory to be accepted or rejected at will, but an actuality—an inevitable, incontrovertible, demonstrable fact; an active, vitalizing prelude to all true spiritual attainment.

This science is preeminently successful in dealing with so-called contagious diseases, where the whole mental and physical manifestation is one of extreme fear. No Christian Scientist attaches importance to the microscopic germ theory of disease. On the contrary, all of his time is occupied in magnifying the things that make for health and happiness. Since God never made a disease germ, blind human belief must father it; but belief never gave real power nor life to anything nor to anybody. Then, why flee from a lifeless germ as one chased by "the sound of a shaken leaf" (Lev. 26.36)? The so-called disease germ that is supposed to travel from city to city, and from continent to continent, is nothing more nor less than a disease thought germ; and when Christian people grasp this fact in the light of Christian Science, they will lose their fear and dread of disease, and will deal with the germ theory as a purely human invention. Running from a newly discovered germ because of the fear of some high-sounding name that has been given to it, is like fleeing from one's own shadow. If the thought or mental image of disease is of no consequence, and requires no attention on our part, as many aver, why call this image a dangerous reality, demanding immediate attention, when it is externalized, or shadowed forth on the body? A discordant mental picture is not made true nor real simply because it is projected upon the screen.

The modern germ theory of disease is already well on its way to a state of innocuous desuetude, if reports from medical journals are to be credited. While experimenting upon subjects selected for the purpose, thousands, and even millions, of different disease germs have been taken into the human system without producing the slightest effect; and at the onset of various diseases, no germs whatsoever have been in evidence, all of which goes to prove the fallacy of the theory. Some leading physicians of the country do not hesitate to denounce it in forceful terms.

When we learn that God's thoughts, or ideas, are omnipresent and inseparable from their divine source; that they alone are endowed with power and intelligence—thoughts of sin and disease vanish into nothingness. A correct or scientific understanding of God heals because it cannot help healing. Healing through Christ, Truth, takes place as naturally as the shining of the sun. Every ray of spiritual light that floods human consciousness declares the presence, power, and glory of God and His Christ. How, then, can it avoid dispelling the dark shadows of finite sense? Truth heals because it has no affinity with error; Love heals because it has no affinity with hate; Mind heals because it has no affinity with matter.

Christian Science Treatment

Treatment in Christian Science means doing something for the sick according to an understood Principle, instead of experimenting upon them with poisonous drugs, and then waiting for days, weeks, and sometimes for months, to see whether they get well. Christian Science treatment gives sight to the blind and hearing to the deaf, by doing something for them which no other form of treatment ever has done or ever can do. When it gives a sufferer immediate possession of health and strength, after materia medica has pronounced its verdict of hopelessness, it does something for him which physical sense does not and can not explain.

When all manner of diseases are healed in one Christian Science treatment, and fear and sin are destroyed, does this not prove that intelligent action has been taken in behalf of the afflicted? When the anxious and fearful mother asks help for her innocent babe, who, the doctors say, cannot possibly survive, and Christian Science gives instant relief by breaking the mesmeric environment of ignorance, fear, and anxiety—who would presume to declare that nothing has been done for the helpless infant? If Christian Science treatment makes a specialty of any one thing, it is in doing something for suffering humanity, instead of thrusting God aside in the hour of trouble by bowing down to the verdict of the deceitful senses.

When these senses pass judgment upon man, declaring that he is sick, even going so far as to pronounce the verdict of death upon him, is it the exercise of "good common sense" to sit idly by and accept the testimony of five witnesses who know positively nothing of the God "who healeth all thy diseases"? Or shall we rise in righteous rebellion against such testimony, knowing that the power and presence of God and His Christ are more to a man than anything else in the world? It is the physical senses, remember, that advise and would compel the use of material remedies; that call sin and disease real, and man a mixture of mind and matter; and that demand complete medical supervision and control of the human body. Is the hand of the Lord shortened that it cannot save? God never inspired faith in the use of poisonous drugs. It goes without saying, then, that Christian Science treatment is not founded upon the belief of intelligent matter.

Let particular attention be called to the fact that Christian Science treatment is not the erroneous influence of any form of mesmerism or hypnotism. The experience of a young man seeking help from a professional hypnotist, will make this point clear. His very first visit resulted in seeming relief from extreme pain, but the relief was of short duration. Again, he sought the same source for help, and with the same result. He soon found himself making several calls a day, and each time the interval of apparent ease from pain grew shorter, until finally, after spending several hours a day with his would-be helper, and experiencing no relief at all, he discontinued his calls.

At this juncture a friend recommended that he try Christian Science. He did so and was quickly and permanently healed. The Christian Scientist, understanding the omnipotence and omnipresence of divine Mind, was enabled to prove to the patient the unreality of pain, and this healed him, and awakened within him a desire to know more about God, something which never takes place under the soporific influence of mesmerism or hypnotism.

Treatment Not Suggestion

From various human quarters there comes the amazing assertion that Christian Science treatment is nothing but human suggestion. Anyone who knows how to give a scientific treatment, knows that suggestion plays no part in it. When one learns how the sick are healed in Christian Science, one will neither advocate nor make use of hypnotic suggestion in any form. The only healing power is divine Love, and the vitality and warmth of divine Love could not be imparted through suggestion. Suggestion is the child of self-will; it is a lawless human make-believe, which neither heals nor blesses.

Hundreds of men and women have had their experience with the so-called clever salesman, who persuaded them, against their own better judgment, to purchase some needless article. This phase of willful suggestion may sometimes appear to be clever, but it is never Christian. A traveling salesman, forgetting the Golden Rule, and wishing to establish a record for himself, sometimes yields to the temptation to make use of suggestion. What is the result? Word soon reaches him from his house that certain orders taken by him a short time before have been cancelled by letter or wire from the purchaser. If salesmen were Christian Scientists they would surrender their positions rather than stoop to such wrong methods.

Human autocracy, personal domination—all selfish human control, plays no part in legitimate business. Instead of being remedial or constructive, it spells inevitable disappointment and defeat for anyone who continues, either ignorantly or intentionally, to make use of it.

Asking our friends to hold good thoughts for us is a careless habit. If we want them to treat us, to pray for us scientifically, we should say so. It should be stated, right here, that holding thoughts for people in order to smooth over their aches and pains is not the practice of Christian Science. The rule for Christian conduct in Christian Science is to keep one's own thought pure at all times, and to believe only what is spiritually true about God and man. This rule definitely separates Christian Science treatment from the practice of so-called mental science and "new thought."

Christian Science so thoroughly refutes the false claims of clairvoyance, that when a clairvoyant turns to Science for help, he loses all faith in his art and forsakes its practice. The sooner such erroneous practice is destroyed, the better for humanity, for some of the saddest of human experiences have come to those who have been induced to believe its misleading divinations.

Christian Science treatment is the plain and simple truth, understood and demonstrated, which makes free indeed. It is the prayer of those who think and live above the plane of human suggestion.

The Practitioner

Students of Christian Science who have experienced healing and moral regeneration, who have made a thorough study of our Leader's works, and are loyal to her teachings, are called upon to make their religion practical to humanity. Those who can devote their entire time to the healing work are known to the world as Christian Science practitioners.

Their mission is not primarily to effect physical healing, but to bring to humanity a scientific understanding of God and His "saving health." Knowing that of himself he can do nothing, but that through divine power alone the healing works are wrought, the practitioner is indeed a true follower of the Christ, ever on guard to prove God's power to heal. The real work of the practitioner is to purify his own consciousness so that it may become a transparency for Truth to shine through. He arrogates no power to himself. He indulges in no self-glorification. He judges no man. The practitioner is, therefore, no mental freak or prodigy; he is a practical, temperate, law-abiding citizen, and earns his modest wage through faithful, systematic work. He knows that to work is to "pray with the understanding"; and that the only service that counts is a service of love. He wields a moral and spiritual influence in the community which is above the price of rubies. No one will ever regret making his acquaintance.

Christian Science Opposed to Spiritualism

At this particular time, when the thought of the human body is being so abnormally accentuated, when spiritualism and mediumship are so obsessing the public thought, and the unavailing attempt is being made to associate the name of our revered Leader, Mrs. Eddy, with those who believe in communion with the departed, let it be said that Mrs. Eddy never believed in spiritualism, nor in mediumship; never believed in any communication between the living and the departed; and in proof of these statements one will find in her text-book, Science and Health, a chapter entitled: "Christian Science versus Spiritualism." Many spiritualists, after turning to Christian Science, have lost all faith in spiritualism, because Christian Science has enabled them to prove conclusively that Spirit cannot be rightly conceived of as less than infinite.

The publicity which is at present being given to spiritualistic claims, is, no doubt, one of the experiences made possible by the recent world war, which has called forth the mental anguish of multitudes, longing for communion with their dear departed. If all who are still clinging to this belief of embodied and disembodied spirits, will only look to Christian Science for a present spiritual sense of their loved ones, all tears will soon be wiped away, and the understanding will obtain that Spirit is Life, God, and that man, the image and likeness of God, can never be separated from eternal Life.

When it is better understood that man lives, and moves, and has his being in Spirit, and not in a mortal body, the so-called communications of spiritualism will rightfully be classified as sense phenomena, unknown to the so-called departed communicator, but belonging wholly to our present plane of existence.

World Problems

The religion of Christ Jesus put into daily practice, is the only thing that can rid the world of the chaotic conditions which now seem to prevail. Coincident with the demonstration of the Christian virtues is the disappearance of that "greatest curse of the human race"—selfishness. Human laws, will, no doubt, continue to be enacted during the transitional period; but not until the higher law of Spirit, founded upon the First great Commandment, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me," is recognized and obeyed, will the reign of human selfishness give place to universal peace and brotherhood; to humanity, justice and kindness.

Christ Jesus, the great Wayshower, offers complete deliverance to the world from its social, civil, political, and religious differences. His unparalleled example of self-sacrifice still shines forth as a beacon light to all who would learn the divine solution for every human problem, be it small or great. Strive, as one may, to find a shorter route, one will discover, sooner or later, that the Christ way of learning Life, so long lost to the world through dogma and persecution, has again been given to humanity through the tireless, unselfish efforts of our beloved Leader, Mary Baker Eddy. She it is who has so quickened the universal consciousness to the need of studying and practicing the precepts of the great Nazarene, that countless thousands have been enabled to say of him as did Peter of old: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God" (Matt. 16:16). If the time spent in forcing human theories and opinions upon others, could be devoted to a more serious study of the Sermon on the Mount, and to the practice of its precepts, the reign of unselfishness would sooner be recognized in every department of human life. Jesus' teachings are proved to be practical in Christian Science. The practice of Christianity has not failed. It was the lack of Christian practice which caused the church to drift into dogmatism and formalism, and to substitute creeds for a demonstrable religion.

Capital and Labor

The seething conflict between capital and labor is largely an exhibition of human selfishness, due to false standards of education. If the world's educational institutions could be founded upon the Christ, Truth, instead of upon belief in intelligent matter, there would sooner be a race of people, whose only aim in life would be to understand and to do the will of God; to live a life of Christian service.

The selfish materialist, whether capitalist or laborer, believing in the reality of matter, is living a life of material accumulation and hoarding. What will awaken him? He must learn how to give, how to lend a helping hand to others, how to share with them his own blessings. It is what a man does with his wealth that makes him truly wealthy.

The helpless sick man is just as much a slave to matter. He, too, is hugging his sick beliefs, and constantly adding to them. What will heal him? He must learn how to give, how to express the good, belonging to man's real selfhood. The moment he begins to give out that which is real and true about God and man, he begins to see "the light of life" (John 8:12), as expressed by the poet:

"Thou art not here for ease or pain,
But manhood's glorious crown to

The arrogant sinner, by constantly indulging his false pleasures, is likewise leading a life of accumulation. What will save him? He, too, must learn how to give, how to express that which belongs to God's man. The moment he experiences repentance and the joy of living in order to make others happy, he awakens from his selfish dream, to find out that "the earth is the Lord's and the fulness thereof" (Ps. 24:1).

This, then, is the solution of the problem of capital and labor. Both must accept Christ, Truth, as their schoolmaster and learn the lesson of true giving—how to live in order to bless all mankind. When the Golden Rule is scientifically understood and lived by both capital and labor, strikes will be unknown. Any act of coercion which inflicts untold suffering upon thousands and millions of innocent people, is very remote from the Christ method of learning how to live so as to bless and to be blessed.

Both capitalist and laborer can begin today to overcome, intelligently and scientifically, everything that stands between them and the redemptive gospel of service; and this overcoming will result in the adequate adjustment of every human difficulty. In other words, they must learn to live and to love as true Christians. There is positively no other way of pacifying or healing their grievances. Employer and employee alike must understand that they are the servants of Christ, Truth, and are not laboring primarily for material gain—"for the meat which perisheth"—but for the establishment of the reign of righteousness on earth.

Let captial and labor get together in an unselfish desire to do the will of God, and there will be some mental dividends declared and distributed which will bring about conditions heretofore unknown, and the conviction will obtain that all men are created to live and to let live. More religion and less selfishness will solve every world problem.

Universal Suffrage

Under the leavening influence of Christian Science, the problem of universal suffrage is rapidly approaching realization, but it is not yet divorced from some pronounced phases of human selfishness, due to a lack of understanding of man's relationship to God. Christian Science places no barriers in the way of woman's coming into her own. She has stood for, and she still stands for, the noblest, the purest, and the best in human life, and no imperious attitude of her lordly companion can reduce her to any lower rank.

It was the pure-mindedness of a woman that gave birth, centuries ago, to the Saviour of the world. It was the exalted spiritual perception of a woman, Mary Baker Eddy, that gave to the world, in modern times, the great spiritual discovery of Christian Science in that wonderful companion-piece to the Bible, "Science and Health With Key to the Scriptures." One cannot consistently reflect upon the part that woman has ever played in the great humanitarian, educational and reform movements of the world, without being willing to accord her the right of suffrage.

Temperance

The demonstration of Christian Science will prove to be the only possible solution of the temperance problem, because it scientifically destroys pleasure in matter. World prohibition is not the ultimatum of temperance reform, but it voices the quickened sense of millions who would do all in their power to save the world from widespread debauchery and crime. The present crusade against the demoralizing tendencies of the carnal mind has the unqualified support of every true Christian Scientist, who will patiently await, through prayer and demonstration, the final conquest over all evil.

Conclusion

Christian Scientists are willing workers. They realize that, whatever duty confronts them, regardless of how humble it may seem to be, can be performed "heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men" (Col. 3:23). By maintaining a right mental attitude at all times, they learn how to "rejoice, and be exceeding glad" (Mat. 5:12). In the great world war, many Christian Scientists volunteered to perform the most humble service for their country, and they did it cheerfully and gladly. Their loyalty and patriotism were just as genuine and just as generously displayed as were those of any other class of people.

Christian Scientists are in fullest sympathy with those high ideals which make for a true Christian democracy, and they are doing their part to have these ideals realized in the preservation of a righteous government "of the people, by the people, for the people." Their prayer is, (again quoting Lincoln), that "we may achieve and cherish a just and lasting peace among ourselves and with all nations." Their motto is:

"One flag, one land, one heart, one
One nation, evermore." (Holmes.)

Its loyal followers recognize in Christian Science the demonstration of true Christianity, and they will press on in their crusade against all evil until Christ shall reign supreme in the affections of men. Our beloved Leader's prophetic benediction rests upon the hour: "The elements of earth beat in vain against the immortal parapets of this Science. Erect and eternal, it will go on with the ages, go down the dim posterns of time unharmed, and on every battle-field rise higher in the estimation of thinkers and in the hearts of Christians (Misc. p. 383:10-15).

NAVAL PROBLEMS

In the future maritime supremacy will not rest with the power that owns the most warships, but with the one that devises the most effective kind.

By competitive building certain powers may provide themselves with considerable fleets only to see every unit of these made obsolete in a single hour by the appearance on the sea of a new type of warship so immeasurably superior in fighting efficiency that it will hopelessly outclass all other man-of-war in existence.

It is the possibility of such a development that invests the submarine versus capital ship discussion with so much importance.

As an engineer officer I would like to ask the gentlemen who profess a belief in the feasibility of "diving Dreadnoughts" how they propose to pack into the hulls of these mythical vessels the enormous engine power that would be required to propel them.

Such craft must be equipped with two sets of machinery — namely, either steam turbines or internal combustion engines to drive them when awash and electric motors to run them when submerged.

In these days high speed is essential. To be of any use your submarine-battleship must be capable of doing about 30 knots on the surface. To give her that speed engines of well over 100,000 indicated horsepower would be required.

And her electrical installation for submerged running would have to be equally powerful, so that twice the quantity of propelling machinery now installed in a battleship would have to be squeezed into her hull somehow.

By what means can it be placed there in addition to guns, torpedoes, living quarters for, say, 1,000 men, and all other necessary equipment without distending the vessel's size to such proportions that no existing dockyard could accommodate her?

These are points upon which I, as an engineer, would like some enlightenment, for they puzzle me. And my opposite number, "The Pilot" (navigating officer), has one or two questions pertaining to his own branch sculling around in his mind. A distinctly pertinent one he propounds in this fashion:

"Be she ever so small, a submarine must have a good depth and plenty of sea room to manoeuvre in, or she is almost useless. In shallow water or near shore she can do little.

"If you built such a floating island affair as a submarine-battleship of some 30,000 tons, where would you operate her? She would require so great a depth of water that she could only be manoeuvred while submerged in mid-Atlantic or mid-Channel or in some other wide, deep area, wherein she could dive without fear of bumping the bottom.

"She would not be suitable for use in the North Sea, or in any other of the places where U-boats made their best 'bags.' And in wide, open waters she would not be a formidable enemy—no submarine is—for the surface ship has sea room enough to run away from her.

"War experience showed that under-water craft did their most effective work by hanging about such places as Beachy Head and Ushant, where ships made their 'landfalls.' Your 'diving Dreadnought' would be unable to adopt such tactics, as the depth of water would not permit her to do so. And as fast surface ships are admittedly more effective than submarines in ocean fighting, where would her utility come in?"

Have such matters as these been thought out by the anti-surface ship school. If so, I would like to know how these gentlemen propose to construct their "diving Dreadnought" so as to overcome the objections I mention!—Engineer Officer in Daily Mail.

Automatic Manure Loader

A new device for loading manure into carts or for handling any type of fibrous material has been devised by a British engineering firm. The complete machine includes a steel frame platform mounted on travelling wheels and carrying a light pillar crane driven by an oil engine and winch mounted on the platform. For the purpose mentioned, the crane is fitted with a special form of automatic grab. This grab is formed by a scissor-like framework of bar iron, carrying a pair of sets of tines, or grips, which are opened and closed by a system of levers and linkwork. To pick up a load the grab is dropped quickly on to the mass with the tines vertical, so that they penetrate deeply. When the wire rope holding the drag becomes slack a weight descends between two guides, locking the arrangement. The winding up of the rope tightens the tines around the load, which can be released when desired by pulling a hand rope. About half a cubic yard of refuse can be lifted at one time, and the action is so simple that the grab can be operated very rapidly and easily by unskilled labor. The portability and ease of manipulation of this grab will make it invaluable where an alternative is desired to the slow and unpleasant job of shifting manure with manual labor.

Aeroplane Tests

Improvements have recently been introduced into the equipment of the "wind tunnels" which are used at the National Physical Laboratory (the British Government Laboratory near London) for the testing of models of aeroplanes. There are six wind tunnels, the earliest being seven feet wide and the latest, only just completed, being fourteen feet wide. The models used to be supported on spindles, but they are now hung on thin wires—an arrangement which gives more accurate readings, as it eliminates the effect of the wind on the spindle. Two fans are employed to produce a wind speed up to seventy-five miles per hour. A still further improvement is contemplated. Large models driven by electric motors with miniature propellors will be used to reproduce the actual condition of an aeroplane in flight.

Wireless on British Railways

Several tests were carried out recently in the use of wireless telegraphy as an auxiliary means of communication on a British railway. Ordinary apparatus was used in these tests and the results were so promising that special apparatus is now being constructed on the basis of the experience gained. As soon as the necessary arrangements are completed extended trials under commercial conditions will be made.

Sherlock Holmes Stories

The Greek Interpreter

The story so far:

One day Sherlock Holmes takes Dr. Watson with him to see his brother, Mycroft Holmes, who, Sherlock boasts, has even keener powers of observation than he has, though he has not the energy to apply them but is content to audit books in one of the government accounting offices. They go to Mycroft's club and he sends for Mr. Melas, a Greek neighbor, and remarkable linguist. He tells this story. Two days before, on Monday night, a fashionably dressed young man, Mr. Latimer, went to see Melas, saying he needed help as a Greek friend had come to see him on business and asking Melas to go with him and act as interpreter. He drove off and Melas was struck by his companion's extraordinary actions.

He drew from his pocket a bludgeon, threatened Melas with harm if he cried out, and then drew up the windows, which were covered with paper so that Melas could not see through them. They drove thus for a couple of hours. Then they entered a house, and a mean-looking middle-aged man led him into a large, well-furnished room, and told him to question a pale, thin man whose face was criss-crossed with bands of sticking plaster. He asked the man to sign papers and to sanction somebody's marriage. In the midst of the questions a tall, graceful woman entered the room and on seeing the man with the sticking plaster on his face, called him Paul and threw herself into his arms. He called her Sophy. They were separated and taken from the room. Then Mr. Melas was taken away in a carriage and left near a railway station to make his way home. Holmes promises to take up the case. Melas says he has had an ad in the papers offering a reward for information of the whereabouts of Paul and Sophy. He received no answers.

PART THREE

As we walked home together, Holmes stopped at a telegraph office and sent off several wires. "You see, Watson," he remarked, "our evening has been by no means wasted. Some of my most interesting cases have come to me in this way through Mycroft. The problem which we have just listened to, although it can admit of but one explanation, has still some distinguishing features."

"You have hopes of solving it?"

"Well, knowing as much as we do, it will be singular indeed if we fail to discover the rest. You must yourself have formed some theory, which will explain the facts to which we have listened."

"In a vague way, yes."

"What was your idea, then?"

"It seemed to me to be obvious that this Greek girl had been carried off by the young Englishman named Harold Latimer."

"Carried off from where?"

"Athens, perhaps."

Sherlock Holmes shook his head. "This young man could not talk a word of Greek. The lady could talk English fairly well. Inference—that she had been in England some little time, but he had not been in Greece."

"Well, then, we will presume that she had come on a visit to England, and that this Harold had persuaded her to fly with him."

"That is more probable."

"Then the brother—for that, I fancy, must be the relationship—comes over from Greece to interfere. He imprudently puts himself into the power of the young man and his older associate. They seize him and use violence towards him in order to make him sign some papers to make over the girl's fortune—of which he may be trustee—to them. This he refuses to do. In order to negotiate with him they have to get an interpreter, and they pitch upon this Mr. Melas, having used some other one before. The girl is not told of the arrival of her brother, and finds it out by the merest accident."

"Excellent, Watson!" cried Holmes. "I really fancy that you are not far from the truth. You see that we hold all the cards, and we have only to fear some sudden act of violence on their part. If they give us time we must have them."

"But how can we find where this house lies?"

"Well, if our conjecture is correct and the girl's name is or was Sophy Kratides, we should have no difficulty in tracing her. This must be our main hope, for the brother is, of course, a complete stranger. It is clear that some time has elapsed since this Harold established these relations with the girl—some weeks, at any rate—since the brother in Greece has had time to hear of it and come across. If they have been living in the same place during this time, it is probable that we shall have some answer to Mycroft's advertisement."

We had reached our house in Baker Street while we had been talking. Holmes ascended the stairs first, and as he opened the door of our room he gave a start of surprise. Looking over his shoulder, I was equally astonished. His brother Mycroft was sitting smoking in the arm chair.

"Come in, Sherlock! Come in, sir," said he, blandly, smiling at our surprised faces. "You don't expect such energy from me, do you, Sherlock? But somehow this case attracts me."

"How did you get here?"

"I passed you in a hansom."

"There has been some new development?"

"I had an answer to my advertisement."

"Ah!"

"Yes, it came within a few minutes of your leaving."

"And to what effect?"

"Here it is," said he, "written with a J pen on royal cream paper by a middle-aged man with a weak constitution. 'Sir,' he says, 'in answer to your advertisement of today's date, I beg to inform you that I know the young lady in question very well. If you should care to call upon me I could give you some particulars as to her painful history. She is living at present at The Myrtles, Beckenham. Yours faithfully, J. Davenport.'

"He writes from Lower Brixton," said Mycroft Holmes. "Do you not think that we might drive to him now, Sherlock, and learn these particulars?"

"My dear Mycroft, the brother's life is more valuable than the sister's story. I think we should call at Scotland Yard for Inspector Gregson, and go straight out to Beckenham. We know that a man is being done to death, and every hour may be vital."

"Better pick up Mr. Melas on our way," I suggested. "We may need an interpreter."

"Excellent," said Sherlock Holmes. "Send the boy for a four-wheeler, and we shall be off at once." He opened the table-drawer as he spoke, and I noticed that he slipped his revolver into his pocket. "Yes," said he, in answer to my glance, "I should say, from what we have heard, that we are dealing with a particularly dangerous gang."

It was almost dark before we found ourselves in Pall Mall, at the rooms of Mr. Melas. A gentleman had just called for him, and he was gone.

"Can you tell me where?" asked Mycroft Holmes.

"I don't know, sir," answered the woman who had opened the door; "I only know that he drove away with the gentleman in a carriage."

"Did the gentleman give a name?"

"No, sir."

"He wasn't a tall, handsome, dark young man?"

"Oh, no, sir. He was a little gentleman, with glasses, thin in the face, but very pleasant in his ways, for he was laughing all the time that he was talking."

"Come along!" cried Sherlock Holmes, abruptly. "This grows serious," he observed, as we drove to Scotland Yard. "These men have got hold of Melas again. He is a man of no physical courage, as they are well aware from their experience the other night. This villain was able to terrorize him the instant that he got into his presence. No doubt they want his professional services, but, having used him, they may be inclined to punish him for what they will regard as his treachery."

Our hope was that, by taking train, we might get to Beckenham as soon or sooner than the carriage. On reaching Scotland Yard, however, it was more than an hour before we could get Inspector Gregson and comply with the legal formalities which would enable us to enter the house. It was a quarter to ten before we reached London Bridge, and half-past before the four of us alighted on the Beckenham platform. A drive of half a mile brought us to The Myrtles—a large, dark house standing back from the road in its own grounds. Here we dismissed our cab, and made our way up the drive together.

"Our birds are flown and the nest is empty," said Holmes.

"Why do you say so?"

The inspector laughed. "I saw the wheel-tracks in the light of the gate lamp, but where does the luggage come in?"

"You may have observed the same wheel-tracks going the other way. But the outward-bound ones were very much deeper—so much so that we can say for a certainty that there was a very considerable weight on the carriage."

"You got a trifle beyond me there," said the inspector, shrugging his shoulders. "It will not be an easy door to force, but we will try if we cannot make someone hear us."

He hammered loudly at the knocker and pulled at the bell, but without any success. Holmes had slipped away, but he came back in a few minutes.

"I have a window open," said he.

"It is a mercy that you are on the side of the force, and not against it, Mr. Holmes," remarked the inspector, as he noted the clever way in which my friend had forced back the catch. "Well, I think that under the circumstances we may enter without an invitation."

One after the other we made our way into a large apartment, which was evidently that in which Mr. Melas had found himself. The inspector had lit his lantern, and by its light we could see the two doors, the curtain, the lamp, and the suit of Japanese mail as he had described them. On the table lay two glasses, an empty brandy bottle, and the remains of a meal.

"What is that?" asked Holmes, suddenly.

We all stood still and listened. A low moaning sound was coming from somewhere over our heads. Holmes rushed to the door and out into the hall. The dismal noise came from upstairs. He dashed up, the inspector and I at his heels, while his brother Mycroft followed as quickly as his great bulk would permit.

Three doors faced us upon the second floor, and it was from the central of these that the sinister sounds were issuing, sinking sometimes into a dull mumble and rising again into a shrill whine. It was locked, but the key had been left on the outside. Holmes flung open the door and rushed in, but he was out again in an instant, with his hands to his throat.

"It's charcoal," he cried. "Give it time. It will clear."

Peering in, we could see that the only light in the room came from a dull blue flame which flickered from a small brass tripod in the centre. It threw a livid, unnatural circle upon the floor, while in the shadows beyond we saw the vague loom of two figures which crouched against the wall. From the open door there reeked a horrible poisonous exhalation which set us gasping and coughing. Holmes rushed to the top of the stairs to draw in the fresh air, and then, dashing into the room, he threw up the window and hurled the brazen tripod out into the garden.

"We can enter in a minute," he gasped, darting out again. "Where is a candle? I doubt if we could strike a match in that atmosphere. Hold the light at the door and we shall get them out, Mycroft, now!"

With a rush we got to the poisoned men and dragged them out into the well-lit hall. Both of them were blue-lipped and insensible, with swollen, congested faces and protruding eyes. Indeed, so distorted were their features that, save for his black beard and stout figure, we might have failed to recognize in one of them the Greek interpreter who had parted from us only a few hours before at the Diogenes Club. His hands and feet were securely strapped together, and he bore over one eye the marks of a violent blow. The other, who was secured in a similar fashion was a tall man in the last stage of emaciation, with several strips of sticking-plaster arranged in a grotesque pattern over his face. He had ceased to moan as we laid him down, and a glance showed me that for him at least our aid had come too late. Mr. Melas, however, still lived, and in less than an hour, with the aid of ammonia and brandy, I had the satisfaction of seeing him open his eyes, and of knowing that my hand had drawn him back from that dark valley in which all paths meet.

It was a simple story which he had to tell, and one which did but confirm our own deductions. His visitor, on entering his rooms, had drawn a life-preserver from his sleeve, and had so impressed him with the fear of instant and inevitable death that he had kidnapped him for the second time. Indeed, it was almost mesmeric, the effect which this giggling ruffian had produced upon the unfortunate linguist, for he could not speak of him save with trembling hands and a blanched cheek. He had been taken swiftly to Beckenham, and had acted as interpreter in a second interview, even more dramatic than the first, in which the two Englishmen had menaced their prisoner with instant death if he did not comply with their demands. Finally, finding him proof against every threat, they had hurled him back into his prison, and after reproaching Melas with his treachery, which appeared from the newspaper advertisement, they had stunned him with a blow from a stick, and he remembered nothing more until he found us bending over him.

And this was the singular case of the Grecian Interpreter, the explanation of which is still involved in some mystery. We were able to find out, by communicating with the gentlemen who had answered the advertisement, that the unfortunate young lady came of a wealthy Grecian family, and that she had been on a visit to some friends in England. While there she had met a young man named Harold Latimer, who had acquired an ascendancy over her and had eventually persuaded her to fly with him. Her friends, shocked at the event, had contented themselves with informing her brother at Athens, and had then washed their hands of the matter. The brother, on his arrival in England, had imprudently placed himself in the power of Latimer and of his associate, whose name was Wilson Kemp—a man of the foulest antecedents. These two, finding that through his ignorance of the language he was helpless in their hands, had kept him a prisoner, and had endeavored by cruelty and starvation to make him sign away his own and his sister's property. They had kept him in the house without the girl's knowledge, and the plaster over the face had been for the purpose of making recognition difficult in case she should ever catch a glimpse of him. Her feminine perceptions, however, had instantly seen through the disguise when, on the occasion of the interpreter's visit, she had seen him for the first time. The poor girl, however, was herself a prisoner, for there was no one about the house except the man who acted as coachman, and his wife, both of whom were tools of the conspirators. Finding that their secret was out, and that their prisoner was not to be coerced, the two villains with the girl had fled away at a few hours' notice from the furnished house which they had hired, having first, as they thought, taken vengeance both upon the man who had defied and the one who had betrayed them.

Months afterwards a curious newspaper cutting reached us from Budapest. It told how two Englishmen who had been traveling with a woman had met with a tragic end. They had each been stabbed, it seems, and the Hungarian police were of opinion that they had quarreled and had inflicted mortal injuries upon each other. Holmes, however, is, I fancy, of a different way of thinking, and he holds to this day that, if one could find the Grecian girl, one might learn how the wrongs of herself and her brother came to be avenged.

At the Street Corner

BY "THE LOUNGER"

In the Spring a young man's fancy
Lightly turns to thoughts of——

Oh, well, let's say to thoughts of skylarks singing in Lansdowne Road thickets. You know when I read on Thursday morning that remarkable paragraph in the early edition of the estimable paper which provides me with a little bread for my butter, I came down town with every anticipation of congratulating some colleague on the happy event. I must say that I do like that little bit about skylarks and thickets; it has quite a poetic sound; I felt romantic myself when I read it. I agree with my colleague that it is not his fault that skylarks do not sing in thickets; they ought to. It is far more pathetic to visualize your little lark sobbing out his tale of woe on a thorn-bush, or greeting the rising sun from the top of a slender twig than it is to see him as he really is, a mere animated aeroplane soaring far nearer heaven than either you or I will reach and singing the while for the pure joy of living.

* * * * *

Still, I have a grudge against the skylark; he was responsible in the first instance for my having a bad night. The conversation turned on education and the comparative values of technical training and classical knowledge. You can see for yourselves the trend of thought. Is it necessary for a newspaper paragraphist to have a complete knowledge of natural history, and, if so, where are you going to draw the line? When I rolled in between the sheets I was full—of education—and so it was perhaps not surprising that my dreams carried me further along the same line of thought. My dream seemed so appropriate to present day conditions that I propose to put parts of it before you, and in so doing I strongly recommend this system of making money whilst you sleep; it saves lots of trouble and it is impossible to tell the difference in the money.

* * * * *

It was exactly 3:30 p.m. on Saturday, March 20, 1950, by the post-office clock, which I noticed in passing had been promoted to a dignified position on the outside of the building, when I walked up from the boat to take a look at the new city which I had heard was occupying the site of the Victoria I had known so well in the early days of the century. One of the first men of my acquaintance whom I met was Mr. John Day, who again invited me to walk to the Chinese cemetery, but I had to excuse myself for the time being, as to my mind a renovated Victoria was far more interesting than a discussion as to the sale of the odd 500 cords of wood. I had not gone very far up the street before I noticed the large number of boys who wore the air of the Old Country Public Schoolboy. This was indeed something new. There they were, large as life; strolling up and down the principal streets, evidently down town for the half-holiday. They were Old Country to the life; the bigger boys had that insouciant tilt of the hat and the younger boys had that delightful air of superiority both of which are such a characteristic of the class of schoolboy who has made the world his oyster and converted the British Empire into an entity not to be regarded lightly. "Something has been doing in town since I left," I remarked to myself. "I suppose I had better get busy and 'lounge around' a little until I get things straightened out in my mind."

* * * * *

So I "lounged"; the same old lamppost was there on the same old corner, and I had just waited for the oldest inhabitant, who turned up, as he always does, in the nick of time. "How goes it, old timer?" I queried; "and for the love of Mike, tell me who these youngsters are, all dolled up and strolling round town like a bunch of Harrovians." He blinked me a bleary eye and intimated that we could probably talk better under the influence of Government Control than on the corner. I agreed, and some day I will give you details of the Government Control shop, but I have other fish to fry at the moment. "Lounger," he said, "you left the country just as we began to wake up; what you now see is the result of progress, method and common-sense. We found that people were becoming dissatisfied and by some strange accident we found a number of men who were willing to give up being politicians and were quite anxious to represent the real will of the people. As you can imagine, this startling procedure was the prelude to all kinds of reforms. Amongst other things we awoke to the fact that what is known as secondary education was in a parlous state; all the men of substance in the Province had contracted the habit of sending their sons over to England to enjoy the benefits of an Old Country public school education; they hated doing it, because it meant that they lost the society of their boys at the most interesting stage in the latter's career, but there seemed no help for it. We simply had not got the equivalent in British Columbia. And that was where Dr. Faith came in." The old man choked and grunted a few objurgations with reference to the small quantity allowed in one drink under Government Control. I rectified the error, and he continued.

* * * * *

"Dr. Faith was some man, all right," he said. "Seemed to have a way with him and he certainly had an unlimited belief in the future of the Province. He was a wizard, and events have proved that his name was one well given. Faith he was and faith he had; and we have all benefited by it. It all came about in such a small way, too. He saw that many of our brightest and best were annually going over to England for public school training and for the life of him he couldn't see why the public school training could not be brought to them. He laughed at the cynics and pessimists, the very fellows, Lounger, who made life such a misery to you in the old days, and he not only laughed at them, he took money out of them and started in on the Old Country style in Craigdarroch. Man alive, you would have laughed if you could have seen the faces of all those old joy-killers when the school began to boom. It didn't take a great deal of money in the first instance; he started in quietly and reasonably; Craigdarroch was very easily adapted to the needs of a school, and success crowned his efforts from the start. Inside of ten years he was able to take a real place well outside the city; they have swimming baths, gymnasia, rifle corps and one of the finest laboratories you ever saw in your life. The school is full up all the time and there is a waiting list a yard long. Lounger," said the old man, "we've got the finest school in the Dominion, and though it has not yet had time to get traditions like your Old Country schools, it is busy making them, and perhaps it's none the worse for that."

* * * * *

That little conversation with the oldest inhabitant gave me quite a jolt. I remembered that way back in 1921 there had been some talk about starting a boys' school on Old Country lines, but I had left town before anything had really been done about it. Having served an apprenticeship myself in the profession during an earlier stage in my career, I was naturally immensely interested and I took stock more particularly of the boys as I met them on the street. Fine, well-built, clean-cut young fellows they were; well mannered, too, I noticed. They seemed to possess all the attractions which an English public school gives to a boy, added to the natural ease of manner which is the common heritage of all those who are born in the Dominions. I ran across many old-time friends during the day; some of them parents of the boys at school, and all were equally enthusiastic. The school had done wonders for the Province; it had kept the boys at home for their education and at the same time it had educated them in that broad manner which fitted them to become good and useful citizens in their own country.

Do you know that I was quite sorry when I eventually woke up; it was dismal to come back to the realities of 1921 and to find that secondary education was still in the same old chaotic state, that people of refined instincts but with limited purses were still keeping nose to grindstone in order to send their boys to England. And as I lay in that delightful state 'twixt sleeping and waking I wondered whether it would not be possible to make my dream come true. What do you think about it? The matter is really under discussion at the present day, but the men who are principally interested want to know how public opinion stands on the question. Will you help by giving your own ideas? If so, write me a line and I will see that your opinions are noted in the proper quarter. There is no need to sign your name. The idea is to get a line on public opinion, not so much the opinion of individuals. Get me?

God bless her late Majesty. Queen Victoria's statue is now erect, veiled and awaiting the ceremonial which is its due. But—how I hate that word—why is the inscription engraved on the posterior portion of the monument? Victoria looks out towards the Inper Harbor; the stone which announces that the principal block was laid by H. R. H. the Prince of Wales faces the Parliament Buildings. Was this accident or intention? I can obtain no information. I hear that originally it was intended to have the Queen facing the Buildings, but that very naturally some objection was raised; it was not thought seemly that she should present her back to all visitors; so her angle of sight was altered. Is it possible that when instructions were given to this effect the dedication stone was forgotten? I presume that under present conditions we shall see a suitable piece of gold engravure made permanent on the front of the monument. I feel quite certain that such a mistake would never have taken place had Victoria possessed in the past a school such as that portrayed in the dream of

HANDICRAFT IN THE HOME

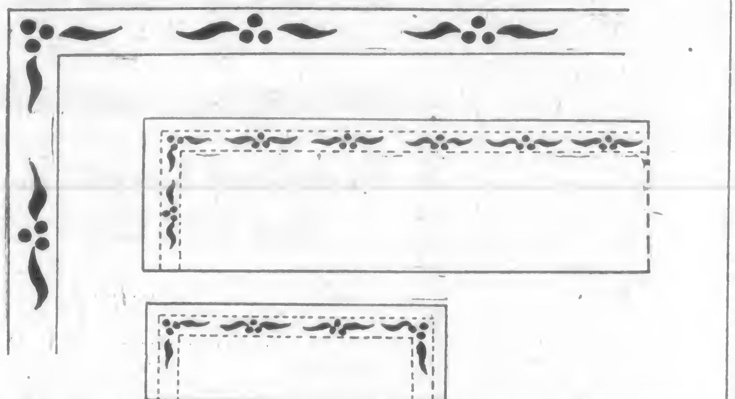
DESIGN FOR COLLAR AND CUFFS



No dress is complete this Spring without a collar and cuff set made of organdy. They may be worn with the serge frock or with one of the pretty new wash dresses which now have a prominent place in the shop windows. This design is unusually simple and effective, and even an amateur will find no difficulty in working it up. The collar and cuffs are made of pale pink organdy and the embroidery is worked out in pink, green and black. Cut a strip of organdy for the collar 30 inches long and 3¼ inches wide. Cut the cuffs 7 inches long and 2½ inches wide. Baste a ¼-inch hem all around both collar and cuffs. With black embroidery floss run a line of darning stitches on the right side of all the hems, and three-eighths of an inch inside this line run another row of darning. The second row is run only on the front edge and sides of each piece. The sketch shows the two rows of darning on one-half of the collar and on one cuff. Transfer the design of berries and leaves to the material with carbon paper, placing it between the two rows of darning. The berries are made up of a cluster of French knots worked in two shades of rose, and the leaves are done in green. Either a satin stitch or lazy daisy stitch may be used for the leaves. When using the lazy daisy stitch take a full strand of six threads of embroidery cotton.

A BAG MADE FROM RAFFIA

The raffia bag illustrated is crocheted, and when finished it makes a very useful shopping bag, or may be used for a school bag by the younger members of the family. To make the bag one will need a large hank of natural colored raffia, and a small hank of colored raffia for working out the design. The color chosen is a matter of individual taste. The raffia may be purchased at any store where baskets are made, and is to be had also at many seed stores.

The raffia must first be soaked in water for several hours to make it pliable, and then it must be allowed to dry thoroughly before starting the work. Use a double crochet stitch for the bag, starting with a chain ten inches long. Double crochet around the chain to form the bottom of the bag, adding stitches when necessary. When you have a bottom of oval shape about twelve inches long start to turn up for the sides, leaving out stitches where required. The sides of the bag should be about twelve inches high. The handle is started in the centre at the top of one of the sides, and is five and a half inches wide where it joins the side. At the top the handle should measure two and a half inches wide, and it is fourteen inches in length altogether. When this length has been crocheted join the end of the handle to the opposite side of the bag. The sketch shows the finished shape of bag and handle. The bag is embroidered with the colored raffia to form the design shown, or any conventional design which has simple lines may be chosen. In the illustration the horizontal bands of color at the top and bottom were crocheted into the bag as it was made. The raffia comes in comparatively short lengths, and when it is to be joined the new end and old end of the raffia should be lapped for several inches, and the crocheting continued while the ends are held together in this position. Any loose ends which show when the basket is finished may be caught into the weaving with a blunt point raffia needle. This raffia needle is also used for embroidering the pattern on the side of the bag. If one prefers, the bag may be embroidered with colored wool, which is very effective on the natural colored raffia as a background. If wool embroidery is used, a floral pattern may be selected with good effect.

MAKE YOUR OWN EASTER BONNET

Here is an attractive Easter hat which anyone can make in a very short time. The hat is made of heavy ribbon, preferably a ribbed grosgrain ribbon. Any color may be chosen, but for Spring a white or flesh pink hat will be found to go charmingly with one of the new wash frocks.

The following materials will be necessary for the hat. Two and one-third yards grosgrain ribbon four and a half inches wide, one-eighth yard of buckram, one and one-half yards cotton covered millinery wire, and 48 inches of steel wire, which comes especially for wiring hat brims. With the steel wire one must get also a clamp for fastening the ends together. A package of long millinery needles and a pair of pliers will also be necessary.

From the ribbon cut a piece fifty inches long for the brim. Join the two cut ends with a quarter of an inch flat fell seam, so that one continuous piece is formed. On one edge of this piece of ribbon turn a narrow hem forming a casing through which the brim wire is to be run. Stitch this hem on the machine. On the opposite edge of this ribbon run three rows of gathering a quarter of an inch apart, leaving long ends to be drawn up later. The brim and crown of the hat are sewed to a buckram side crown or foundation. From the buckram cut a strip one inch wide and long enough to reach around your own headsize plus two inches for lapping. To get this headsize measure the headsize of an old hat which fits well. Lap the ends of the buckram strip forming a circle which is the side crown foundation. On the top and bottom edges of this side crown sew the cotton covered wire with a buttonhole stitch, lapping the ends of the wire in the back for at least two inches. Pliers are necessary for cutting the wire.

Now sew the brim of the hat to this side crown, by sewing the first row of gathering on the edge of the brim to the lower edge of the buckram side crown. The edge of the ribbon should go up just inside the under edge of the side crown, and is secured with a back stitch. Use heavy linen thread and a millinery needle. Now lay the hat down flat on a table and draw up the other rows of shirring until tight enough so that the brim lays flat and extends at right angles to the side crown. Fasten the two rows of shirring. The seam in the brim must be in the back of the hat. We now have the brim complete and sewed firmly to the buckram side crown ready for the wiring. Wire this brim by running the piece of steel wire through the casing at the outer edge of the brim. Be sure it is just 48 inches long. At the back of the hat join the two ends of the wire with the clamp which comes for this purpose. To do this one must rip the casing for an inch or so in the back so that the wire may be run in and fastened. When the clamp is secure sew back the hem or casing by hand.

To make the crown of the hat, cut a piece from the ribbon long enough to reach around the headsize plus a half-inch seam. Sew up this seam and press it flat. Slip this ribbon side crown over the buckram side crown, having the seam come in the back, and tack it to the buckram at the headsize, using a short stitch on the right side and a long stitch on the wrong. Gather the top edge of the silk side crown and pull it up slightly. A glance at the sketch will show about how much this side crown is pulled in at the top. For the tip of the crown use the remainder of the ribbon. Slip this piece of ribbon in from the inside of the hat and sew the gathered edge of the silk side crown to it. This is plainly shown in the sketch. One may also note the rows of shirring on the brim and the stitching forming the casing on the outer edge. The hat is trimmed across the front with wool embroidery. Patterns suitable for this purpose may be had in any embroidery book. Line the hat with a piece of thin silk, and it is complete.

1921 Good Roads Convention

Prepared Under Direction of Canadian Good Roads Association

The eighth annual convention and exhibition of the Canadian Good Roads Association, which is announced to be held at Halifax on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 10, 11 and 12, is the first gathering of the national association to take place in the Maritime Provinces, the previous conventions having been held twice in Montreal and once each in Toronto, Hamilton, Quebec, Ottawa and Winnipeg. Eastern and Central Canada having thus been recognized by the location of the successive conventions, it is likely that the Pacific Coast will be chosen for either the 1922 or the 1923 assemblage.

The 1921 convention is being favored with the direct co-operation of the Provincial Good Roads Associations of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, respectively, and is being actively supported by the Governments of the three provinces, as well as by the civic authorities, the local motoring and good roads bodies, the boards of trade and commercial clubs, and the hotels and railways of the sea provinces. In addition, the general support of the Dominion and Provincial Governments, enjoyed by the association since the inauguration of its annual conventions, is again being extended.

For the purposes of the convention, there has been placed at the disposal of the delegates the Nova Scotia Technical College, which is admirably adapted for the accommodation of such a gathering. The daily sessions will be held in a large lecture room, which is equipped with projectors that will permit the speakers to illustrate their addresses or papers with either lantern slides or moving pictures. The films shown will include one loaned by the United States Government and several from other official or private sources, demonstrating methods of highway construction, the operation of road machinery and the manufacture or preparation of standard road materials. In rooms immediately adjoining the meeting place there will be held the annual good roads exhibition, which will include varied and interesting displays of machinery models, samples of material for highways and pavements, photographs, literature and other exhibits connected with road construction or betterment.

Convention at Halifax

In choosing Halifax as the scene of this year's convention, the members of the executive committee of the Canadian Good Roads Association were not influenced solely by the attractive inducements held out and the enthusiasm shown by the Easterners. It was felt that not only would the good roads movement in the Maritime Provinces be greatly stimulated by such a gathering, but a national purpose would be served by inducing delegates from the Central and Western Provinces to visit the Atlantic region, thus giving those unfamiliar with the progress, prosperity and possibilities of the Eastern Provinces a new conception of the varied interests and resources of the Dominion and a better understanding of national problems.

In addition to the five committees which have hitherto been appointed to look after the various details of the annual convention, a sixth has been created in the form of a ladies' reception committee. Each year an increasing number of delegates have been accompanied by their wives on their trips to the convention, and this year it has been decided to pay special attention to the entertainment of the ladies, hence the appointment of the new committee.

This year's convention is expected to be more representative than ever of the national and international highways movement. An invitation has been extended to a highly-placed British road official, and the secretary-treasurer of the association has received an intimation that this invitation is likely to be accepted. For the first time, Newfoundland will be represented by several delegates, while from every Canadian province and a number of states of the neighboring republic will come experts and laymen interested in highway improvement.

Sub-Convention Being Held

As in past years, a number of sub-conventions of groups or bodies of allied interests will be held in connection with the main congress. One will be the second annual inter-provincial conference of highway officials employed by the various Governments, who will discuss their own especial problems. There will also be a special conference of the leading spirits in the provincial and local good roads organizations. It is expected that, following the practice for the past seven years, the annual meeting of the Canadian Automobile Association will also coincide with the convention.

As the association is meeting for the first time in the East, it is planned to devote approximately two-thirds of the programme to papers and discussions dealing with the peculiar problems which confront the three Maritime Provinces, while the remaining one-third will be given up to the consideration of highway questions affecting the Dominion as a whole. A tentative programme has been drawn up, and a full announcement of the completed agenda will be forthcoming in about a fortnight. The eighth annual good roads banquet will be held on the evening of Wednesday, May 11, and on the following evening, which is the concluding one of the convention, the annual business meeting and election of officers of the Canadian Good Roads Association will take place.

The local entertainment features of the convention have not been overlooked, and the delegates will be the guests of the Nova Scotia Motor League for an inspection of the magnificent land-locked harbor, one of the largest and most modernly-equipped in the world, with drives to other points of interest. For the day following the close of the convention, a railway trip to the far-famed land of Evangeline is being arranged.

STYLES IN GAS AS IN WOMEN'S HATS

Gasoline of Yesterday Was "Straight Run," Today Is "Blended," While of Tomorrow Will Be "Cracked"

There are fashions in gasoline just as there are in hats. The gasoline of yesterday was "straight run;" that of today is "blended;" while the gasoline of tomorrow will be "cracked." These three kinds of gasoline differ from one another both as to quality and as to method of manufacture.

Blended gasoline is essentially a mixture of kerosene with "casing head gasoline." Kerosene is produced by the straight distillation of petroleum, and is the next product to come off after the light naphtha. It is somewhat similar to gasoline, but it has no "life," or, in other words, it is not volatile. Because of this fact it cannot be used in the ordinary automobile motor, as it will not vaporize in the carburetor. "Casing head gasoline" is obtained from natural gas, either by compressing and cooling, that is "squeezing," or by "scrubbing" the gas with a heavy oil and then distilling. It gets its name from the fact that the natural gas is drawn from the head of the casing of the well. Its production is increasing rapidly, and in a short time practically every cubic foot of natural gas will have been "squeezed" or "scrubbed" before it is sold to the consumer. Casing head gasoline is extremely volatile, or, as the oil men say, it is "wold." When it is mixed or blended with kerosene in the proper proportions it gives to the kerosene the necessary "life," and a fairly satisfactory motor fuel is obtained. This blended gasoline is now produced in large quantities, and is sold for the most part as "motor gas" for trucks and tractors.

Cracked gasoline is obtained by cracking heavy petroleum oils. It is not obtained by "extracting more gasoline from the crude oil," as some of our newspaper experts would have us believe. Extracting implies that the gasoline is actually present in the heavy oil that is cracked, but such is not the case. All of the gasoline in the crude oil has already been removed by distillation before the cracking process is applied. Cracking involves a chemical change, the production of new materials which are not present in the starting materials. A chemist might define oil cracking as "the pyrogenetic or catalytic decomposition of complex hydrocarbons." For the man in the street, however, oil cracking means the breaking down of heavy oils into light oils by means of heat.

The yields of cracked gasoline are from 20 to 40 per cent of the heavy oil used. The fact must not be overlooked that these yields of gasoline are obtained from heavy oils and oil residues which contain no gasoline at all, and which would be entirely useless as motor fuel if it were not for the cracking process.

After you have ruined a few spark plugs by removing them with a monkey wrench you will get a socket that just fits around the plug and protects the core from accident. It costs only a few cents, and will pay for itself after it has been used a few times.

TREMENDOUS POWER

Few Motorists Realize the Great Force That Unleashes When Motor Starts

Recently a noted English scientist brought out some interesting facts in this connection that are well worth knowing, serving to increase the appreciation of the average man who drives a car for the marvellous mechanism that he uses in such a matter-of-fact way,

For instance, it was calculated by this scientist that a piston with a stroke of 5½ inches and an engine speed of 4,000 revolutions a minute is moving at a rate of 72 miles an hour.

In the course of a 200-mile journey the piston, weighing slightly less than a pound, has to travel up and down in its cylinder 585,000 times. At the top and bottom of each stroke it has to stop and start again in the opposite direction. If anyone will take a weight of one pound and quickly move it backward and forward over a distance of 5½ inches, he will find it rather tiring.

Engine valves are also reciprocating parts and therefore have difficult work to perform. A valve spends much of its life red hot, and has to lift 3-16 inch or more in 1-400th of a second, returning again at the same speed.

Springs are used to return most valves, and, as the speed of the valve is six miles an hour, naturally a very strong spring is required. Some exhaust valve springs are equal to a weight of 100 pounds, and this 100-pound load has to be lifted by the cam from a standstill to a height of 3-16 inch at an average speed of about six miles an hour.

AUTO TWICE AS SAFE NOWADAYS

NEW YORK.—The automobile today is twice as safe as ever.

In 1914, there was one death to every 400 automobiles in the country. In 1919 there were more automobile fatalities, but the ratio was one to nearly every 800 cars.

So, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce decides motoring is getting safer. In fact, in Detroit and New York the total number of automobile deaths was lower than that of 1919.

But the actual increase in automobile deaths has caused automobile men to advocate more playgrounds, more safety education in schools, uniform traffic rules and regulations against overloading.

Forty-three per cent of all automobile fatalities occur to children under 15. To keep the children off the streets more playgrounds are needed.

A uniform vehicle law, intended to reduce traffic confusion, therefore, accidents, has been placed before all provincial legislatures for adoption.

Attempts will be made to educate truck owners on the dangers of overloading. Brakes of an overloaded truck cannot function efficiently, and might fail to work completely at a crucial moment.

Cletrac Farming Pays

MORE work—more kinds of work—more days in the year. That is what Cletrac farmers are getting from their tractors and it is putting them ahead of their neighbors in profits from the land they till. The Cletrac is not simply a "plowing" tractor. It does good plowing—better plowing in fact than other tractors—because it works at 3½ miles an hour. But it does all the other farm work too.

It gives the farmer a simple, compact, reliable and economical source of hauling and stationary power. It is built right. It will last. It burns kerosene, distillate or gasoline perfectly and uses less than two gallons of fuel per working hour. We'll demonstrate—gladly.

Paying Tire Bills Twice

You May Get a Receipt for the Tire You Buy—And Yet Pay for It Twice

You buy a tire—a Goodyear we'll say. Ordinarily, that tire should run from 6,000 to 15,000 miles or more. If through carelessness, lack of attention, or deliberate abuse, it runs but 3,000 miles—then gives out, it's an expensive tire. Its cost is double that of a tire which runs 6,000 miles.

Given proper care and attention your tires will roll up hundreds of extra miles of service. The verdict rests with you. Here are some causes of lost tire mileage:

1. Wheels out of alignment cause the tough, sturdy tire tread to be rasped and filed away.
2. Speeding up over rough, stony roads, strains and bruises the carcass and lays the foundation for a blowout.
3. Running in car tracks or ruts breaks down the side walls, and renders a tire irreparable.
4. Under-inflation causes a tire to flex unnecessarily, generates friction and heat, and finally destroys the fabric.

The remedy for most of these troubles is caution. Have your tires—and wheels—in fact, your complete car inspected occasionally. Frequent consultation with us—your Goodyear Service Station—will help keep your tire bills down to normal.

GEORGIAN CIRCUIT IS BEAUTIFUL TOUR

This Tour Stands Pre-eminent Among Motor Routes of the Pacific Coast — Covers Large Territory

In May, 1915, Secretary Harris of the Island Automobile Association prophesied that in the years to come there would be one tour that would stand out pre-eminent amongst the motor tours of the Pacific Coast, that tour being the International Georgian Circuit.

A few weeks ago a map of this wonderful trip was published in the motor page of The Colonist, giving an idea of the cities connected together, embracing a 500 mile sweep of scenic grandeur unequalled on this continent. A glance at the map will show that there is no starting point on the Georgian Circuit. You can leave from any city on the route and cover the 500 miles without being on the same road twice, or, at pleasure, increase the distance to 1,500 miles by taking the number of side tours connecting this highway.

The idea of creating the Georgian Circuit was conceived in 1915 by a former president of the Island Automobile Association who was an international figure—the promoter of the Good Roads movement. The full realization of the scheme came with the opening of the Olympia Highway, a project initiated by Mr. A. J. Blethen, then president of the Seattle Automobile Club. The formal opening was celebrated at Port Angeles on Saturday, August 14, 1915.

It is needless to say that the idea of the Georgian Circuit has taken strongly each year, its popularity increases and this increase is tremendous importance to this city and to other cities on the circuit.

Endless Panorama

The motorist making this trip will have a new birth in travel experience. He will be literally astounded at the endless panorama of scenery with its wonderful variety, and will begin to realize that the scenic splendor of this five hundred mile circuit equals, or does not actually surpass, any other automobile trip in the world.

As shown on the map, the eGorgian Circuit consists of the Olympia Highway (126 miles), the Pacific Highway (237 miles), and the Island Highway (77 miles), with the ferry between Nanaimo and Vancouver and Port Angeles and Victoria. It might be well to add the ferry rates: Automobiles under 2,000 pounds, $5; between 2,000 pounds and 4,000, $7; over 4,000 pounds, $9.

The Island Automobile Association will maintain the same service at the dock both here and at Nanaimo as it has in former years, says Secretary Harris. Mr. Harris always advocated co-operation of all cities, and past experience has proven that it certainly pays. For instance, when a tourist lands in Victoria he has never been told that all the attractions in the world are here, but strongly urged to tour Vancouver Island, urged to know of the glories found beyond Nanaimo; see Alberni district, and those of Courtenay and Campbell River. There has been a good word for all, which has been appreciated by all tourists.

Ladysmith to Nanaimo, 16 miles.
Vancouver to New Westminster, 12 miles.
(Customs Offices, Mr. Westland in charge.)
(American Custom Office, Mr. Ellsperman in charge.)
Everett to Seattle, 32 miles.
Seattle to Tacoma, 42 miles.
Tacoma to Olympia, 35 miles.
Olympia to Shelton, 21 miles.
Shelton to Port Angeles, 104 miles.
(American Customs, Mr. Fisher in charge.)
Victoria.

NOW IS TIME TO PUT CAR IN SHAPE

Motorists Should Have Automobile Overhauled Now in Preparation for the Summer Weather

Too few motorists are far-sighted enough to appreciate that the Winter or early Spring is the time to have their cars put in condition for the succeeding driving season, according to a local automobile firm.

There are two reasons why this is so. One is that they can spare their cars better when the weather is least inviting to riding, and the other is that repair shops are less rushed in the Winter or early Spring and can give most careful and thorough attention to a job.

What is squally attractive is that quite often special rates are made for repair work done in this more or less "off" season. In other years repair shops have been quite busy in the Winter because more car owners did recognize the advantage of getting their cars repaired before they entered another driving season. But this year on account of the open Winter there is not the usual amount of overhauling going on.

Perhaps this thoughtlessness of the average motorist is comparable to that of the man who did not repair his roof in fair weather because it didn't need it then, and in rainy weather he couldn't, hence his roof continued to leak.

The consequences will be that a great many motorists this Spring will awake to the fact that they have too long neglected the overhauling they needed. When they go to shops they are likely to find them full of work and be unable to get accommodated until the driving season has begun. Then the regular volume of work going through the shop will make it hard for them to receive proper attention and as a result many will have to drive their cars in unsatisfactory condition and to the disadvantage of the cars. In other words, the "stitch in time" having been neglected, heavy and excessive repair bills will follow. Certain it is that if all wait until the Spring to get their cars overhauled the work will be only half done.

Another objection to delay not to be overlooked is that in the Spring and early Summer there will be a great many new cars coming through from the factories and the service stations of the dealers handling these are going to be very busy putting these new cars in readiness for their owners. Naturally this work will take precedence over all other work, as the dealers will be anxious to turn the cars over to their purchasers and get their money. The importuning owner of an old car asking for an overhauling at such time will have scant chance of being accommodated.

Moreover, if car owners would get their overhauling work done now, it would be a good thing for the general public, for it would improve the economic situation. Many service stations are finding it necessary to lay off help because of lack of work, which is decreasing the buying power of a certain portion of the community and tending to depress business all along the line. On the other hand, if these service stations could keep the men on their payroll it would enable them to have the efficient kind of mechanics at the time when they are going to especially need them, when the rush comes in the Spring. Otherwise these men are likely to have drifted into other trades and not be available at that time.

No doubt a great many are contemplating having their cars repaired between now and the good weather, but do not appreciate the advisability of not delaying it even a little longer. The familiar adage "Do it now," is especially timely advice in this connection. Motorists who need any mechanical work done on their cars or trucks will be acting in their own best interest if they heed it.

HIGHWAY PERISCOPE

A clever automobile danger signal is being erected throughout Montgomery County at dangerous curves by the Automobile Club of Dayton, O. The signal consists of a nine-inch red lens with a mirror so arranged in back of it that it catches the rays from the headlights of approaching cars. The rays are then reflected back into the lens, illuminating it. The signal has been used very successfully in Dayton, where it has been installed at a dead end street crossing.

AUTO BREAK WRENCH

When brakes on automobiles are adjusted by wing nuts the owner or mechanic often has considerable trouble making the adjustment because of the awkward location of the nut. A wrench that can be made in a few minutes by anyone will obviate this difficulty. A piece of one-inch pipe is selected and slotted, the length of the pipe being determined for the car on which it is to be used. By means of a small rod passed through holes drilled in the top of the pipe the work is easily accomplished.

GRAY-DORT

Watchful Eyes Guard Its Quality

THERE is much more than mere routine to the elaborate system of inspection which guards the supreme quality of the Gray-Dort car.

Built into every car is the pride of an organization over sixty years experienced in the production of satisfactory transportation.

—each skilled craftsman looks upon the Gray-Dort as his personal product, by which he will be judged in the eyes of the world.

The difficulty in securing a Gray-Dort will increase as the season advances. See the Gray-Dort dealer now.

PHYSICAL LAWS DRIVE THE CARS

Natural Laws Learned in School Apply to Automobile Today, and Should Be Kept in Mind When Driving

Do you ever think how the natural laws you learned way back in high school days apply to your automobile today? It is working under those laws, whether you remember them or not. If you relearn them and keep them in mind you will more thoroughly understand what is taking place and get a great deal more pleasure out of driving, because you will know the how and the why of every little thing that happens and be more in sympathy with your car for that reason.

Remember the old law about bodies in motion tending to go in a straight line? This is responsible for the fact that a body travelling in a circle is always trying to get off on a tangent, and a revolving body to throw off a loose portion every little while, to go whirling out into space, the same as when the earth was thrown off the sun. Think about this the next time you whirl around a corner when the pavement is a little wet and the wheels start to slide. The car will want to keep going right along in a straight line because of the law, and either the front or the rear wheels, or both, will slide and you will land up against the far curb.

If the pavement were dry and the speed not too high, the friction of the tires—traction—on the pavement would prevent skidding, because an equal and opposite force came into play, but movable bodies in the car, such as persons, would tend to move to one side of the car. If it were not for this friction it would be hard to turn the corner at a speed faster than a walk.

Law of Inertia

Then, perhaps, you will remember the law of inertia—how a body at rest does not want to start moving and when it does get moving does not want to stop. That is why it takes a great deal more power to start the automobile rolling than to keep it rolling after it is once in motion, and to produce this extra power when you wish to speed up the car you "step on the gas," as it is called. After it is up to speed practically the only power required is to overcome the wind resistance.

But you may know more about the other end of the law, that a body in motion wants to keep moving unless some other force intervenes. You doubtless have drifted down on another car or some other body several times in learning to drive. The car was going and it wanted to keep on going, although you were pressing the brakes and doing almost everything else you knew about to get it to stop, particularly if the pavement were slippery.

You discovered that it takes considerable power to stop a moving body as well as to start it. Understanding this, you probably will not wait until the last moment to jam on the brakes, but will start in time to avoid both the danger of accident and damage to the car through racking.

There was another law called that of gravity—a force that pulls everything toward the centre of the earth, and which is responsible for keeping a large part of the automobiles today from hitting more than the very high places. But it is this law which makes it harder going up a grade and a matter of care in going down one.

Besides pulling the load of the car on an upgrade the motor must overcome the force of gravity, which may be a considerable item in the case of a heavy car, and which explains, in part, why the flivver will make a hill easier than some high-powered auto. Of course, going downhill the weight of the car multiplies the attraction of gravity and makes good brakes more necessary.

LOW-PRICED STEAM CAR IS ON MARKET

Car Driven by Direct Application of Power to the Rear Wheels Gives Excellent Results—Many New Features

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 19.—Rumors current at the New York and Chicago auto shows that an important enterprise in steam motors is soon to be launched have been definitely confirmed by George A. Coats of this city, capitalist and representative of large steam interests. Mr. Coats announces that he will manufacture and market a five-passenger six-cylinder steam touring car of 110-inch wheelbase, with electric lighting and starting, to retail at about $1,000.

The Coats construction embodies several distinct advances which have interested leading steam engineers. For many months the Coats experimental shop has been the terminal of pilgrimages by steam specialists from all parts of the country. Engineers and other representatives of the gasoline car industry are also joining the visitors in increasing numbers. Every week sees deputations from distant points at the headquarters in Indianapolis.

Models Carefully Constructed

The operating models have been taken down and put together many times. Not a feature has escaped critical examination. The judgment of many has been that Mr. Coats has the construction that will "put steam over"—that it will win the popularity that its advocates have long insisted it rightfully deserves.

The boiler is of the combination fire-and-water-tube type, so arranged that it will go under a hood of any shape. The top and bottom welding of the tubes, equalizing expansion, reveals advances especially remarked upon. The insulated steam line leads directly to the rear axle with divided flow to each half of the axle.

It is in this axle that engineers and laymen alike find one of the most fascinating advances in the Coats car—the direct application of the steam to the wheels, absolutely eliminating the geared differential. The rear axle is the engine—or the engine is the rear axle—whichever way you choose to consider it.

Engine Part of Axle

It is engine, axle and differential function, all in one, the engine in its housing being just about the size of the ordinary rear axle gear case. The housing of each half of the axle carries three fixed cylinders, set at 120 degrees apart, or one-third the circle. These cylinders are exactly like those of the automobile engine—with poppet valves, pistons and connecting rods. The bore is 2¾ inches, stroke three inches. The three connecting rods in each half are pivoted to a crank pin integral with the drive shaft of each wheel. At a speed of 40 miles an hour, the engine is running at the very low speed of 500 revolutions per minute. It will be observed that an overlapping stroke is obtained. Before one cylinder is entirely off pressure another has begun to take hold, and the third is completing its exhaust.

With the Coats steam and water cycle, one filling of the water tank runs the car from 300 to 500 miles, while 20 to 40 miles have been obtained on a gallon of kerosene. The exhaust steam is taken by return pipe to the condenser, which is located in front of the boiler in the position of the ordinary radiator. The initial heating for starting is electrical—controlled by switch on the cowl board.

Great Speed Attained

The characteristics of steam are too well known to require analysis in terms of ordinary rating when applied to a motor car.

Its range in this car is not "three speeds" or "four speeds," but any speed from drifting to 60 miles an hour and its whole range is controlled by one small lever on the steering wheel. There is not one gear in the power line of the Coats car. The power is never separated from the load to go from one speed to another. The acceleration, or slowing down, is immediate.

The Coats car, completely equipped, according to the manufacturers, weighs less than 1,800 pounds. It has less than 40 moving parts. It eliminates carburetor, timing gears, magneto, clutch, gearshift, flywheel, accelerator propeller shaft, universal joints and differential. In appearance the Coats car is attractive, but not at all radical in design.

Although a comparatively young man, Mr. Coats has been identified with the automobile industry from the beginning as a field man and distributor of leading cars. Some years ago he acquired coal mines in Indiana, which in large part have furnished the capital for his steam car manufacture.

The origin of the present enterprise is interesting. At the beginning of the war the Norwegian Government sent an engineer to America to study the development of internal combustion engines. He had completed his reports and was preparing to return home when Mr. Coats met him. The modest inventor laid before Mr. Coats plans for steam on which he had been working for years. These plans so interested the Indianapolis man that he promptly employed the engineer and established him in an experimental shop with a free hand.

The American automobile man's 20 years of experience and the Norwegian engineer's science were combined—with the counsel of many experienced American steam and automotive engineers—and the Coats car was the result.

Testing and Filling Battery

A good plan is to carry a glass tube in one of the door pockets. In finding the water level in the battery insert the tube in the battery, and holding the finger over the top of the tube one may turn the water level by raising it slightly and noting the depth in the tube. The liquid is then returned from the cell it was taken from. In refilling the battery with distilled water a steady hand is required to prevent spilling, but if the glass of water is held against the tube and allowed to flow downward it will follow the tube into the battery.

SIGNS FOR BIG RACE

Tommy Milton, the World's Greatest Speed King, to Pilot Car at Indianapolis on May 30

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 19.—Tommy Milton, the speed king of the world, has entered the ninth annual 500-mile sweepstakes to be held at the Indianapolis motor speedway, Monday, May 30. He will pilot a Durant Special owned by Cliff Durant, millionaire race enthusiast, who, in the past, had driven his own racing creations but who, it appears, will get his thrills from the stands in the future. He will get plenty of thrills watching Milton urge his speed creation over the bricks of the Indianapolis speedway, for Milton's racing life has been one thrill after another.

Milton made the fastest automobile trip ever negotiated by mortal man when he fanned a racing car over the sands of Daytona Beach, Fla., at the astounding speed of 156.04 miles per hour. And as a thrilling finale to the great feat Tommy's car caught fire while he was traveling at this unheard of speed, and he calmly drove it into the ocean and escaped with but a few minor burns.

The year before, at Uniontown, he gave a masterly exhibition of handling a mount under difficulties when his car caught fire and wound up its career in a blazing mass of flames in front of the grandstand. When the car caught fire, instead of driving ahead, in which event the flames from the burning engine would have incinerated him where he sat, he skidded his car sidewise, fanning the flames away from him, and so brought his car to a stop with only a few scorches to show.

He has always been on the job with quick wits whenever the occasion demanded, and is one of the most skilled drivers in the racing fraternity.

Tommy is a thorough mechanic as well as a great driver, and he always knows just how far to push his mount. In the Indianapolis event last May there were many cars that were miles-per-hour faster than his Dusenberg, but he plugged along throughout the event, keeping an even gait, and except for his monotonous regularity would have been unnoticed. Toward the end of the 500-mile jaunt, when other cars were breaking down under the gruelling grind, Milton was still going at the same speed and he rushed under the wire for third money.

Tommy Milton stands second in the 1920 racing championship conducted by the American Automobile Association, with 930 points, having been exceeded only by the late Gaston Chevrolet, who was killed in the final race of the season at Los Angeles.

LUXURY ORGY OF WAR TIME MEETS SAD END

Bailiff Has Over $40,000 of High Price Motor Cars—Only One "Lizzie" Amongst Twenty Cars

According to the Borders Cities' Star many citizens are feeling the effects of luxuries purchased during the prosperous years just passed when money and employment were easy to get, and this opinion was borne out by divisional court bailiff Frank St. Louis, in a recent interview with the Star.

At the present time Mr. St. Louis has over $40,000 worth of automobiles which have been seized for non-payment by the purchasers. The cars are many sizes and makes. Among the twenty or more cars the bailiff has which will be sold at public auction is only one Ford, the rest of the cars being larger and higher priced.

KEROSENE WILL CUT GUM FROM PISTON

When the crankshaft turns over with a steady and unusual resistance it probably means that there is a deposit of gummy substance under the piston rings. This may be removed by putting an ounce or two of kerosene through the petcock of the engine with the spark plug wire disconnected from that cylinder for a few minutes.

To Keep Car Floor Clean

An easy way to fix the rear floor of a Ford touring car so it can easily be cleaned is to cut out spaces on either side of the car where the cross pieces are placed over the flooring, each space to be the length of the width of one of the boards which make up the floor. With these notches sawed out of the cross pieces and a finger hole bored in the floor board that corresponds to the notches at its end, the board is easily raised and forms an opening for sweeping out all dirt, mud and trash. The cost is but about twenty minutes of your time.

Extra Lights

An ingenious car owner recently equipped his bus with two extra lights, low down in the rear fender, completely illuminating the running board. He believes also that the lights make it safe to pass other cars at night and contribute to good running. They are controlled from the dash by an extra switch.

TIRE GAUGE IS SAFETY DEVICE

Seventy-five per cent of the motorist's tire trouble, it is estimated, is due either directly or indirectly to under-inflation. When it comes to under-inflation, don't guess. Use a guage. It is only a matter of a moment's work, but it means dollars saved in tires.

When not properly inflated, tires readily run out. Particularly is this true over rough places where the rim chafes and bruises the fabric. Under-inflation also means an unequal tension in the fabric plies making up the carcass, which results in chafing, fabric separation and ultimately in a blowout.

While it is quite true that an under-inflated tire is more elastic and more resilient, the motorist pays dearly for this. Loaded, the under-inflated tire, by reason of increased hinging action near the rim and at a sharp angle, is often more or less devulcanized or softened by the resultant heat.

Pays Big Dividends

It pays big dividends in freedom from tire trouble to rigidly observe the inflation pressure recommended by the manufacturer. It is so simple a matter, requiring only a moment, but the motorist has no one but himself to blame when he neglects to test his tire pressure with a gauge.

If the motorist wishes to obtain the maximum mileage built into a tire, he should pay heed to this timely warning against under-inflation. Inflation is the first cardinal principle of tire conservation. If you do not have a tire gauge, purchase one at once. Even after trouble has begun, prompt action in taking an injured casing to a tire surgeon for repair or the use of a tire gauge will greatly prolong the life of the casing.

Removing Road Tar

Unless washed off promptly with soap and water, road tar will quickly harden on a car, leaving unsightly streaks and spots. There are several good ways of removing it, however. One consists in the application of butter or oleomargarine, which will soften the tar without injuring the varnish. Another good solvent is cocoa butter, which is used in the theatrical profession for removing grease paint. This can be purchased in some drug stores and is a harmless solvent for all kinds of oil and grease as well as tar.

Spring Seat Lubrication

Many present day cars are fitted with springs mounted on seats that oscillate. These spring seats usually have some means of lubrication, but many car owners never take the trouble simply to turn up the grease.

A Temporary Fuse

A burned out fuse on one's car in the country is very inconvenient if there are no spares with which to replace it, but if the motorist will carry a little tinfoil in his box of odds and ends he can make a serviceable temporary repair in a minute. As a matter of fact, anyone who smokes cigarettes or chews gum or eats candy on the road usually has some tinfoil on his person, and so it is not necessary to make a special point of including it with the tools. To rehabilitate the burned fuse it is wrapped with one or two layers of the foil and reinserted in the fuse box. Care should be taken not to wrap the fuse too heavily, as if this is done damage is liable to result to the wiring if it is suddenly stressed with an overload.

Melting Ladle

For the car owner who does a lot of his own work a very useful melting ladle may be made from an old piston. One of the wrist pin bosses is plugged up, and in the other a metal bar is welded to form a handle.

Knock Due to Overheating

Overheating is a common cause of a knock which increases as the car is driven, and is due to faulty lubricating or cooling and carbon deposit in the cylinders. The engine of a car which increases knocking as the car goes up hill has either an accumulation of carbon or the spark is too far advanced—possibly both.

Cause of Sand Blisters

The real cause of a sand blister in a tire casing is a cut which goes through the tread rubber of the tire but only as far as the fabric or cord underneath the tread. If the cut is neglected and left open, sand, gravel and water will work into it and will gradually spread between fabric and tread, forming in a lump.

LORD READING ON LEAGUE OF NATIONS

Addressing a great audience at Reading, England, prior to his departure for India, Lord Reading said when he accepted the invitation from their local branch of the League of Nations Union to address them he had no more idea than they had that he should have been appointed Viceroy of India. He deemed himself fortunate in this, for it gave him the opportunity of meeting his friends at Reading, and saying to them, not only on his own behalf, but also for Lady Reading, that wherever they went and however long they might be away they would always remember Reading, and so far as they were able to manage it, they would take care that Reading remembered them. The Mayor had in felicitous terms expressed the congratulations of the residents of Reading upon his appointment, and there were no congratulations which gave him greater pleasure. The moment was now approaching when he would have to go away for some considerable time, and what he hoped and trusted was that when he did return he would be able to stand before them again in that hall and give an account of his stewardship for the King in India, which would give them satisfaction, and more important, would have enabled him to do something for the Empire. He also had a message to deliver from Lady Reading. Using her language as nearly as he could, she asked him to tell her friends at Reading how deeply she regretted not being able to come to see them. It was a severe blow, and nothing but the most urgent orders of the doctor would have prevailed upon her to keep away. She sent a message of friendship and goodwill, and indeed, of affection and hope, that all those long memories and associations between Reading and herself would be kept green for the future, so that when she came back they would not have forgotten her.

Functions of League

Turning to the subject of his address, Lord Reading said he agreed that the League of Nations Union did excellent work when it gave the opportunity throughout the country of holding meetings, so that the public might become familiar with the League of Nations, and might be encouraged to lend it great support. For indeed, they might have a League of Nations on paper, signed by even greater men than those who had affixed their signatures to the present covenant, they might have it ratified by all the Parliaments that existed, and it still could never be a living force unless it was based upon the people's will. What they were anxious to impress upon the public was that the League of Nations, and the strength that it should gather from public support, must not be left merely to articles in the newspapers, however powerful they might be; they must not be left merely to the politicians, however eloquent they might be. This subject was one which was vital to every human being. He doubted whether there was a man or woman in the hall who during the war did not say again and again in their innermost thoughts, Can this thing ever happen again? Was there no better way of settling man's disputes; had humanity nothing to offer but killing? This idea germinated quickly, finding its way in the trenches, on the ships, in the aeroplanes, throughout the fighting forces, but not only there, for it was at home, in the hospitals and homes, with fathers, mothers, brothers, sisters, husbands, with all of them the great thought was, when this war was over it must be, as they had said it was, a war to end war. He did not want to raise hopes or to say anything to them to indicate a stronger view than he held. He did not say to them that the League of Nations at this moment was an instrument which would make it impossible for wars to be waged in future. It would be idle to say so. What he did say was that the League of Nations was the only instrument in existence for the purpose of delaying and preventing war, and that the more powerful it became the greater would be its effect, and it might be possible in the future, certainly he would never say it would be impossible, if the League of Nations did gather the strength they hoped it would, that indeed in the end it would prove to be a humanly-devised instrument which would prevent war for always.

After-War Problems

The problems with which humanity had been faced since the war had been almost as great, as perplexing, and indeed sometimes as serious as during the war. But that did not mean that nothing had been won. They had won what after all was the most priceless thing, their liberty, which was threatened. Liberty was the most priceless possession in any political institution; of all political privileges of which they might speak none could be compared with liberty. The League, as it gathered strength, would tend to stabilize peace. It would prevent the rush to war. It would be an interesting problem of the historian to go through the chronicle of wars and strive to arrive at a conclusion as to how many would have been waged if there had been three months' delay during which to deliberate.

Human passion was what made the passion of a nation. Passions rose easily, sometimes facts were not always quite understood, and in those moments when there was anger, hot words were spoken just as there were between two individuals who had not controlled themselves, and out of all that came the political temper which made for war. What a world destruction would have been saved, what we should have been spared, if only at the critical moment at the end of July, 1914, those upon whom rested that awful responsibility had just paused for a moment and adopted Lord Grey's suggestion of a conference. But it was not to happen. Now, after the war, they pictured to themselves that men would have learned more wisdom, that as democracy spread, so it was the hope of all of them that the peoples would have more to say as to war, that they would imitate not only our own countries, which were democratic, but would even exercise more power, because, as they trusted and hoped as a result of the League of Nations, and of what we had learnt, the public would be taken more into the confidence of Governments.

A great step in advance was done at Geneva in helping to bring the nations together, for in addition to the nineteen signatories, neutral states had joined, and even ex-enemy countries—Austria and Bulgaria, they had their request to join granted. Germany did not ask to be admitted, and rightly, because Germany knew that she could not be admitted, and that she had to satisfy those nations with whom she had warred that she did honestly and sincerely intend to carry out the terms of the peace to which her delegates had subscribed. But there they had the signatures of forty-eight states, grown from nineteen since the signing of the peace. He wished he could have said something more. But it was not for them to discuss why the Senate of America had not ratified the covenant. That was a matter for America and the Americans, but all other nations were interested. There was no nation that could wield such influence as America could. He said that because America had not the same interest, by her policy, by her geographical position, and, indeed, by reason of her territory, as this country had. The League of Nations was conceived in a spirit of justice, and was meant to determine not which was right according to which country had the most guns, men, etc., but according to the views of trained men in justice. The League of Nations had achieved one very memorable act in its organization of a permanent court of international justice. This was the supreme realization of an ideal which men had had for very long periods. It did not make it compulsory upon states to submit their disputes—they apparently had not got far enough for that yet—but all these matters could be dealt with by the tribunal, and above all there was that fundamental underlying principle of the signatories to the League of Nations that time must elapse, for they had bound themselves to believe that they must have a period for consideration, for calmness, for deliberation, and eventually, as he believed would always come, conceding.

Not a Dream

Some of those who were inclined to scoff at it said it was an idealists' dream. That never convinced him that the dream was not going to be realized, because he knew of nothing in the world which had not begun by being stigmatized as an idealists' dream. The financial conference set up by the League in Brussels had a lot of work to do which was of vast importance, more important in his view than the delimitation of frontiers and other problems, because on finance and economics of the country depended not only the situation of the people in those countries, but very largely also the well-being, prosperity and happiness of the people of other countries. When a man was unemployed in this country, to say to him, "Look at the exchange in Poland, in Austria, or in Hungary," seemed to be a sufficient answer to the man because he had not the remotest idea what they were talking about. But it was a true statement because those nations which had a depreciated currency in consequence of the war were unable to pay for the goods manufactured in this country, and the consequence was that the warehouses became full up, and there was no employment. If there was one lesson more borne in upon those who had had to study it, and indeed upon all who thought and read, it was the interdependence of nations. They could no longer shut themselves up in watertight compartments and say they cared nothing about what happened outside. If that truth had not been realised before the war, it certainly had been impressed upon all who had anything to do with international finance or world commerce since the war. One other aspect he would consider.

Disarmament

They might discuss the League of Nations from every aspect, but they would always come back to this in his humble view, that at the very root of the problem was disarmament. He did not mean when he spoke of disarmament and advocated it that he would expose this nation to aggression. No responsible man, no thinker, would ever dream, particularly after all they had experienced, of exposing this country to any such danger. If all nations agreed to reduce their armaments to the number of men and weapons that were deemed necessary for the purposes of protection, it might be effected. It was a vast and very difficult subject, and it was because it was so difficult that there were cynics about the League of Nations. But were they still to go on piling up expenditure on armaments, and if they did, what would be the result? He said the League of Nations was the only hope, because if they got these 48 States to determine they would reduce their armaments to the extent of providing security and agree upon terms, why, then, there could no longer be any real conflict of opinion about it. He agreed they would have to go a long way before they got that, but he did think the League could help them along this road. The League of Nations was the only instrument upon which they could rest, for the progress which they all desired in this respect, and the longer it existed, the stronger it grew, the more numerous its membership and the greater confidence and credit it acquired by its decisions and by its acts, the closer they would get to the period when they might have real disarmament among nations. His last word upon the material aspect was that as an insurance premium it was worth the business man's while to do something to support the League, and to get it to the hearts of the people.

There was another aspect, far higher and more appealing to the majority of men and women. He did not appeal to any religion, because he believed all religions taught the same moral in this respect. But he appealed to the spiritual faith that was in the human race, to those who could see and think and imagine something higher, something nobler than merely making money or enjoying themselves. This was a gospel which was worth preaching. It was as true as any religion which had ever been preached. It was all based upon the notion that there should be peace among men. Therefore he would appeal to them to take this task to their hearts as one which was worth the doing for the sake of that better feeling that came to one when a noble thought had crossed one's mind and found its home there, to those who were ready to go out and to labor for the cause, to those who would say to themselves this was something which was really worth striving for. Let them strive to instil into the public mind some conception of what was meant by this League of Nations. It was for everyone, however humble a part it might be that was played, however little he might be able to do, to help the cause. There would be always to him the one and perhaps the most consoling thought this could give to any man, that he had striven his best in a great cause for the progress of mankind, and to secure for the world peace.

Baby's Advice

and don't make it sick by using strong soaps, pigments, or by neglect.

Use Baby's Own Soap freely with warm water, rinse well and dry carefully, and the most delicate skin will be kept soft and white—will not harden or become coarse. Its constant careful use will make HARD SKINS softer and whiter.

Its gentle lingering aroma is a lasting pleasure enhanced by the knowledge that it is due exclusively to flower extracts—No artificial chemical perfumes are used in it.

A DAY IN DUBLIN

Dublin is not ten miles away, but here is the solitude of Connemara and the beauty of Wicklow. Tumbling down the hills the eager waterfalls seek the stream swirling through the valley.

Below a pine forest spreads to the lowlands, and there is no sound except the wind in the trees and the music of rushing water. From the heights there is a glimpse of a burned-out police barracks, a grim monument to a desperate fight.

Suddenly from out of the silence comes the insistent purr of a motorcycle. Round a bend in the hill road appears a solitary cyclist, a young man, with keen, inquisitive eyes. He stops, and after the usual Irish greeting questions you as to your business and asks why you are abroad on the hillsides. He is a Sinn Fein motor scout covering the doings of the small Sinn Fein army drilling in the hills.

Lights are gleaming in the dark waters of the Liffey. A pair of sleeping swans drift down the smooth water, their heads tucked under their wings. A couple of armored cars resembling gigantic pepper-boxes come swiftly along the narrow road bordering the river. Follows a motor-lorry sheathed with iron and filled with cadets all armed with revolvers, which they hold in readiness over the side of the lorry. They are approaching O'Connell Bridge.

A group of young men are standing in the shadow of the O'Connell statue. "Take your hands out of your pockets," comes a stern warning from the lorry, followed by several revolver shots. The men run and the lorry speeds along the riverside.

A quick step and a curt word in the corridor. Three of the bridge players sit tense, eyes and ears expectant. The man in the chair softly exclaims, "Raid."

The fourth bridge player, new to Ireland, laughs as he doubles spades. "You fellows are trying to put the wind up me," he says.

The others do not answer. They are listening and waiting. They are all asking the same question with their eyes. "Is it the Sinn Feiners or the military?" A bang on the door, which is flung open, and a soldier in full war kit with bayonet fixed strides into the room. Four men in the room give a deep sigh of relief.

"Gentlemen, please go to your rooms," comes the curt order. We obey readily. Then follows a systematic search of the hotel, room after room. An anxious mother knocks at the door of her hysterical daughter. "It's all right, dear," she says soothingly, "it's only the military."

Two officers in charge of the search party make their apologies, but they leave nothing to chance; they search everywhere. Afterwards they join us in the little sitting-room. "What a life!" exclaims one as he thankfully drains a whisky and soda. "Talk about Flanders—Here's a happy New Year!"—James Dunn in The Daily Mail.

Change Tires at Night

There should be a trouble lamp with a good length of wire as an integral part of the car. The most important aid a trouble lamp could give would be to light a wheel for tire changing. One with a magnetic base exists. The current which lights the lamp magnetizes a little iron button in the bottom of the socket, so that the lamp can be stuck against any steel part of the chassis and will hold itself there. Failing this refinement, a little screw clamp could easily be designed which would fit on almost anywhere.

Noise in Rear Axle

Noise in the rear axle may be caused by several different things. The construction of some differentials naturally produces a humming sound. This is not harmful. But if a harsh, grating noise is produced, or in a case of some cars if there is any noise at all there is a defect in the system which should be remedied. Some causes are lack of oil, use of the wrong grade or a poor grade of oil, gears out of alignment, chipped, burred or broken teeth, or if the car is old the gears are undoubtedly worn, resulting in noise.

Clean Cooling System

This is the time of year when it is well to remember the good old method of loosening scale that has formed in the cooling system. Six pounds of washing soda dissolved in five gallons of boiling water is the correct formula. Pour this solution in the cooling system and allow it to remain for a day, then drain and flush the system out with clean water and refill.

Ford

Ford Car Dependability

IT IS a fact that no matter where any other car can go, a Ford Car will go farther. You know that—have seen it proven many times.

But do you know why?

—Because the power of the Ford engine is more than sufficient to drive the Ford Car anywhere you want to go.

—The light weight of the Ford Car, with its strong, sturdy construction, driven by the Ford engine enables it to travel where no other car could get through.

—That is why the Ford Car can go farther—and keep on going—than any other car, and at less cost for operation than any other car.

—Why it is the car for the man who wants a car absolutely dependable at all times.

Naval Vessels Expect Visitors in Hundreds This Afternoon—Schoolboys to Be Given Run of Ships

The vessels of the Canadian Naval squadron will be free for inspection by the people of the city this afternoon for the first time since their arrival at Esquimalt, and a host of visitors is expected to make the trip to the naval base to gratify long pent-up curiosity regarding the nucleus of the new Canadian Navy.

Yesterday members of the Navy League of Canada spent the afternoon in going over the ships, and spent a few thoroughly interesting hours in companionship with the officers and men of the flotilla, who allowed nothing to stand in the way of the pleasure of their guests. The modern war vessels proved of much interest to the Navy League members, who have now arranged with Captain Adams that every schoolboy in the city may have an opportunity to go over them. This applies to private as well as public schools, and days have been allotted and the headmasters notified of the dates for this juvenile inspection.

The Aurora, flagship of the flotilla, lies at the dockyard jetty, a short distance from the end of the Esquimalt carline. The Patriot, one of the two destroyers, has been moored alongside the cruiser, and both the Aurora and her smaller charge will be easy of access for the throng of sightseers. The Patrician swings from a buoy in mid-harbor.

Members of the crews will be on hand to explain the different points of interest aboard the war craft to the public and to show them over the ships generally.

Visiting hours will be from 2 p.m. until 5:30. Good Friday and the Sunday following, and every Sunday will be guest days for the squadron.

CODFISH BOATS WILL NOT WORK THIS YEAR

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19.—The codfishing companies of the Pacific Coast will send no boats into Alaskan or other fishing waters this season on account of an overstocked market and labor troubles, it was announced here today by the Alaska Codfish Company. The Alaska and Union Codfish Companies here have tied up their boats for the season.

Fishing at four stations in the North Pacific Coast will be carried on by the Alaska Company, but the usual seasonal activity in the Behring Sea will be missing this year.

Salmon fishing companies still are endeavoring to negotiate a wage scale that will permit them, according to their statements, to send small fleets north this year.

ROYAL MAIL PACKETS TO SERVE HAMBURG

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Regular passenger and freight service between Hamburg and New York is to be inaugurated May 3 by the Royal Mail Steamship Packet Company, of Great Britain, according to a report to the Department of Commerce today from Consul Broy, of Cherbourg, France.

CUT FREIGHT RATES TO EASTERN LEVEL

SEATTLE, March 19.—Coming as another great development in the movement to place Seattle in a position where she will be able to enter the approaching era of prosperity on an equal footing with all other ports and business centres, freight rates on through cargo from the Pacific Coast to the Orient were slashed last night to a level that restores Elliott Bay to a parity with New York in the great battle for the trade of Asia. The new schedule went into effect this morning. Since the increase in railroad rates last September a tremendous differential has existed in favor of New York in the competition for America's Oriental trade, with the result that an enormous quantity of Oriental cargo has followed the Panama Canal route to the great Eastern ports. The new trans-Pacific rates from the Pacific Coast ports wipe out the differential completely in a number of the great cargo movements, and wipe it out as nearly as possible in other movements.

Reasons Why the "Atkins" Cross-Cut Saws ARE the Best

Made in Hamilton, Ontario, Canada

1. They are made from silver steel, the formula of which is our own exclusive property.
2. It is a steel actually as fine in quality as that of a high-grade razor blade.
3. "Atkins" segment grinding process is perfect. The blades are finished with an absolutely even gauge along the toothed edge, and from the toothed edge it is ground on the segment of a circle to the centre of the back.
4. "Atkins" segment ground cross-cut saws, being thicker at the ends, are stiff, and do not buckle.
5. The most essential feature in a cross-cut saw is the material used in the blade. Silver steel IS best.
6. Cross-cut saw steel must be hard and tough. It must withstand hard knots and obstructions. Silver steel meets these requirements.
7. The distinction between our segment-ground saws and any other lies in the fact that the blades are ground as mentioned in No. 3, on an actual segment of a circle from the toothed edge to the centre of the back.

FOR THE FARMER! We recommend "Atkins" Cross-Cut Saw No. 251—a very high-grade saw and of comparative equal quality to the more expensive one.

"ATKINS" SILVER STEEL HAND, PANEL AND RIP SAWS

Original in design and of scientific construction throughout. If you need a hand saw you need an "Atkins."

WARTIME LOSSES OF GREAT LAKES TONNAGE

Of Sixty Vessels Sent to Atlantic, Few Have Returned—Ships Prepare for Opening of Navigation

TORONTO, March 19.—Canada sent about sixty lake freight carrying vessels to the ocean trade during the war and only twelve or fifteen have returned. The others will never return, for they are either at the bottom of the sea or have been burned or sold. The great majority went down through the activity of German submarines.

Captain J. F. Foote, a well-known marine insurance agent, estimates the loss will run up to ten millions, and may be a great deal more.

The Canadian Steamship Lines sent eighteen vessels to the ocean. Six of these boats have returned and are now being put into shape at Kingston, Collingwood and Midland.

Captain Foote said last night that navigation would open for steel vessels on the Great Lakes on April 1, from which date insurance will be underwritten. At present, he said, the outlook for the vessels is very uncertain. There is a good deal of grain at the head of the lakes to be moved, but so far there had been no indication of a heavy movement of iron ore, which forms much of the business in the early part of the season.

The mild Winter would interfere, too, with the coal carrying business. There were many vessels at Lake Erie ports loaded with coal waiting for the opening of navigation to take their cargoes to the head of the lakes and to Lake Michigan ports.

The time used is Pacific Standard, for the 120th Meridian west. It is counted from 0 to 24 hours, from midnight to midnight. The figures for height serve to distinguish High Water from Low Water. Where blanks occur in the tables, the tide rises or falls continuously during two successive tidal periods without turning.

WERE WAITING FOR WHISKY AT 'FRISCO

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19.—The launch Lloyd C. was seized by the coastguard cutter Tulare today as she was entering the harbor, and a cargo of 300 cases of liquor confiscated. Captain J. Houston and four other members of the crew were arrested by customs officials.

FURTHER CLAIMS IN SOPHIA PROCEEDINGS

Petition for Removal of Default Decree Filed in U.S. Court—Victoria Firm Presents Local Claims

A petition for the removal of the default decree obtained against the relatives of the victims of the Princess Sophia disaster who failed to file their claims at the proper time was presented to the United States Federal court at Seattle on Friday by Mr. William Martin, the attorney for the claimants (respondents).

Mr. Patrick J. Sinnott, of the firm of Sinnott & Green, barristers, Victoria, submitted further Victoria claims in respect of the following victims, namely, Jim Hong, chief cook; Charles J. Black, purser; and J. B. Bell, a passenger. The application is made to set aside the order of the court obtained by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company limiting the time for filing claims on the ground that these claimants were never made aware of such an order or of the proceedings before the United States court.

The trial of this action before Judge Neterer was held on January 18, and lasted for ten days, and as further evidence had to be taken at San Francisco, the arguments of counsel was deferred until May 1. The claims filed to date aggregate about $2,500,000. The total loss of life was 349 passengers and crew, and there were no survivors.

MADE-IN-B.C. DRIVE WILL BE DISCUSSED

Island Manufacturers to Meet at Westholme Hotel to Decide Plan of Action—Continuous Campaign

Manufacturers of Victoria and other parts of Vancouver Island will meet at a dinner to be held in the Westholme Hotel next Wednesday, at 6 o'clock, to discuss the proposal to start a made-in-B.C. campaign here, similar to the drive which has been in progress on the Mainland for several months.

The Chamber of Commerce committee, headed by Mr. Herbert Pendray, has made arrangements for the dinner, and it is expected that practically every important industry of the district will be represented. It is probable that several outside speakers will be here to address the meeting, including Mr. B. A. McKelvie, manager of the Made-in-B.C. campaign in Vancouver, and Mr. J. A. Cunningham, head of the extension committee of the Mainland organization.

The nature of the drive to be staged in Victoria and throughout the Island will be decided upon at the dinner. Whether the campaign will take the form of a concentrated, intensive advertising effort or a persistent and continuous movement will be determined, and it is understood that a large number of the manufacturers favor holding a series of Made-in-B.C. weeks, during which special publicity will be used to encourage consumption of locally-manufactured goods.

The appeal of the organization will not be one of sentiment, but will be directed from the strictly business standpoint, on the ground that products of British Columbia's factories are as good, if not better, than the foreign article, and that they cost no more, if as much.

SPOKANE, March 19.—The Hercules and the Tamarack Custer, two of the biggest silver-lead mines in the Idaho Coeur d'Alenes, will close down next Sunday, letting out about 700 men, according to information received here. Metal market conditions are said to be the cause of the action.

WELSH ASSOCIATION BUYS PATTI'S CASTLE

LONDON, March 19.—Craig-y-Nos Castle, in Wales, the house of the late Madame Adelina Patti, has been sold to the Welsh National Memorial Association, but the residue of the estate, comprising farms, sheep runs, mountain pastures, limestone quarries, ground rents and cottages, will be sold later.

When the castle was first purchased by Madame Patti it only had limited accommodation, but to enable her to have her friends around her and to entertain on a considerable scale, which she was very fond of doing, she had extensive improvements carried out, which cost her nearly £100,000.

Included in the alterations was the construction of a small theatre, with a seating capacity of about 300 people.

Dublin Death Sentence Commuted

DUBLIN, March 19.—The death sentence against John Leonard, a taxicab driver, who was found guilty of being implicated in the murder of Police Inspector Swansey last August, has been commuted to penal servitude for life. It was alleged at the time of the trial that Leonard's car was used by the assassins.

SATURDAY SESSION HAS SMALL TRADING

No Decided Movement Shown by Stock Prices in Week-End Business—Trade News Is More Favorable

NEW YORK, March 19.—Aside from the customary week-end settlement of short contracts at fairly substantial advances, today's short session of the stock market was dull.

A more hopeful note was sounded in the general news, authoritative trade reviews reporting a gain in the wholesale drygoods business over last year. Mercantile conditions were better as to collections, and further shrinkage of failures is indicated.

Liberty issues were again disposed to recede, but the bond list otherwise was steady on a very narrow turnover.

Dealers reported more than the usual activity in foreign exchange. Rates on Paris were unchanged, but the London quotation hardened, with an appreciable gain for the Italian lire, also Austrian kronen.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET

WINNIPEG, March 19.—In the absence of any favorable outside news and lack of buying power the local market was weak today, both cash and future prices showing a decline. Cash premiums again hardened, but this was due more to scarcity of offerings than to strength of demand. Closing cash prices show declines of 1⅞ to 3⅞ cents.

The feature of the present position on the wheat market is the weakness in the future markets in face of strength in cash grains, the close being 2½ to 2⅞ cents lower.

In the coarse grain markets there was some demand for No. 2 cw. oats from eastern buyers, but otherwise business was light. Oats closed ⅞ cent lower; barley 1 cent lower; flax 1⅞ cent to 2⅞ cents lower, and rye 5 cents lower.

BERMUDA REJECTS PACT WITH CANADA

HAMILTON, Bermuda, March 19.—A motion to ratify the Canada-West Indies trade agreement was defeated in the House of Assembly yesterday by a vote of 16 to 11.

OTTAWA, March 19.—Confirmation of the report that the Canada-West Indies trade agreement was defeated yesterday in the Bermuda assembly has not yet been received at the Department of Trade and Commerce. To date a number of the Island assemblies have ratified the agreement, but the effect of Bermuda's refusal to join in is causing considerable speculation as to whether the agreement will now be effected with the individual islands, or whether it now becomes dead.

BELMONTS SUCCEED IN KEEPING PLACE

Christ Church Made Great Effort to Bring Them Down From Leadership—Fail by Three Points

The Y. M. C. A. galleries were packed last night when the Christ Church five were matched with the Belmonts in the Senior A basketball series. Christ Church rooters were out in full force, hoping to see their team go up to the top of the league standing at present held by Belmonts. The crowd were not disappointed at the speedy exhibition by both teams, as the game developed into the most evenly-matched game of the series.

Christ Church opened up with two baskets. Jones scored one for Belmonts, but Bassett and Hopkins kept Christ Church in the lead with three more points. Dangerfield and Brindley added three for Belmonts, but Hopkins netted two free shots, giving Christ Church another good lead. Wilkinson scored a nice one for Belmonts, but Hopkins came through with another immediately after, putting his team five points ahead. Wilkinson and Jones came through with a spurt, and amid great excitement brought the score to 12 points each.

Bassett scored just before the whistle blew, Christ Church leading by two points at half-time.

On resuming play Jones scored two nice shots, and Belmonts went ahead for the first time. Hopkins tied the score, but Jones and Wilkinson put Belmonts ahead again. Bassett and Hopkins tied the score again, then Wilkinson, Dangerfield and Moore gave Belmonts a lead of eight points, with four minutes left to play. Christ Church then staged a surprising rally. Allen scored four points and Hopkins one, Bassett adding two more, and with two minutes left to play Christ Church were one point behind. Moore scored for Belmonts, and in the last minute Bassett tied up the score, the board reading 28 points each.

John Brindley, who had not scored a basket all through the game, thought the opportune moment had arrived to distinguish himself, so taking a pass away in the corner of the floor he took a shot at the basket and scored. It was rather a lucky shot, but was just enough to win the game for Belmonts.

Hopkins netted 12 points and Bassett 10 for Christ Church. Jones and Wilkinson scored eight each for the winners. The teams:

Belmonts—Jones, Wilkinson, Moore, Dangerfield, Moore, Parfitt.

Christ Church—Hopkins, Allen, Bassett, Fatt, Dixon.

Christ Church 30, St. Andrew's 12

Christ Church—Bothwell, Collinson, Christie, McMillan, Champion.

St. Andrew's—Lockwood, Squires, Wood, Beilby, Stubbs.

On-We-Gos 22, Tillicums 15

On-We-Gos defeated Tillicums in the "B" series. Andy Veitch led the On-We-Go scorers, Streeter playing well for the Tillicums. The teams:

Tillicums—De Carteret, Kenning, Barclay, Streeter, Stacey.

VICTORIA WESTS WIN FAIRLY COMFORTABLY

Metropolis Intermediates Play Good Game Against More Experienced Opponents at Beacon Hill—Score, 3-1

The Metropolis Intermediates put up a very game struggle against the Victoria Wests at the upper ground, Beacon Hill, yesterday afternoon, but had to admit defeat, with a score of 3 goals to 1. The Mets' combination was very good, and with more experience they will be a hard team to beat. The Wests displayed their usual aggressive tactics, and the first goal was obtained by Johnny Peden, who sent the ball into the corner of the net with a beautiful shot. The youngsters fought back hard, and, in spite of some clever work by the Wests' forwards, they were unable to score again before half time. When play was resumed, the Wests attacked strongly, and Copas sent the ball over to Tommy Peden, who made a nice dribble and then transferred the sphere to F. Youson, who scored with a hard cross shot.

The Wests' third goal was obtained by Tommy Peden, and the only tally for the Mets was made by Hayward, who beat Fann with a pretty shot. The Mets pressed hard in the second half, but they were unable to overcome the lead of the Wests, whose superior experience stood them in good stead.

For the Wests, Bob Whyte and Copas played their usual sterling game, and the halves, A. Muir, S. Sherratt and C. Thomas, were good, breaking up a number of rushes, and feeding their forwards well. The forwards did a lot of nice work, Tommy and Johnny Peden dribbling smartly, while Jimmy Sherratt and Pat Mulcahy centred cleverly, and Frank Youson made a number of dangerous rushes.

Dowds and McIlvride made a fine pair of full backs for the Mets, their kicking being very vigorous. The halves, Gillingham, English and Dryborough, were excellent, giving their forwards some splendid opportunities to break away. The forwards worked hard, Hayward being the pick.

The teams were:

Victoria Wests—Fann; Whyte and Copas; Muir, S. Sherratt and Thomas; Mulcahy, T. Peden, J. Peden, F. Youson and J. Sherratt.

Referee—Oliver.

High School Boys Staged Close Game—The Girls Had Very Easy Win From the Mill Town Ladies

DUNCAN, March 19.—The Duncan High School basketball teams, both the girls and the boys, achieved all honors against the junior aggregation from Chemainus, when they played return games in the Agricultural Hall here.

There was a good crowd of enthusiastic basketball fans who turned out to witness the battles staged, of which there were three, the third being between local fives, when the married men tried conclusions with the singles. This last game created much interest. Never have two teams taken the floor and showed more keeness to annex a victory for their respective sides.

The Duncan High School girls quite outclassed the mill town misses, defeating them by a score of 24 to 6. The visitors had some very hard luck in their tries at locating the basket, but they did not have the speed and the combination displayed by the local quintette, who really put up a splendid exhibition of girls' basketball. The scoring honors were evenly divided on the local team between the centre, Hilda Best, and the two forwards, Ina and Bertha Castley, each one of them registering eight points, and putting in some really fine shots. For the visitors Clara Cadwallader registered the two points for the visitors just before the final whistle.

In the boys' game, the Duncan High School took the honors by the narrow margin of three points, the final score reading 15-12. Ken Murchie and Claude Bell held the honors as chief scorers for the local boys, while Howe dropped them in for the Chemainus quintette.

In the married versus single there was no lack of ginger and pep. Both teams took the floor with the avowed determination to annex a win, but the married men proved too strong. They carried off the honors of victory to the tune of 16-6. In the married men's line-up they had three of the stars of the senior line-up, with two "come-backs" in the persons of Bruce Powel and Frank Evans, who have been out of the game for several seasons.

The single men had a lighter team, but boys all in training, but despite their efforts the married men would get away, and proved themselves too strong. Frank Evans handled the whistle for the girls' game, Doc. French for the boys' game, and Herb Dickie for the married versus single.

The Line-ups

VETS BEAT YARROWS BY TWO TO NOTHING

Shipbuilders Had Better of the First Half, But Failed in Shooting—Vets Improved Opportunities

The Great War Veterans won their Jackson Cup soccer game yesterday afternoon from the Yarrows by two to nothing. Extraordinarily poor shooting by the Yarrows' forwards had a lot to do with the result of a game, which looked in the early stages as if it must surely be won by Yarrows.

The shipbuilders started with the sun behind them and in the opposing team's eyes, a handicap to which the Yarrows men might have taken much more advantage while it was in their favor, if only they had been able to put a little steam into their shots and shown less hesitation in their play when in front of their opponents' goal. There was no luck about the win. The Veterans were strong in the defensive department and took better advantage of their opportunities when they presented themselves, and that was why they came out on top.

The Yarrows' men were the first to attack and speedily sent in several shots which lacked steam enough to make them at all dangerous to a goalie of Shrimpton's calibre. The Veterans then had a turn and a hard shot was well stopped by Bridges. Long kicking was very much in evidence, and nothing very exciting happened until Bridges, Yarrows' outside right, sent in a shot which was fisted out by Shrimpton, only to give another Yarrows' man an easy chance to head it in, which was not easy enough. Yarrows pressed hard and Shrimpton, with the sun in his eyes, was having an uneasy time of it for a while until at length the Vets got the ball away.

Vets' Defence Strong

Yarrows' inside right looked to have a sitter, but fell down in the shooting department. The Vets were kept on the defence the major part of the period, although the Veterans also missed an opportunity or two, once noticeably when Geordie Allan had an easy chance right in front, and lifted the ball over the bar. Again, shortly afterwards, they had a good chance to score from a corner, which was well kicked, but an unmarked player failed to head it in, although he had a clear field. The first half ended with no score. There were several minor casualties, Potter being the most unfortunate of the victims, and taking a clean knockout when he knocked his head against another one which proved the harder.

With the sun in their favor this time, the Veterans started off in the second half with a vigorous attack, which was carried right through to a goal by Rough before the period was a minute old. Sothern repeated two minutes afterwards. These were the only two goals of the match. Shrimpton, in goal for the Veterans, had a little work to do during this half, but for the most part, when the Yarrows' men got down within shooting distance, they fell down hopelessly in their shooting.

Bridges at the other end was called on once or twice, but the play for the rest of the game was fairly even, with nothing further of any great note happening before Referee Lock blew for full time. The teams were:

G. W. V. A.—Shrimpton; Shearman and Rickinson; Rough, Allan and Miller; Clarkson, Allan, Sothern, Potter and Caskie.

SAYS INTERIOR SECTION IGNORED

most value for settlement purposes, and, he argued, unless something is done to keep the people on the land they would be drifting into the cities.

It had been stated by the leader of the Opposition, said Mr. Hunter, that 90 per cent of the people of the Province were living in cities and municipalities. He ventured to say that at least 75 per cent of the people are living in cities and incorporated towns, not a desirable condition, he said. More inducements were offered to people to remain in the cities, and the Government, which appeared able to appropriate many thousands for paved roads around the Coast cities, seemed unable to spend funds on the opening of needed roads in the interior section.

Needs Roads

He said that the riding which he represented, and in which he had lived for 29 years, and in which the greatest mining camp in the Province is situated, possessed only 12 miles of wagon road upon which a motor car could be operated, and yet the same charge was made for licence fees as at the Coast, where there are hundreds of miles of the best roads on the continent.

Mr. Hunter also objected to the taxing of small amusement places and pool tables on a rate equal to that levied in the cities, with the result that at many of the interior points such places have been closed. He instanced the case of a skating rink at Slocan, built by the people at considerable cost, but the taxation prevented any returns. He supposed the result would be that the property would be sold for taxes. As all these amusement places are being closed there was little inducement for the young people to remain at home; rather they were drifting to the cities.

Mr. J. W. Jones, Conservative member for South Okanagan, adjourned the debate.

Good Friday Race

The result of the five-mile J.B.A.A. road race yesterday has intensified the interest in the G.W.V.A. Good Friday event to the Four Mile House and return. The course set is said to make the distance nine miles and agitating the experts is, Can Jimmy Buckett maintain his form over the distance? He showed a fine turn of speed yesterday, but Burnett Woodward, of the Y.M.C.A., also proved himself to be a pretty runner. Then Ernie Harwood, of the G.W.V.A., intends to get a new pair of shoes, and make a special endeavor to show what he really can do. MacLachlan, of the J.B.A.A., with more training, is another runner who will put up a hard race.

PLAN EXTENSION OF WORK AT TRANQUILLE

Under Agreement With Anti-Tuberculosis Society, Province Takes Control of the Sanitarium

The intentions of the Provincial Government relative to the arrangement under which it has taken over the Tranquille Sanitarium were set forth by Hon. J. D. MacLean, Provincial Secretary, in the Legislature on Friday afternoon, when moving the second reading of the bill to ratify the agreement between the Provincial Government and the Anti-Tuberculosis Society, under which all the assets of the latter are assumed and provision for the future maintenance and operation of the institution provided for.

In submitting the bill, the Provincial Secretary gave an interesting resume of the history of this institution and explained the necessity for its transfer, outlining also the plans for future extension of this invaluable relief and curative work.

Dr. MacLean explained that Tranquille Sanitarium is an institution acquired and developed by the Anti-Tuberculosis Society of the Province, which was founded in 1904. Its objects are the prevention and treatment of tubercular patients and the establishment of hospitals and sanitoria with that end in view. It acquired powers to receive bequests, subscriptions and funds, and to buy and sell real estate. Branch societies were organized in nearly all populous centres in the Province with a view to raising funds and generally educating public opinion in prevention and treatment of tuberculosis cases.

Record of Progress

In 1903 the society had in facilities for treatment five tents and two small houses in Kamloops district. The development of the work of the society necessitated the acquisition of larger premises, and in 1907 Tranquille Ranch was acquired for $58,000. The property acquired totalled 600 acres, and along with this a lease was taken of 8,000 acres of Dominion ranch, buying 600 head of cattle and 75 horses. By renovating the buildings they provided 23 beds for patients. Additions were made to the plant from time to time, until 1917, when the present Government took office, there was accommodation for 120 patients. The total grant made previously by the Government for capital expenditure amounted to only $18,000. The society had a hard financial struggle and was in constant need of funds.

From 1907 to 1917 the society received from the Government in special grants sums aggregating $137,000, and to assist in maintenance a total of $168,000, making a grand total of $305,000, or an average of $28,000 per year. Since the present Government came into office there has been contributed in the way of special grants—that is to say, from 1918 to 1921 inclusive—$85,000, and per capita payments amounting to $197,000, a total of $282,000, or an average of $70,500 per year.

Improvements

In 1918 Hon. Dr. MacLean visited Ottawa on invitation of the Dominion Government, attending a conference of Provincial Ministers in charge of departments of health, the object being to co-ordinate a system for the care of returned soldiers who were affected with tuberculosis. The net result of this conference, so far as the Province was concerned, was an arrangement under which, on the payment of $75,000 by the Provincial Government, the Dominion Government agreed to erect and equip an additional wing at Tranquille, capable of accommodating 100 additional patients. This was done at a cost of $380,000, the agreement providing that when the Dominion health authorities had no further use for the institution it should be turned over to the Provincial Government. This agreement was ratified by the Anti-Tuberculosis Association.

In 1920, however, the Anti-Tuberculosis Association found it too heavy a task to carry on this undertaking, and again asked the Provincial Government to take over the institution. This has required innumerable consultations, and much correspondence, but the bill is the culmination of this effort.

Before leaving that feature of the question, Hon. Dr. MacLean paid a feeling tribute to the work of the Anti-Tuberculosis Association, and stated that great credit was due the society for its tireless and persistent efforts to cope with the disease in this Province.

Large Assets

"The assets of the institution as we take it over will amount to $758,925. This is valuing the sanitarium building at $456,000, the realty, including the Greaves bequest, making up the balance. Against this are liabilities of a mortgage in the sum of $20,000 and debts amounting to $33,000, making a total of $53,000.

"The situation today is that we shall have an institution capable of accommodating 230 patients. At present there are 119 soldier patients under care at the sanitarium. All of these are British Columbia patients, that is to say, men who enlisted from British Columbia, or claimed this as their home Province. The civilian patients are all British Columbia patients also.

"The agreement with the Dominion Government provides, as stated before, that the new wing shall be turned over to the Province as soon as its usefulness to the Dominion authorities terminates. The Dominion also covenants to pay the Province the actual cost of maintaining its patients in the institution, such cost to be based on all expenditures connected with the sanitarium, excepting interest and sinking funds on previous capital expenditure.

"In return we are to treat the Dominion military patients, so that we lose nothing on this feature of the transaction.

"It is intended that civilian patients shall pay whenever possible. If they come to us from a municipality, and are not well enough off to pay their treatment, the municipality will contribute. If they come from unorganized districts under similar circumstances the Government will assume that obligation.

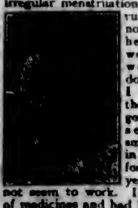
Financial Loss

"The institution has been operating at a loss during the past few years. The current deficit is about $1,500 per month, or for the last twelve months $20,000.

"We are proposing to take over the institution, therefore, for two reasons: First, because it has become too large and important an undertaking to be managed and supported by voluntary effort, and secondly because the care of contagious disease of this nature should be the duty of the Province.

"Some persons say that voluntary effort will cease as soon as we take over this institution. Yet voluntary contributions to this work have averaged $3,000 per year for several years past. We have an asset also in the bequest of the late Mr. Greaves, of Douglas Lake, and doubtless other bequests will be made from time to time as the institution will continue to do a work that must command itself to the thoughtful support of those who leave valuable estates behind them."

Dr. MacLean briefly sketched the plans for the future of the institution, stating that its work and plant will be extended as rapidly as funds will permit. It is intended to continue and prosecute more vigorously than ever a campaign of education against the disease. Municipalities will be encouraged to make larger grants somewhat commensurate with the value of the benefits received by the existence of the institution and the care of patients from organized districts.



ABLE TO DO HER WORK

Toronto, Ont.—"I suffered with irregular menstruation, was weak and run down, could not eat and had headaches. The worst symptoms were dragging down pains, so bad I sometimes thought I would go crazy and I seemed to be smothering. I was in this condition for two or three years and could not seem to work. I tried all kinds of medicines and had been treated by physicians but received no benefit. I found one of your booklets and felt inclined to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I received the best results from it and now I keep house and go out to work and am like a new woman. I have recommended your Vegetable Compound to my friends and if these facts will help some poor woman use them as you please."—Mrs. J. F. Peasey, 387 King St., Toronto, Ontario.

If you are one of these women do not suffer for four or five years as Mrs. Peasey did, but profit by her experience and be restored to health.

PRACTICAL IDEAS FOR THE GARDENER

Mr. Hallwright Tells Members of Victoria Women's Institute How to Make Hotbed—Housecleaning Suggestions

The first general meeting of the Victoria Women's Institute (which enjoys the distinction of being the first town centre formed in Canada) was held Friday afternoon at St. Andrew's schoolroom, and brought together a large gathering of members and their friends, who apparently much enjoyed the excellent programme which had been prepared for the occasion. A practical talk by Mr. Hallwright, agricultural supervisor at the Victoria High School, on Spring gardening; a brief address by Mrs. Tyrrell Godman on "Goat Keeping," and "Roll Call," with its responses by useful suggestions for Spring cleaning constituted the business part of the programme, the last part of the meeting being occupied with the serving of afternoon tea and a millinery demonstration by Mme. Yvette. The ladies responsible for the tea arrangements and the pretty decorations of the room with plum blossoms and pussy willows were Mrs. Godman, Mrs. Crocker, Mrs. Raven, Mrs. Norris, Mrs. Service and Mrs. Tolmie. Two girls from the James Bay Troup of Girl Guides gave very efficient assistance.

In commencing his address Mr. Hallwright remarked that Victoria was in a singularly fortunate position as regards the relations between the urban and rural interests. In fact, there were better opportunities for proper relations between the two districts than in almost any other part of Canada, partly owing to the widespread interest in gardening taken by the residents, partly because of the climatic conditions, partly also because so many people lived just a little distance out of town.

The members called by name during "Roll Call" were asked to respond with some hints on housecleaning or Spring cleaning, and this brought forth a number of practical suggestions for cleaning windows, cupboards, etc. The millinery demonstration by Mme. Yvette was watched with much interest.

The date of the next meeting of the Victoria Institute, which now numbers over seventy members, will be announced in due course, and members are warned that in response to roll call they will be asked to give some suggestions re "How Can Victoria Be Made More Beautiful?"

Mr. J. Henderson Receives Token of Appreciation From Fellow-Members of Society

The presentation to Mr. J. Henderson of an eight-day clock in solid walnut case was made Friday evening by officers and members of the St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society, of which Mr. Henderson is a member. Mr. R. Laughtland was in the chair, and speaking on behalf of all members, he wished to convey to the best of his ability the feeling of gratitude and sorrow which was theirs; gratitude for the work done in the past by Brother Henderson for the good and welfare of the society, and sorrow at having to lose such a good worker.

Brother Henderson, in his reply, spoke for some time on the good points of the society, and expressed his surprise at the high esteem in which he was held, which was shown in the value of the token he had just received, and the attendance of the members on such occasion.

The smoker, which was arranged in honor of the departure of Brother Henderson, was thoroughly enjoyed by all present. The informal programme was carried out in excellent style by willing and competent artists, of which the society can boast.

The night's enjoyment was concluded by singing "Auld Lang Syne" and "Will Ye No Come Back Again?"

OIL RESOURCES

Mr. R. H. Pooley Would Have Drilling Operations in the Peace River District

Immediate steps to investigate the possible oil resources of the Peace River section by actual drilling operations is advocated by Mr. R. H. Pooley, Conservative member for Esquimalt, who has given notice of his intention to ask the House to go on record that such steps be taken through private enterprise under such terms as the Lieutenant-Governor-in-Council made deem advisable.

The motion of Esquimalt's member follows hard upon the heels of the report of Professors Dresser and Spieker, who last year investigated the oil possibilities of the section immediately west of and south of the Peace River block for the Provincial Government. Their recommendation was that exploratory drilling operations were necessary to prove whether the surface indications of oil indicated an actual oil deposit.

COPENHAGEN, March 18. — A lockout of workers in the iron and metal industry, the textile, shoe and brick factories, and in the sawmills has been declared by the employers' organization. In reply, the co-operative trades unions have called a strike to begin March 19 in all plants owned by members of the employers' organization. The strike will involve 200,000 workers.
